EX-RAIDER ACCUSES POLICE OF GRAFT

Today

A Long, Fine Day.
21 Kinds of Honor.
You'll Meet No Gold.
Don't Poison Your Marrow.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

YESTERDAY WAS one of the year's interesting days, the first day of summer, the longest day in the year, with weather good throughout the country generally.

Long days or short mean little in these times of daylight saving and reduced working hours, and everything is comparative. The ephemeridae tiny things that live through one day and die when it ends, probably think they enjoy a long life. To us a year seems long. On the planet Jupiter, where each year is fifty of our years, and a child is five hundred of our years old on its tenth birthday, we should seem like two-legged ephemeridae.

THE PRESIDENT and his learned cabinet have gathered in twenty-one degrees, to divide among them, from various institutions of learning. Secretary of State Hull leads with five sets of initials, from Notre Dame, Columbia University, William and Mary, George Washington and Williams University. Secretary of the Interior Ickes came next with four.

IF ANYBODY has guaranteed to pay you "in gold," whether for mortgage, rent, or anything else, learn, as your tears trickle, that all that is wiped out. United States District Judge Paris decides that nobody need pay gold, regardless of past agreements since the government has made possession and payment of gold illegal.

Hereafter, no matter what anybody has promised, you will have to take payment in such dollars as the United States may turn out. And if you are wise you will prepare yourself for dollars considerably "cheaper."

ALSO, IF WISE, you will realize that, in the long run, United States money is about the best thing in the way of money that you can get, even though it should become, as it probably will, a twenty-five cent dollar. The French franc was officially cut down by 80 per cent, which would be equivalent to a twenty cent dollar. German money was made so cheap that it cost about five hundred thousand dollars, German, to send a letter from Berlin to London. You will have cheaper money here.

IMPORTANT FOR women and girls that foolishly starve themselves, or swallow "fat-reducing" drugs, to become thin; starving yourself to become thin induces acidosis, much worse, and more easily induced in women than in men.

If you take drugs to get thin, or "relieve pain," you injure the bone marrow and that marrow is the factory in which nature manufactures the white corpuscles in your blood. Those corpuscles attack disease germs, and protects your health.

All doctors agree on starvation causing acidosis in women.

Even more important, skinniness in women is ugly. Nature, art and beauty demand roundness, well-padded curves.

BARBER SHOPS abandoned the NRA code sometime ago. "Tonsorial parlor" in which prosperity reclines with a hot towel on the face, a manicure lady busy with its nails, a bootblack fixing its shoes, and a barber giving it the latest news, is a different institution from that in which plain men are shaved.

Now, the cleaning and dyeing trades abandon their code of hours and wages officially, in a letter to the President. Those old tyrants, "supply and demand," and "survival of the fittest" retain power, although survival of the "fittest" often means survival of the meanest of those that pay the smallest wages and cut prices through inferior work.

HENRY FORD says lower prices in the automobile industry are a good sign, predicts the thirty-hour week, and says "that and the six-hour day would have been here by now if they had let things alone."

Things are made more rapidly than they used to be, and "people must have more time to use what they make," according to Mr. Ford.

Six-hour day, 30-hour week, will be a blessing for those that like to take life easily and a greater blessing, with double opportunity, for the minority, glad to work hard while they are

Lady Cavendish Clowns at Tilly Trial

TAXI KISSES, 'CLINCHES' DENIED

Adele Makes Faces Showing Judge Old 'U. S. Custom'

By GEORGE LAIT
International News Service.

LONDON, June 22.—The peculiar American gesture of "thumbing the nose" was demonstrated today to an amused court and judge by Lady Charles Cavendish, the former Adele Astaire, noted dancer, on the witness stand to aid her friend Tilly Losch, who is being sued for divorce by Edward F. W. James, brother of Mrs. Marshall Field III.

The courtroom rocked with gales of laughter, in which the judge joined, as Lady Cavendish demonstrated what she and Tilly were doing as they rode in separate taxicabs up Fifth avenue, New York, on the trip in which Tilly, Hungarian dancer, was charged with violent spooning with Prince Serge Obelensky.

Despite the detectives' tale of the prince and Tilly "mushing it up" in the taxi, Adele declared:

"There was no romancing. I could see in her cab all the time. We were close together and were making faces and thumbing our noses."

LOT OF FUN

The judge did not seem to comprehend what Lady Cavendish meant, so she showed him.

Then refsuing to accept the suggestion by Norman Birkett, attorney for Tilly's husband, that such actions were "extremely vulgar," Lady Cavendish said:

"Oh, no. It was a lot of fun. You must realize that what might be termed vulgar over here, might not be considered improper in America."

Lady Cavendish gave the court another amused moment when Birkett began to question her about the reported gift of sables to her by Josh Cosden. Adele answered by saying:

"Listen, Mr. Birkett, I have always made plenty of money and no one ever had to buy me sables."

Lord Charles Cavendish, who was present, also was highly amused at his wife's testimony.

DENIES 'FRAME-UP'

The attorney for James continued today to pursue the inquiry into the ride which his wife, the sprightly Hungarian dancer, took in a taxi with Prince Obolensky, brother-in-law of Vincent Astor, up Fifth avenue to her apartment where with Lady Cavendish and Henry Channon, she spent an evening. The charge that Tilly and the prince were "swapping kisses" has been denied by herself and Channon as well as by Lady Cavendish.

Randolph Churchill, son of Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer, testified that he had attempted to reach James on the telephone when Tilly had a slight accident in a taxicab on the day after James' divorce petition had been filed. Churchill denied that he had attempted to "frame" James and get the couple together to patch things up.

SLEEPS ON SOFA

Churchill who admitted having rented the James home for several months in 1932, last night was served with a writ for payment of the rent. He said today that immediately after being served with the writ he had paid the total demand of eighty pounds, more than $400.

Ada Klempher, who was Tilly's maid at the house in Mayfair, testified that on several occasions the servants heard Tilly shout to James:

"Get out of my room."

Next morning they would find James sleeping on a sofa in another room wrapped up in a table cloth.

Nude Stroller Enlivens Suit For Divorce

Karl H. Linn, of 5626 Broad street, swimming instructor in the Pittsburgh schools, strolled around the house in nature's garb, witnesses testified today in combatting his divorce suit against Katherine M. Myers Linn, former nurse, of 5814 Black street.

Mrs. Linn denied her husband's charges that she and her sister entertained boy friends and brought liquor into the Linn home.

Mrs. Olga Lappe, a former roomer in the Linn home, testified that on one occasion she encountered Linn coming out of the bathroom nude. Neighbors testified they had seen Linn seated in the front room smoking in nudist style.

Attorney David H. Harrison, representing the wife, asked Judge H. H. Rowand to dismiss the case on the ground that Linn had failed to substantiate his charges. The court refused.

The Linns were married August 23, 1926 and have a family, testimony disclosed. The husband charges desertion and indignities.

'STAG' RAID NETS 3 DANCERS

Two hundred male spectators who had gathered last night to watch three dancing girls entertain in a club at 337 Cedarville street were out $1.50 each today because police raided the stag show.

Detective Inspector Samuel E. Wheeler, in Morals Court today, testified that he found two of the girls dancing with nothing on but step-ins.

The girls failed to show up for the hearing today and forfeited $10 each. They were listed on the police docket as Virginia Cross, 25, of 1211 Arch street; Betty Lane, 22, of 519 Columbus avenue, and Rae Evans, 25, of 1211 Arch street.

Fred Mayers, 29, of 307 Rothman street, ho had been charged with maintaining and conducting an indecent exhibitoin, forfeited $105 when he failed to appear for a hearing. John Holmes, 29, of 2853 Bedford avenue, was fined $50 on the same charge, and James Burns, of 440 South Graham street, was discharged.

Ex-Kaiser Denies He Plans Comeback

DOORN, Holland, June 22.—(AP.)—The residence of the former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany today issued a categorical denial of a statement printed in a London newspaper that the Kaiser plans to return to Germany.

It was stated that no representative of the London newspaper (the Herald), which printed the report had been in Doorn. It was further pointed out that Wilhelm can always go back to Germany but does not wish to do so under present circumstances.

FREE SQUIRE IN JURY FIX TRIAL

Westwood Acquitted By Directed Verdict

Squire James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks, was acquitted on an embracery charge (jury-fixing) in Criminal Court today, Judge William H. McNaugher ordered the acquittal verdict, but the jury placed the costs on Westwood.

Prosecutor Roy T. Clunk found himself in a hopeless spot when his star witness, James Connors, county truck driver, of Oakdale, appeared to contradict a previous story.

Connors was brought from the county jail, where he is serving a six-month sentence following his plea of guilty to an embracery charge. He admitted approaching a prospective juror, Mrs. Mary Stevens, of Oakdale, for an earlier trial of Westwood, when the squire was being tried on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the county with fictitious costs.

But today Connors said he was drunk when, and if, he told the District Attorney that Westwood had given him the names of several prospective jurors to approach.

Connors said he remembered being in the District Attorney's office, but doesn't remember making any statement. He admitted having approached Mrs. Stevens, but, he said, only because he had heard she planned to "railroad" Westwood and he wanted to tell her Westwood was a friend of his.

Judge McNaugher admitted into the record Connors' statement implicating Westwood, but the Judge ordered the directed verdict with the explanation that Connors' two stories nullified each other.

The conspiracy charge, based on alleged fictitious costs, is still pending against Westwood. Last month he was convicted, along with Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, the McKees Rocks assemblyman, in Federal Court in a vote fraud trial. He is appealing.

Held in Plot Against Radio Station Head

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., June 22.—(AP.)—A man giving his name as Lyle Erwin, of Omaha, was arrested by police and Department of Justice agents today after an alleged attempt to extort $6,000 from Earl E. May wealthy Shenandoah (Iowa) merchant. Officers said letters received by May, owner of a Shenandoah radio station, threatened him and members of his family with death unless the extortion demands were met.

VICE-BOUGHT PROTECTION CHARGED BY CAVANAUGH

Lots of Lieutenants Like Dillingers, Hoey Asserts

Alleged payments by the underworld for police protection were described to the Police Research Commission today as former police officers turned the searchlight on politically-controlled operations of the city's law enforcers.

Other revelations were:

1—Former Police Inspector James N. Hoey demanded of Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell an investigation of recovery of money in the Brotherhood Bank case, found in milk bottles in the yard of Edward Goodfellow.

2—John J. Cavanaugh, former "raiding lieutenant" and vice foe, urged that police control be vested in a board named by the courts or by the Governor to eliminate political rule of the bureau.

3—Louis Leff, recently discharged as inspector of detectives, declared the whole police bureau is subject to political influence.

'PRETTY WISE'

Cavanaugh, who earned the title "Honest John" in underworld raids, startled the investigators with this statement:

"I know of collectors. I know one personally. The money was turned in. The person who took the money was not connected with the city government. They are pretty wise."

Cavanaugh was not pressed to reveal the identity of the "collector" to whom he referred.

Cavanaugh advocated a commission appointed by the courts, or by the Governor to handle police activities. He added:

"Of course a lot depends on who is Governor."

BELL GRILLED

Director Bell was interrogated closely by Hoey regarding his published statements as to Frank R. Boyd, dismissed as inspector of detectives and later as captain of detectives, being a "man without a flaw in his record."

Hoey declared:

"Many an incompetent police officer has worked for 25 years and has no mark against his record."

Hoey followed up this statement with a request that Bell investigate the finding of the Brotherhood Bank money. Hoey

Extortion Suspect Released on Bond

Under a $1,000 cash bond, Kenneth Weir, 20, of Geneva Hill, Beaver Falls, was released from jail today pending a hearing before a United States commissioner next Thursday on charges implicating him in an alleged $10,000 extortion plot against Mrs. Nellie E. Beegle, wealthy and socially prominent widow of Patterson Heights, Beaver Falls.

Richard Thomas, 34, and James Harrington, 24, others involved in the alleged scheme, remained in jail. Thomas' bail was fixed at $10,000 and Harrington's at $5,000.

BARRIER CRASH WRECKS AUTO

Crashing into a wooden barrier, erected on the Boulevard of the Allies, warning motorists of the closing of the thoroughfare, George W. Rankin, 31, of 213 Clover street, suffered a fracture of the skull when his automobile overturned.

Four other persons in a car following were injured, one seriously, as the driver, Robert Miller, 28, of 204 East North avenue, swerved to avoid the wreck and collided with a parked truck.

Police said the barrier was not lighted. The boulevard, east of the Liberty Bridge, was closed recently to permit reconstruction of the boulevard. Motorists en route to the South Hills may use the boulevard to the bridge, police said.

Passengers in Miller's machine were Ethel Cheuka, 24, of 135 Twenty-fourth avenue, Munhall; William King, 26, of 127 Twentieth street, Munhall, and Elsie Jacobs, 23, of 223 South Fourteenth street, Munhall. Miss Cheuka suffered a probable fracture of the pelvis and is in a serious condition. The injured were taken to Mercy Hospital.

Foes of Merger Lose in Opening U. P. Skirmish

OXFORD, O., June 22.—(AP.)—Foes of union with the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. went down to defeat today in parliamentary maneuvers to defeat a plan of merger submitted to the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church in North America.

Negotiations for merger have been in progress since 1929.

As the plan was placed before the gathering, Dr. L. E. H. Smith, pastor of Riverside United Presbyterian Church, Buffalo, N. Y., moved to eliminate all debate to prevent advocates of union from presenting the case in favor. The motion went down to overwhelming defeat, and a like fate met a motion to limit debate to one and one-half hours for each side.

An all-day session of debate was forecast before a vote will be reached.

Debate was opened by Dr. W. J. Reid, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the church's committee on unity.

Tetrazzini Testifies Against Young Mate

ROME, June 22.—(AP.)—Luisa Tetrazzini, former opera star, was on the witness stand for two hours today testifying against her youthful husband, Pietro Vernati, in an endeavor to substantiate charges he tried to extort money from her.

She denied allegations of Vernati that she frittered away a fortune on "parasites" and his contentions she is "unbalanced" and needs a guardian.

Dr. Jordan Dies; Former Legislator

Nazi Screen Bars 'Tarzan and Mate'

BERLIN, June 22.—(AP.)—The official Journal Reichsanzeiger announced today that the motion picture, "Tarzan and His Mate," has been barred from Germany.

The censor's office refused to state the reason for the action.

FATAL BATTLE LINKS WOMAN

A fight in which a woman was involved today was blamed for the killing of one man and the wounding, perhaps fatally, of another.

Fred Morceo, 35, was dead. His brother-in-law, Leonard Christoforo, 30, with three knife wounds, was reported in critical condition in McKeesport Hospital.

They fought in their home and store in Adderly, Patton Township.

The woman was Mrs. Mary Morceo, sister of one husband of the other. She told the county detectives that her brother and a second man were arguing with her over charges she had recently filed against them when her husband entered the room and the free-for-all followed.

County detectives said neighbors had told them Morceo and Christofore were partners in a bootleg still, but the sleuths said they had been unable to find any still.

Man Held in Threat Against La Guardia

NEW YORK, June 22.—(AP.)—Detectives of the bomb squad are holding a man they accuse of sending threatening letters to Mayor Fiorello La Guardia and the City Commissioner of Public Welfare, William Hudson. The man, arrested last night, identified himself as Augustus Storace, 32.

Attaches of the Mayor's office declined to discuss the case.

Roosevelt Sees Son Lose 'Good Race'

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 22—(AP.)—President Roosevelt returned to his ship here today after watching Yale defeat the Harvard freshmen and junior varsity crews and remarked "they were both awfully good races."

Mr. Roosevelt put aside completely the cares of the presidency to witness the Harvard-Yale crew races in which his son, Franklin, Jr., was rowing on the Harvard freshman team.

Anchoring here yesterday off the Redtop headquarters of the Harvard crews, the President gave first attention to official business, which brought his signature of the new railroad labor bill and also of the measure removing restrictions on loans to closed banks by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. But today was a holiday, and with boyish spirit, the President watched the annual Harvard-Yale races, and so did Mrs. Roosevelt.

U. S. Seeks Extradition Of Bride's 'Captain'

VIENNA, June 22.—(INS.)—Capt. Ivan Poderjay, detained by the Vienna police in connection with the disappearance of Agnes Tufverson, New York lawyer, whom he married last December, has been charged with "suspicion of murder," the police disclosed today.

Mme. Suzanne Ferrand, to whom Poderjay had previously been wedded in London, is being held on a charge of having profited in a crime because she was found to be wearing clothing belonging to Miss Tufverson.

Poderjay previously had been accused of bigamy, but the Vienna police admitted it would be difficult to effect his extradition to the United States on that charge.

Today the police announced that an American request for the extradition of the Jugo-Slavian adventurer, believed to have had affairs with many women, was en route to Vienna and that it probably would be honored.

Continuing their search of the apartment occupied by Poderjay and Mme. Ferrand the police today found more clothing and jewelry belonging to Miss Tufverson.

LAWRENCE TO RESIGN POST AS REVENUE COLLECTOR HERE

NEED OF PARTY, NOT ORDERS REASON

Action Not Influenced By Morgenthau Ban, Democrat Says

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—(AP.)—David L. Lawrence, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, said today he plans to resign as U. S. collector of internal revenue for the Western Pennsylvania district.

Lawrence, who also is Democratic chairman of Allegheny County, said he had intended to quit the federal position irrespective of the order of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, who decreed that employes in his department may not hold political party offices.

When he accepted the state chairmanship, Lawrence added, he realized its duties would require most of his time.

Lawrence, whose home is in Pittsburgh, stopped off in Philadelphia en route from Washington. He planned to go to Harrisburg for a conference of Democratic state leaders today. He was named state chairman on June 9, succeeding Warren Van Dyke, collector of the port of Philadelphia, who did not seek re-election.

Secretary Henry Morgenthau had given Treasury employes until September 1 to quit their party posts or relinquish their federal jobs.

In his statement serving notice on federal employes, Morgenthau said:

"I think it has been demonstrated that a man cannot collect for Uncle Sam and the party, too."

HOPKINS WEIGHS POST OF U. S. HOUSING BOSS

Relief Administrator Can Have Job If He Wants It

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(AP.)—Appointment of Harry L. Hopkins as administrator of the new housing law appeared today to depend on whether he prefers to take that position or to continue as relief administrator.

His appointment is still being urged by those responsible for the legislation to increase home building and repair. Little consideration has been given to any other man.

Meanwhile, inquiries about the borrowing of money for home repair are bringing the reminder here that the federal government itself advances no funds under this latest emergency set-up.

What lending there is will be by banks and building and loan associations, with the privilege of government insurance of the loans to varying degrees.

One of Hopkins associates expressed the opinion that he would at first glance choose to continue his present work and to take on the housing job also. It was said, however, that this probably would be too much for one man.

NUMEROUS LETTERS

The delay in appointing an administrator has made it difficult to answer numerous letters to Washington about the procedure necessary to get a loan. The administrator will have to set up a series of regulations to govern the situation.

In general, however, a man in Hackensack, New Jersey, for instance, who wants to take advantage of the opportunity, may apply to any private lending agency for a loan to build a porch which would cost say $1,500.

If the bank or other agency wishes to loan, it will do so and arrange for the home owner to pay it back in monthly payments which may run as long as five years.

LOAN PROCEDURE

The lender then may notify the new housing administration, under procedure not yet outlined, that he wishes to take advantage of the government's guarantee. If the loan meets the government's requirements, the administrator will guarantee the lender against loss up to 20 per cent of the loan.

There is no reason why a person desiring to make a loan may not now begin negotiations with his bank or another lending agency. As a matter of fact, officials here say some banks have already begun to lend, with the idea of taking advantage of the insurance phase of the law when the President signs the bill.

LONDON NAVAL DEAL HALTED BY U. S.

Secret Note Postpones Negotiations on Armament

LONDON, June 22.—(AP.)—Negotiations between United States and British naval experts here were stopped temporarily today on receipt of instructions from Washington.

The nature of the note received by the American delegation was not disclosed. It was indicated, however, that as a result of new directions from the United States there will be no more sessions of the bilateral conference until Monday.

Diplomatic circles meanwhile were discussing verbal questions which accompanied the formal acceptance of France to enter the series of discussions preliminary to the international naval disarmament conference next year.

The French asked whether more than five nations will be invited to the preliminary talks, whether Great Britain favors equality for Germany in naval matters and whether the preliminary discussions here will preclude further conversations elsewhere.

The German questions probably will be minimized. The British are believed to be unopposed to conversations, elsewhere if they are desired.

Japs Seek to Limit Naval Parley Issues

TOKIO, June 22.—(AP.)—An authoritative source said today that Japan's unwillingness to discuss political issues at the 1935 naval conference has already been expressed by Ambassador Matsudaira in London without eliciting an immediate positive opposition by the United States and Great Britain.

The Japanese ambassador declared the Japanese stand in talks with Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador-at-large, and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain.

Doubts, however, were expressed in official circles as to an actual Anglo-American acquiescence to the Japanese postion, while a Foreign Office spokesman, beyond saying he "was hoping America and Great Britain would understand our desire to exclude political subjects," declined to disclose what had passed between Matsudaira, Davis and MacDonald.

UTILITY DEFIES GOVERNMENT ORDER

Power Firm to Build Virginia Dam Despite Court Ban

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(AP.)—In a new challenge to the government, the Appalachia Electric Power Company served notice on the Federal Power Commission today it was going ahead with the construction of a dam on the New River, in Virginia, in defiance of the commission's order compelling it to seek a permit.

The company's move was made despite the loss of its suit in the Federal Courts to test the power commission's authority.

A new test of the constitutionality of the Federal Water Power Act was foreshadowed by the company's decision to go ahead with the dam in violation of the commission's order.

The famous test case was instigated several years ago when the power commission issued an order prohibiting construction of the dam without a permit under the waterpower act.

The company sued George Otis Smith, then chairman of the commission, and other members of the body, as individuals, saying they had entered an order beyond their powers. The case went through the various courts to the Supreme Court, which refused to consider the company's appeal from a decision of the Circuit Court, holding it had no jurisdiction in the case.

LANGER OUSTER DRIVE PUSHED

BISMARCK, N. D., June 22.—(AP.)—A district court ouster action appeared a certainty today as Lieut. Gov. Ole H. Olson continued legal efforts to remove Gov. William Langer, convicted recently of a felony.

Olson supporters, rallying after their setback when the North Dakota Supreme Court refused Thursday to take jurisdiction of their plea to begin ouster proceedings, prepared to begin the district court action. This, if denied, could be brought into the higher court by an appeal.

Taking cognizance of Langer's action in placing a sheriff's guard before the Governor's office, Olson in a statement yesterday said:

"I do not intend to make any attempt to gain that office by other means than those which are perfectly legal and in accordance with the laws of our state."

Langer and four co-defendants were convicted Sunday of conspiracy to solicit funds from federal relief workers.

BOMB TERROR GRIPS PARIS

PARIS, June 22.—(AP.)—A twelfth bomb was found in the mails today in the sinister campaign of terror, revived yesterday by "The Three Judges of Hell."

After several days of respite from bombs police had believed the criminal they call a madman had been scared off. But the resumption of deliveries revived widespread fear throughout Paris.

The latest bomb was found in the postoffice with mail taken from a box in a populous workers' district near the Place Voltaire.

Authorities are convinced an insane person, brooding over the Stavisky scandal, is responsible for the fiendish campaign in which several workers have been injured.

CAT TURNS ON RESCUER

Driver H. D. Bowden, of Engine Company No. 50, Lafayette avenue, North Side, was bitten on the finger of his right hand by a cat he attempted to rescue from a tree in Chautauqua street last night.

Firemen were summoned by neighbors who informed them the cat had been up the tree almost a week. Bowden and Ladderman Barney O'Brien scaled a ladder and when Bowden seized the cat, the frightened feline bit him on the finger and jumped 25 feet to the ground. It ran away before other firemen could capture it.

Bowden's wounds were cauterized at Mercy Hospital.

DILLINGER LIVES HIS SISTER SAYS

International News Service.

GALION, O., June 22.—John Dillinger, phantom desperado, is still alive, according to his sister, it was disclosed today on Dillinger's 32nd birthday.

Mrs. Eulalia Gallander, of Galion, received a letter from Dillinger's sister, Mrs. Audrey Hancock, of Maywood, Ind., stating:

"John is still alive."

"We heard from John. He is well. We don't know where he is hiding. I wish I did know. We have so much mail for him.

"Friday, June 22, is his 32nd birthday. I don't believe that he would surrender. He doesn't trust anyone. All this bunk about wanting dad to go on the stage is only another federal trap. If they can't catch him one way, they will try another."

FIX INSURANCE ON TAXI, BUS

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, June 22.—To insure payment of damages to victims of vehicular operation, the Public Service Commission today ordered all certificated taxicab and bus operators to carry at least $5,000 public liability insurance for injury to one person and $10,000 to cover one accident.

The commission also ordered that a policy in the amount of $1,000 be carried to cover property damage.

All operators must comply by August 1.

Today's order supplemented the commission's rule requiring operators to carry adequate legal liability for personal injury, death or damage to property.

QUEEN OF SEAS TO ABDICATE

LONDON, June 22.—(AP.)—The queen of the seas is abdicating.

England's giant Cunard liner, Mauretania, which smashed trans-Atlantic crossing records with almost monotonous consistency for more than 20 years, is to be scrapped, it was reported today. She leaves June 30 on her final run to New York.

The giant vessel conquered the best in speedy crossings until the German Bremen appeared on the scene in 1929 and cut the Mauretania's record for a Cherbourg-New York passage by five hours, to four days, 14 hours.

Since her launching in 1906 she has experienced hurricanes, icebergs, rescues at sea, fire, groundings. And this year she capped it off with two sea serpents. Members of the crew reported having seen two—not one—aff Nassau in March.

The vessel will not be scrapped until she completes a four months voyage after her next New York crossing.

HEARMAYVIEW PLANS MONDAY

City Council's discussion of improvements at the City Home and Hospital at Mayview has been postponed until Monday.

The action was taken yesterday when Dr. J. J. Buchanan, representing the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League, said he would have a complete plan ready for submission at that time.

Dr. Buchanan previously outlined a proposal by which, he said, all pressing needs for the next six months at Mayview could be met by an expenditure of about $125,000. Welfare Director Southard Hay has been proposing an extensive building and improvement program with an estimated cost of about one and one-half million dollars.

OBSCURE CLERK PUT ON SPOT

CHICAGO, June 22.—(AP.)—Police decided today that Robert Berg, 24, obscure government clerk, was put on the spot either by a rival in love or gangland avengers who mistook him for Jerome Factor.

Berg was shot down yesterday by two gunmen who opened fire on him in a crowded Loop restaurant. He is in a critical condition.

As he fell to the floor, a letter fluttered from the pages of a novel he had been reading. It read in part:

"If I don't see you before, I will see you at 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Please have all your work done so we can elope. I love you with all my heart."

There was no signature.

The second theory was that he might have been mistaken for the son of John Factor, international speculator in jail awaiting extradition to England to face stock fraud charges.

Berg resembles Jerome Factor, who frequents the club which houses the restaurant. Authorities said gang revenge might have been intended against the elder Factor, whose testimony in a recent case sent his kidnapers to prison for 99-year terms.

THEATER BOMB PROBER ASKED

Arguments on Sigmund Gorskey's application for appointment as a private detective for the Theater Owners' Association of Western Pennsylvania to investigate theater bombings were taken under advisement today by Judge W. Heber Dithrich in Quarter Sessions Court.

John R. Frankel, counsel for the American Federation of Labor, opposed the appointment on grounds it would "open the door" for a system "worse than the private police of the iron and steel industry."

Gorskey is a former city patrolman. He was represented by Attorney Edward G. Coll. O. K. Eaton appeared as counsel for the theater association.

Judge Dithrich said he would investigate to see whether the city Police Department was equipped to handle theater bombing investigations.

Italy Holds 400 In War on Mafia

REGGIO, Calabria, Italy, June 22.—(AP.)—About 400 persons have been arrested in a determined effort by the government to stamp out a mainland Mafia organization similar to that which operated in Sicily, it was announced today.

The groups of outlaws had headquarters in Cadeto, Gallina, Armo and Pellaro, all towns on the "sole" of the Italian peninsula, police said.

Weather Conditions

The low, that was centered over the lake region yesterday morning and which caused the thunderstorms over this section yesterday and last night, is now centered off the New England coast. Another low is centered over Saskatchewan and extends down over the plains states to a center over New Mexico. It caused light to moderately heavy thunderstorms over the plains states yesterday and last night and it is raining this morning at scattered places. The heaviest rain reported is 3.28 inches, at Evansville, Ind. Temperature changes since yesterday were slight and there were no extremely high maximum temperatures yesterday except in Oklahoma and Texas, where the temperature ranged from 100 to 104 degrees.

PILOT CLEARED IN SHIPWRECK

KOPERVIK, KARMOY ISLAND, Norway, June 22.—(AP.)—Officers of the German liner Dresden testified at a maritime inquiry into the liner's loss today that they had no charge to prefer against the pilot who apparently by misunderstanding took the vessel into waters for which he had no pilot's certificate.

The Norwegian pilot, named Jacobsen, however, was well acquainted with the fjord where the liner rammed into a rock Wednesday night with 1,000 vacationing Nazis aboard.

Capt. Wilhelm Petermoeller, of the Dresden, said:

"This is my first mishap and I cannot understand how it happened.

"I reproach myself for not being on the bridge before the accident, but I had been on continuous duty for 49 hours because of mist and bad weather and intended to take a few hours of very necessary rest when we reached clear, quiet waters."

While the court heard evidence, the disconsolate passengers of the Dresden made the best of their enforced presence here. They were scantily clad as they waited a boat to take them back to Germany. Many of the women still wore lifebelts and some continued to weep hysterically. A recheck of the death list revealed only two women lost their lives in the wreck Wednesday night.

CIVIL SERVICE AIDES ASKED

The Civil Service Commission wants City Council to give it $3,908 for additional employes—but won't tell how they'll be employed.

Asked for what specific positions new employes were required, Commissioner F. W. Miner informed reporters yesterday:

"I don't think we care to say."

Commissioners Miner and W. O. Boyer voted down Commission Chairman Julia M. Doyle when she urged publication of the proposed new positions.

The commission's total request of Council, including supplies, was for $4,783 beyond present budget appropriations. Necessity of building up records neglected by the old board was cited as occasioning the new expense.

SYNOD SHIFTS MACHEN FEUD

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 22.—(AP.)—The burden for any further action in the fundamentalist-modernist controversy over Dr. J. Gresham Machen has been shifted to the New Brunswick (N. J.) presbytery by the Pennsylvania Synod of the Presbyterian Church.

The controversy arose when Dr. Machen, staunch fundamentalist, sought membership in the presbytery at Philadelphia, where he has established the Westminster Theological Seminary with an enrollment of about 100 students.

A minority group opposed the application on grounds that Dr. Machen has not been loyal to his ordination vows. It was carried to the synod.

The synod postponed action for a year, yesterday, after a ruling that Dr. Machen still remains a member of the New Jersey presbytery, and any action to oust him from the church must be taken there.

NEW DEAL GAINS IN POLL

NEW YORK, June 22.—A three per cent increase in the number of persons voting approval of President Roosevelt and the New Deal is recorded in the tabulation of the Literary Digest's poll on Roosevelt policies published in this week's issue of the magazine.

Of a total of 1,169,827 ballots tabulated, 727,700, or 62.21 per cent, are in favor of the New Deal, against 442,127 in opposition.

Clergymen voted 8,064 to 6,401 for the New Deal; businessmen, 37,626 to 31,892, and physicians, 20,367 to 15,711.

Among the states, only Vermont dissents, opponents holding a margin of 2.38 per cent.

The Pennsylvania vote shows 59,248 for and 33,755 against.

State Bar Group Sees 'Natioal Police'

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Bar Association's committee on federal law professes to see in laws enacted by the recent Congress a transfer to the federal government of substantially the entire police power of the states.

In a report to be submitted to the fortieth convention of the bar association at Wernersville, June 27-29, the committee said yesterday it viewed "new deal" legislation as "a complete change in the theory of our government."

Judge George V. Moore announced the marriage to the jurors in his court yesterday, adding:

"I think Mr. Ague deserves congratulations."

Unanimous in agreement, the jury filed past the new benedict, shook his hand and wished him wedded bliss.

Ague is one of the court's most popular attaches, known for his good nature and youthfulness. He has long been a resident of Sewickley. His bride, Mrs. Frances Weber, formerly lived at 41 High street, Etna.

MISS PEARL POTTER, of Providence, R. I., disappeared from the steamer City of Lowell. This note was found:

"I have no one living and I am not a Christian and the physical body is ill, and that is the only thing that counts."

Alexander Pope did not agree with her about the physical body when he sat writing his "essay on man," after his nurse had sewn around his body the heavy canvas jacket that enabled him to sit upright.

Epictetus, a slave, crippled by the cruelty of his master, knew that the "physical body" amounted to little. The same was true of Milton writing when blind, Beethoven, composing his magnificent Ninth Symphony when stone deaf, or the courageous Cranmer, who signed a recantation of his religious belief, withdrew that recantation, and burned alive, first held in the fire, "steadfastly exposing it to the flames," the hand with which he had signed the recantation says: "This hand, this wicked hand, hath offended."

The one thing that is NOT important is the physical body. That is merely a machine for carrying the spirit around, and enabling it to do what it has to do.

GERMANY ABOLISHES 40-hour week that was based on lack of employment, and desire to "divide jobs." The government announcement says that restriction of working hours is unnecessary, because of increased employment "in some lines there is a shortage of skilled labor."

We have not managed so well here.

DESPITE ALL efforts at saving, New York City's government finds that it will have to spend about six hundred million dollars in 1935, one hundred millions more than the United States government used to spend for the entire nation a little before the big war.

Practically all the real estate in New York City is assessed and taxed for at least 30 per cent more than the price for which it could be sold. How long that can last, time will tell.

U. S. Rum Bottle Curb Hints Price Reduction

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(AP.)—By decreeing that every liquor bottle must bear indestructible marks of identification, Secretary Morgenthau hoped today to cut the price of legal liquor and boost federal revenue.

After July 1, the names or symbols of manufacturers and distiller must be blown into the glass of each bottle. To refill it will be forbidden, just as refilling tobacco containers is subject to heavy punishment.

Secretary Morgenthau called the announcement "the most serious blow struck at the bootlegger" since repeal. It was made under a recent resolution of Congress.

Morgenthau had discovered that bootleggers were buying second-hand bottles and palming huge supplies of illicit liquor off on the public as legal stuff. One company making a well-known rum complained that 90 per cent of the liquor distributed under its name was illicit.

Bottles will be manufactured under license and supervision, Morgenthau hoped the step would increase legitimate sales so much that prices would come down. He also foresaw increase in tax collections.

GIRL WASHED ASHORE IN SUICIDE PACT KILLS SELF WITH GUN

JOINS MOTHER WHO SWAM TO DEATH

Daughter Finds Pistol Hidden in Sock; News Kept Secret

DES MOINES, Ia., June 22.—(AP.)—The girl who tried to die with her mother, only to wash ashore from Lake Michigan tied to her mother's lifeless body, has completed her part of their suicide pact.

A pistol, which she found hidden in a sock, was the means used by 22-year-old Margaret Bott.

Even with that she faced the possibility of a second failure. She fired a bullet into her stomach Wednesday and told a doctor:

"I thought I could find my heart, but I guess I didn't."

The end came yesterday. Not until then did news of the shooting become public.

Miss Bott had found the hidden pistol in the home of her uncle, Dr. W. W. Pearson.

FEAR OF SEPARATION

She shot herself a week from the day she and her 63-year-old mother, Mrs. Alice King Bott, of Highland Park, Mich., had tied themselves together and swam into Lake Michigan to die. The waves washed the girl and her dead mother ashore, where they were found by a newsboy.

Fear of separation by death had led them to plunge into the lake. Miss Bott had undergone several mastoid operations, and physicians said another was necessary.

As soon as the girl, a talented artist, educated in a private school at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., had recovered from the shock, she was taken to Des Moines by Dr. and Mrs. Pearson.

'JOINS MOTHER'

The girl was quoted as saying:

"I'm going to join my mother."

But she was subsequently reported to have promised her father, Rhea Bott, of New York, that she would not carry out the threat. Bott, who had been estranged from his wife, arrived at the Pearson home last Tuesday.

Miss Bott found the weapon in Dr. Pearson's bureau and shot herself after getting alone on the pretext that she wished to take a nap.

Dr. C. B. Luginbuhl, Des Moines surgeon, who was summoned by Mrs. Pearson, said the girl made no statement concerning the reason for her act.

BOY BELIEVED CAPTIVE OF GIRL GANG

Mystery Phone Call Informs Brother 'Elaine' Has Kin

NEW YORK, June 22.—(AP.)—Police today set 40 on a strange hunt—a hunt for a 17-year-old youth supposedly being held captive by "Elaine" and three other women.

The police teletype alarm directed sleuths to search Manhattan's West Side hotels for the youth and his captors.

The missing youth is Jack Tuffman, of Brooklyn, who disappeared from his home on April 28. His brother, David, requested the Missing Persons Bureau to begin the search after receiving mysterious telephone calls from a woman who told him Jack was being held captive in a hotel by "Elaine" and three companions.

He had received the first call early Wednesday morning. David told police, but paid no attention to it, believing his informant to be a crank.

A second message reached him yesterday morning, he said, quoting the woman as saying:

"Aren't you going to do anything about your brother? Elaine has got him a prisoner."

She telephoned David again this morning, repeating her query.

HITLER 'PLOT' RUMOR DENIED

BERLIN, June 22.—(AP.)—Nazi agents swept swiftly through Germany today tracking down and spiking rumors that an attempt had been made to assassinate Adolf Hitler.

So insistent were the reports that the government press department took cognizance of them by issuing a denial.

A sifting of the rumors disclosed one fact. Somebody took a pot-shot at an automobile en route to funeral services Wednesday for Frau Karin Goering, wife of the Premier of Prussia and government minister.

The bullet was not fired on the road Hitler traveled to the funeral and apparently was not intended for him or any other high official.

Said a Press Department official to allay alarms:

"I saw him (Hitler) myself as he alighted from his car upon returning from Neudeck."

Hitler had been to Neudeck for an important conference with President Von Hindenburg.

KIN OF RABIES VICTIM TREATED

Twenty-three relatives and neighbors of a Coraopolis woman, who died from hydrophobia, will receive the second of a series of 14 treatments against possible rabies infection next week.

The victim was Mrs. Laura Bartley, 37, of Thorn Run road, the mother of six small children. She had been bitten slightly by a pet puppy she was feeding.

Mrs. Levi Meyers, a sister-in-law of the dead woman, said Mrs. Bartley was attempting to feed the dog. It refused to eat, so she forced his mouth open with her fingers, receiving a slight scratch from her pet's teeth.

Mrs. Bartley laughed about the incident, Mrs. Meyers said, and jokingly asked:

"What if the dog is mad?"

Three days later she died.

Among those being treated by Dr. H. B. Speer, of 1100 Main street, Coraopolis, against the infection, were I. W. Newberg, a brother-in-law of the Bartleys; his wife and five children; Mrs. Edward Thompson, a neighbor, and her three children; Mr. and Mrs. George Meyers, other relatives of the Bartleys; Ben Wehner and the Bartley's six children.

MEAT PACKER DIES BY GUN

CHICAGO, June 22.—(AP.)—Fred James Reynolds, vice president of Armour & Co., in charge of purchasing, was found fatally wounded in the bathroom of his Glencoe home today.

He died at Highland Park Hospital a few minutes later.

Reynolds was 53. His wife, Margaret, found him prostrate. Police said he apparently had taken his own life.

Officials of the packing firm said Reynolds had suffered a nervous breakdown some time ago. He had been an employe for more than 30 years.

Harvard's Hanfy Jeered By Girls in Handcuffs

Target Misses Show But Foes of Nazi Wreck Exercises

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 22.—(AP.)—Anti-Nazi demonstrations directed at Dr. Ernest (Hanfy) Hanfstaengl, Hitler aide who has been attending his class reunion at Harvard University, disrupted a Harvard alumni meeting late yesterday and blocked traffic in Harvard Square, but missed their mark entirely since Dr. Hanfstaengl was 30 miles away at the time.

Nine youthful demonstrators, three of them women, were arrested on charges of disturbing the peace while Dr. Hanfstaengl was spending the day as the guest of a classmate, Louis Aggassiz Shaw, at Beverly Farms, enjoying a swim.

The disturbances began during the annual alumni exercises in the Harvard yard. As E. K. Rand, treasure of the class of 1909, was about to present President James B. Conant with a check for $100,000, traditional gift of 25-year classes to the university, two young women arose and began to scream, "Down with Hitler!" "Down with Hanfstaegl!" "Free Thaelmann!"

Efforts to escort the women failed when it was discovered they had handcuffed themselves to the rail surrounding the seats. Police had to take down part of the bleachers before they could remove the pair.

The second outbreak occurred when Charles McBride, 21, of Cambridge, chained himself to an iron fence beside Lehman Hall and shouted imprecations against the Hitler government. Police cut the youth's fetters and arrested him.

ACCUSED COACH REGAINS POISE

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 22.—Authorities today devoted their attention to tightening their case around George Bartholomew, Washington and Jefferson College physical instructor, held in the county jail on a charge of murder in connection with the death of George Thomas Manis, 23-year-old female impersonator.

Meanwhile Bartholomew rallied from the almost hysterical state which had marked his demeanor since his arrest, and today he appeared more normal in his cell.

NORMA BEGINS DEFENSE IN DEATH CASE

Millen Duped Her, Sleuth Says Girl Told Him

DEDHAM, Mass., June 22.—(AP.)—The government rested in the trial of Norma Millen today after State Detective John Stokes had told of her arrest and interrogation in New York when she cried and continually called for her dad.

When District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing announced that he had completed his presentation, Norma's attorney, George A. Douglas, began his opening address to the jury.

Norma, comely bride of a convicted slayer, whose honeymoon wound up in misfortune, is on trial in Dedham Superior Court charged with being an accessory after the fact of double murder and robbery in connection with the holdup of the Needham Trust Company in which two policemen were slain. Her husband Morton Millen, his brother Irving, and Abraham Faber were convicted of the slaying of one of the policemen on June 8 and they now await sentence.

TELLS OF ARREST

Stokes testified that when Norma was arrested in New York she was extremely nervous, cried bitterly and asked that her father, a former minister, be summoned from Boston.

He said she told him at that time that she knew her husband and his brother had guns in their possession, but that she believed they were for protection from "bandits" she had been told were following them.

Douglas strode in front of the jury box as he told of the early life of Norma, who, he said, he would send to the stand today.

He said that while at Nantasket Beach with her mother, Norma, "as young as she was, went to a dance and there met Murton.

"The courtship was rapid. Murt came to see her time after time. They met on Labor Day and were married on November 12. She did not have the advice of her father or mother."

BLAMES FEAR

"Witnesses will testify to her mentality. How her mind is much younger than that of a girl of 18 years. Up until the time she was 6 years old she never walked, she lay in a children's hospital for a year and a half or two years. Even today, her legs are not what a normal girl's are."

Eyes in the courtroom turned to the slender defendant who sat in the center of the courtroom.

Douglas said both the father and mother would testify for Norma. He said the mother would say that Norma feared her husband.

BEATS, SHOOTS WIFE TO DEATH

MIDDLETOWN, O., June 22.—(AP.)—Sidney B. Rectanus, 46, former vice president of the American Rolling Mills Company, today beat and shot to death his wife, Alma, 42, shot and wounded two other members of his family, and then killed himself.

Wounded were his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elesa Rathman, 76, shot in the neck, condition said to be serious; and a daughter, Shirley, 12, wounded in the right side, condition fair.

Two other children, a daughter, Jane, 18, and a son, Daniel, 16, said they were struck by their father in his rampage and fled in terror from the house.

The daughter, Shirley, despite her wound, was making her way to the garden of their home when police reached the scene.

Coroner Cook ascribed the tragedy to temporary insanity.

SLAYER IN FEAR ON EVE OF GAS

CANON CITY, Col., June 22.—(AP.)—William Cody Kelley, condemned to be the first victim of the Colorado Penitentiary's lethal gas chamber, trembled today as he awaited sunset and death.

Kelley was convicted of the murder of Russell Browning, Delta (Col.) rancher-recluse, in a robbery which got him only two cheap pistols.

Hysterical with fear Wednesday, the prisoner regained his composure somewhat yesterday.

He told Warden Roy Best and two clergymen:

"If I've got to die, I might as well die like a man."

His only requests, the warden said, have been for cigarets and for the companionship of the clergymen.

Gov. Ed. Johnson has notified the condemned man he will not intervene.

Several animals have been put to death in the gas chamber to test the apparatus. Warden Best said the machinery is working perfectly.

East End Man Dies Near Church Altar

Seventy-year-old James P. McArdle, of 6333 Waldron street, collapsed near the altar in St. Philomena's Catholic Church, Beechwood boulevard, this morning and died in the arms of the pastor, the Rev. Father George A. Conway.

McArdle's death was attributed to a heart attack. He was a retired employee of the Carnegie Steel Company, having worked with that company for 40 years.

WALES, 40, BUSY WITH DRIVE ON SLUMS

Prince to Observe Birthday Quietly Tomorrow

LONDON, June 22.—(AP.)—He doesn't like it, but the Prince of Wales is 40 years old tomorrow.

Busier than ever and graver of mien, the heir to the throne of the British Empire does not get much relaxation these days. Content with his modest bachelor apartments at St. James' Palace and his country place at Sunningdale, he has devoted himself in recent months to the campaign for removing slums throughout the British Isles.

Society gets little chance nowadays to couple the name of the world's most eligible bachelor with some stately princess or lovely lady of the realm. His Royal Highness works hard at his job.

SHUNS ROYAL BOX

He took time off this week to attend the Royal Ascot race meeting with the King and Queen, and the other night he slipped away to the military tattoo which has been drawing tens of thousands a night. On that occasion he characteristically declined to enter the royal box, and few knew of his presence.

His empire missions which earned him the title of the world's best traveling salesman" have been taken over by his younger brothers—the Duke of York, Prince Henry and Prince George.

The Prince appears to be in deadly earnest about the necessity for clearing up the slums, a gigantic program on which an appreciable start has already been made.

He launched the campaign personally two years ago. He has spent months in many forgotten corners of the "right little isle," getting first-hand information of the plight of the workless, spreading a much-welcomed word of cheer, encouraging every organization established to alleviate distress. He recently said:

"I have been appalled that such conditions can exist in a civilized country such as ours."

STRIVES FOR HARMONY

The Prince very simply summed up his aspirations on that occasion:

"As far as my part is concerned, many paths in life are closed to me. Much that I would like to do I cannot.

"But I have tried to bring more closely together the people of the empire; to bring more closely together the English-speaking peoples, and further our interests abroad. I have had no failures, I know, but in these years with few precedents to guide us, to have no failure is to have attempted nothing."

The Prince's birth at White Lodge, in Richmond Park, June 23, 1894, was on a Saturday. It coincided with the grim weekend in which the French President, Carnot, was assassinated.

There will be no special celebrations of the anniversary tomorrow. But the royal postoffice will be deluged with congratulations official and personal, from every part of the world. They will be delivered to the bachelor apartments, though they might have gone to stately Marlborough House, the residence of his father and grandfather when they held the same title. The Prince will not use it.

Exiled Nazi Chief Hurt in Plane Crash

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, Germany, June 22.—(AP.)—Eduard Frauenfeld, the exiled leader of the Vienna section of the Austrian Nazi party, was slightly injured in the crash of a Lufthansa air liner today in which the pilot was killed.

The co-pilot and four other passengers besides Frauenfeld were injured to minor degrees.

WILLS $40 RENT BILL TO WIFE

If his wife wants to live in their home at 1002 Vance avenue, Coraopolis, more than a year after his death, she must pay $40 a month rent, according to the will of McClelland Inskipt, filed for probate today.

Bequeathing the premises in the rear of the dwelling at 845 Seventh avenue, Coraopolis, to his wife, Priscilla, the husband gives her permission to live one year at the Vance avenue home free of rent.

The will leaves the balance of the $10,775 estate to his four children.

Two Presbyterian organizations will share in the $14,000 estate of Mrs. Margaret J. Foster, of Bridgeville, according to her will, filed for probate today. The Presbyterian Church of Bridgeville is bequeathed $1,000, and the same amount is left the Presbyterian Hospital of Pittsburgh. The balance of the estate is divided among friends and relatives.

WOMAN SLAIN, MATE SEIZED

FARRELL, Pa., June 22.—(AP.)—A volley of five shots, fired from the darkness, killed pretty Mrs. Ida Jemme, 21-year-old waitress, as she entered the front door of her parents' home early today.

A few hours later police arrested her estranged husband, Peter Jemme, 37, in his barber shop, but he denied knowledge of the shooting. Jemme said he had spent the night at the home of a friend, Dominic Mitchell, who also was detained as a witness.

Mrs. Jemme, mother of a 6-year-old child, returned home about 1:30 a. m., police said. The slayer had hidden himself inside the house, the officers said, and fired the shots as she opened the door.

HOUSE FALLS ON CHILDREN

CHICAGO, June 22.—(AP.)—At least six children were buried, two of them seriously injured, when an old frame house in which they were playing collapsed today.

Five fire department squads rushed to the rescue and dug into the snarl of debris in search of the victims.

Six were taken from the wreckage within an hour and treated at a hospital.

Hundreds of other children and several frantic mothers swarmed around the ruins. George Wieczorek, 10, and Stanley Bezonek, 12, suffered fractured bones.

The children were playing on the second floor of the ramshackle structure when ot toppled. The roof fell in on the trapped youngsters. Scarcely a timber remained upright. Rain fell heavily as the rescuers plied through the tangle.

'Direct Action' Aimed Against Naughty Films

CINCINNATI, June 22.—(AP.)—A program of "direct and aggressive action," to safeguard the "moral well-being" of the people from salacious movies, will be undertaken at the instigation of the committee on motion pictures of the Roman Catholic bishops of America.

After meeting with representatives of the movie industry and receiving assurances that the industry is making strenuous efforts of its own, the committee announced that the campaign of the Legion of Decency will be expanded "to every town and city in the United States."

The legion, a Catholic organization, has as its aim the elimination of undesirable movies, and more than a million persons of many denominations are said to have subscribed to its pledge.

A national council of priests to direct the work was approved at the conference.

The bishop said they have "no wish to harm or destroy the motion picture business," but were moved to action by the "evil character of portions of many motion pictures, and the low standards of some motion pictures."

WILLIAM M. BARTLEY AND HIS CHILDREN . . . . . THEIR MOTHER WAS SCRATCHED, DIED

The Bartleys, the family of the woman who died of hydrophobia in Coraopolis, bringing quarantine for several dogs, treatments for nearly a score of people who have come in contact with dogs of the family of seven puppies from one litter. No one else seems to be affected by contact with any of the animals. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

MISSING BRIDE'S MATE BLOCKED IN FLIGHT

answering to descriptions cabled here by the New York police.

They also found dozens of love letters written by Poderjay to Mme. Ferrand while he was in New York, describing his affair with Miss Tufverson.

GETAWAY FOILED

Meanwhile, police advanced the theory that Poderjay and his short-haired, mannish-looking wife, Mme. Ferrand, were about to escape to the legendary "Manless Mountain" near his birthplace in Slovenia where the ancient custom which gave it its name is still practiced, when they were arrested, according to the latest theory advanced by the Viennese police.

The Jugo-Slavian, who, it now develops, was a policeman instead of an army officer in his native country, was arrested at the request of the New York police who were looking for Miss Agnes Tufverson, New York public utilities lawyer, whom he had married there bigamously and who had disappeared directly after.

Had they not arrested him promptly, according to one theory of the Viennese police, Poderjay would have fled with Susanne to the "Manless Mountain," and would have donned women's clothes to live in this paradise of women who have little use for husbands or suitors and are visited by them there only one week in the year. No one, the police said, would find him in so seldom visited a spot. He could hide out for months.

Fortunately for the continued peaceful existence of the gentle inhabitants of the mountain, the police arrested the international Don Juan before he could mingle with them dressed in the brightly colored multi-petticoated peasant costumes which they wear.

The polite exchange of questions and answers between the police and their now-noted prisoner continued today without further result. Any ideas that the medieval methods of "come rack, come rope" still persist in Central Europe are quickly dispelled by this case.

Poderjay is always suave and calm. He seems absolutely confident that the police will be able "to get nothing on him" despite the many conflicting stories he has told.

Mme. Ferrand, however, goes into tantrums and hysterics. Police at first were hopeful that these would lead her to divulge something, but they now have little expectation in this direction.

RUSE FAILS

Hoping that emotion might crack Poderjay's insolent defiance the police staged a dramatic prison love scene between them.

Wearing the red dress and black gloves belonging to Miss Tufverson, Sausanne entered the room and threw her arms around her husband's neck, screaming:

"Ivan, I love you. Nothing will ever part us."

Poderjay pushed her aside and sneered at the jailors.

Police finally led the sobbing woman back to her cell and admitted their ruse was a failure.

Mystery Blonde Linked In Missing Bride Case

NEW YORK, June 22.—(AP.)—A mysterious blonde was inserted by police today in the chronicle of Ivan Poderjay's life and loves.

Capt. John H. Ayres, of the Missing Persons Bureau, said that police here believed that Miss Agnes Tufverson, the brilliant corporation lawyer who disappeared shortly after she was married to Poderjay, was in this country—alive or dead.

Of the blonde woman, police had little to say. They did not identify her, but she had visited Poderjay at his Manhattan apartment, they said, representing herself as his sister-in-law.

The blonde is the third woman, in addition to Miss Tufverson, which authorities have mentioned in their search for the complete story of Poderjay's activities in this country.

The others are Miss Helen Vogel, concert violinist who discouraged the soldier of fortune's attentions by calling him a "male vamp," and a woman, unidentified, who police believe became acquainted with him when he went to Stamford, Conn., last winter to sell a patented lock.

C. OF C. NOTES FARM MARKET

An untapped source of sales for Pittsburgh businessmen is pointed out in the latest bulletin released by the information department of the Chamber of Commerce.

According to its statistics, there are 3,761 farms in the Pittsburgh district without automobiles, 15,271 without telephones, 14,741 without radios, 19,521 without bathroom facilities and 18,941 without gas engines.

The information is based on reports of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and figures include Allegheny County and six surrounding counties.

JEWELRY SOLD AT HIGH FIGURE

Merchandise of the bankrupt Heeren Brothers Company, Eighth street and Penn avenue, jewelry concern, sold at public auction by R. H. Coleman, trustee, brought $44,300. The successful bidder was Weisenthal & Cohen, of Steubenville, O. The jewelry firm, which went into voluntary bankruptcy April 28, was one of the oldest jewelry concerns in Pittsburgh, established in 1863.

Among the 100 prospective purchasers at the sale, held in a courtroom of the Federal District Court, were many from New York, Chicago, Boston, Cleveland, Detroit, Memphis and other cities. The goods sold, with an appraised value of $54,400, consisted of watch and jewelry supplies, jewelry goods, diamonds, clocks, statuary, art and miscellaneous stock.

When the bid reached the top mark Coleman favored continuing the auction for possible higher bid, but a committee of creditors informed him they were satisfied with the amount realized.

WIFE DESERTS BROWN GUNMAN

International News Service.

MT. HOLLY, N. J., June 22.—A "woman scorned" was today credited with having caused the sudden end of the murder trial of Adam Szewczak who was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor in the state penitentiary at Trenton for the slaying of Bradway Brown, wealthy and socially prominent young Philadelphia printing company executive.

The woman, it was said, is the 25-year-old trigger man's wife, Mrs. Margaret Szewczak, whose jealous rage was reported to have been aroused when, while she was talking to her husband in his Burlington County jail cell, another woman came in to visit the prisoner.

Angered, Mrs. Szewczak, it was reported, walked out of the cell, announcing her refusal to take the stand as an "alibi witness." It was then that Szewczak decided to change his plea of not guilty to one of contendre.

Son of Man Jailed Here Killed by Gun

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 22.—Pete Arcurio, 8, of Creekside, was dead today the result of a bullet wound through his heart, suffered shortly before midnight when a revolver was accidentally discharged. Friends of the family were seeking a court order to have the boy's father released from the Allegheny County Workhouse that he might attend the funeral. The father was sentenced several weeks ago for an auto theft. Police said the boy was playing with the weapon in bed.

Truck Driver Killed In Gas Tank Blast

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 22.—Paul McFadden, 39, Bethesda (O.) truck driver, was fatally burned today when gasoline exploded as his truck overturned on the Greensburg-West Newton road.

Head of Looted Bank Once Aided Suspect

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., June 22.—The president of the First National Bank of Avonmore, robbed of $10,000 last month, was instrumental in once freeing from the county workhouse a suspect in the robbery being held by state police, it was revealed here today.

Vance Carter, 30, of Hancock avenue, Vandergrift, was paroled from the workhouse by Judge Charles D. Copeland in January, 1933, after his wife, Mary Shaffer Carter, 29, had circulated a petition, seeking signatures of those who would aid in her fight to free her husband. One of the signers was Porter Sturgeon, president of the rifled bank.

State police, who seized Carter several weeks after the bank holdup last month, only to release him, arrested him again Tuesday and charged him with being an accessory before the fact.

His wife, charged with being accessory after the fact, was released by Justice of the Peace James Walton, of Greensburg, on $500 bond.

State police believe Carter was the driver of the car in which the two bandits who looted the bank escaped after the robbery.

Traveling Band 'Tariff' Debated

CLEVELAND, June 22.—(AP.)—A compromise plan for settlement of the much debated problem of surcharges for the "traveling band" was considered today at the national convention of the American Federation of Musicians.

This class of orbanization includes the better known dance bands of the country. The plan was reported out by a special committe, and provides for a surcharge of 15 per cent above the scale of the local musicians' union.

GIRL'S 'UNDYING LOVE' FREES 'COUNT'

NEW YORK, June 22.—(AP.)—The persistent avowal of her love for Childe de Rohan D'Harcourt by 18-year-old Louise Krist brought his release yesterday in West Side Court.

The self-styled "count" had been held on suspicion of seduction in connection with his "elopement" with the girl several days ago, but when she steadfastly refused to sign a complaint against him and clung to her declaration of love for D'Harcourt Magistrate William A. Farrell ordered his release.

The girl told Magistrate Farrell that as soon as she was out of her predicament as an alleged wayward child she intends to become D'Harcourt's wife. She was brought to the court from the Florence Critterdon Home where she had been detained since she and the "Count" were taaken into custody a week ago. When D'Harcourt met her in the corridor on his way to the court, he kissed her hand.

After his release, the "Count" was asked where he was going. He said:

"I don't know. I have only three cents to my name."

The release was ordered over the objections of Mrs. Charles A. Oberwager, wife of the counsel for Miss Krist's parents. She said she had appeared for her husband because he is in Washington searching Department of Justice files in an effort to prove that D'Harcourt was an alien criminal subject to deportation.

MARY HAY ASKS NEW DIVORCE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—(AP.)—Mary Hay, Broadway dancer and former wife of Richard Barthelmess, screen actor, has filed divorce proceedings here under the name of Mary Bath, against Vivian Bath, British rubber merchant, it was disclosed here.

The suit was filed May 18. The dancer charged desertion and wilful failure to provide. She asked custody of a 6-year-old daughter, Anne.

Mary Hay married Barthelmess in New York June 18, 1920, and they were divorced in Paris in 1926. A daughter, Mary Hay Barthelmess, was born to that union.

In 1927 the dancer eloped to Greenwich, Conn., from New York to wed Bath, and the two went to the Orient on their honeymoon.

Miss Hay is the author of two Broadway shows, one of which, "She's No Lady," had a successful run.

TRUCKMEN CITE DRIVERS FOR SAFETY GAIN

Mister Average Truckdriver of today is a much more agreeable and courteous fellow than the rough, "I can't be wrong" driver of yesterday, in the general opinion of members of the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association, which is holding its first convention here.

The convention, which started yesterday in the Hotel William Penn, will continue its session until tomorrow noon.

TRAINED FOR JOB

R. J. Benkart, president of the Allegheny County chapter, who operates 100 trucks in the district, says:

"The truck driver on the average used to be a fellow who said, 'Make him get over. I won't.'

"He's still the same fellow at heart, but as a result of safety and courtesy campaigns, he's an agreeable man with a smile and a signal to you to pass if you want to go ahead."

H. A. Parsons, operator of 18 trucks in Bradford, Pa., said:

"The truck driver of today on the average is a very considerate man, who has studied the situation and is trained for his job.

W. A. Sutherland, general manager of thhe association, attributes the change in truck drivers partly to the depression. He declared:

"We get a higher type of truck driver today. And he's a specialist. He knows he's got a lot of responsibility with expensive equipment and the safety devices that a railroad has must be supplanted by alert, clear thinking on his part."

CITES PROGRESS

Truck drivers are better educated and more experienced men, said Harry J. Ashcraft, of Monongahela, operator of 10 heavy trucks. He stated:

"I tell my men we can fix up the equipment if they have to ditch it to avoid an accident, but we can't patch up broken bones of a man in the other car."

M. C. Horine, sales manager of the Mack Truck Company, believes "a great deal of progress must be made" among truck drivers. Horine and John M. Orr, general manager of Equitable Auto Company, were the main speakers at today's technical session of the convention.

A last-minute rush of applicants in Allegheny County has caused an extension to next Thursday for registration of operators under the National Recovery Act here, Benjamin G. Eynon, secretary-treasurer of the State Code Authority, announced from Philadelphia. In all other parts of the state except in Philadelphia, thme deadline for registration is tomorrow, he said.

State Grand Army Closes Convention

READING, Pa., June 22.—(AP.)—The Sons of Veterans Reserve, one of the groups attending the sixty-eighth convention of the Grand Army of the Republic and allied organizations, alone remains in session today. The convention proper closed last night with a military ball attended by 1,500.

The G. A. R., at its final session, voted to refer to the national convention at Rochester, N. Y., in August, a proposal that the Sons of Union Veterans be made the legal successors of the Army.

Car Window Breaks, Two Cut By Glass

Melvin J. Keast, 34, of 7159 Thomas boulevard, suffered a laceration on the left hand when he attempted to raise a window for a woman passenger on a Hamilton avenue street car at Fifth avenue and Wood street last night, police reported. Keast's hand was cut when the glass shattered. He was treated at Allegheny General Hospital. Mrs. M. Clarke, of 1120 Swissvale avenue, a passenger, said that particles of the glass lodged in her right eye, according to the police report.

Seek Funds to Aid Polish War Veterans

Care and medical service for Polish veterans wounded in the World War will be provided through funds obtained from the fourth annual tag day to be sponsored by the Central Council of Polish Organizations tomorrow. According to Dr. F. B. Starzynski, American Poles who were wounded in battle receive no financial aid from either the American or the Polish governments.

Boy, 12, Killed By Shifting Engine

Twelve-year-old Joseph Hart, of 704 Washington street, Braddock, was killed last night when he was struck by a shifting engine at the Seventh street crossing of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, according to the coroner's report. The boy was crossing the tracks when the engine struck him.

DEAD DILLINGER MAY BAN PRIZE

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—John Dillinger, No. 1 public enemy, will have a federal price on his head within a few days, the Department of Justice announced.

A list of public enemies is being compiled for publication shortly, Attorney General Cummings disclosed.

The states of Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota have already posted $5,000 for Dillinger's capture—dead or alive. Prior to this joint action, Dillinger was "worth" only $25 as a parole violator.

The justice department is uncertain whether it may pay anything for Dillinger dead, committee conferees having struck the phrase "dead or alive" out of the Patman bill appropriating a total of $25,000 rewards on public enemies.

BERGDOLL HOPE OF PARDON GONE

WEINSBERG, Germany, June 22.—(AP.)—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, American draft evader, said today he had given up all hope of securing a pardon from the present administration. He said:

"One fails to understand the Americanism of the present administration, when one considers they have pardoned anarchists and Communists and then tried to make an example of a harmless person like myself.

"Why discriminate against me when I was, after all, only one of the World War's several hundred thousand draft dodgers?"

Bergdoll applied to President Roosevelt the past spring for clemency, offering to surrender to a civil court but not to a military court-martial.

Norwegians Mark Colony Centennial

NORWAY, Ill., June 22.—(AP.)—With thousands of Norwegians from all parts of the country in attendance, the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the first Norwegian settlement in the United States opened today.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., June 22.—(INS.)—Thomas K. Baker, 68, who was born in the same house at Staunton, Va., as the late President Woodrow Wilson, was dead here today following a short illness.

Baker was owner of the Baker Importing Company of New York and Minneapolis, Minn.

INSURANCE MEN HEAR SCHNADER

SCHWENKSVILLE, June 22.—(AP.)—Attorney General William A. Schnader, Republican nominee for Governor, says the bulk of Pennsylvania's insurance business should go to Pennsylvania companies.

He told delegates to the twenty-eighth convention of the State Association of Mutual Fire Insurance Companies yesterday that "in the main, I would like to see Pennsylvania companies write Pennsylvania business, with the surplus going to authorized foreign companies, for, as you understand, we cannot build a wall around Pennsylvania."

Earlier in the day the convention re-elected officers and concluded its business sessions. Wilmer Chow, Harrisburg, is president.

ARMY AIR CADET TO GET 'WINGS'

George A. Hatcher, only living member of a cadet quartet that once entertained fellow student fliers at the Army air school in Texas, will receive his "wings" and the rating of pilot tomorrow.

A graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, Hatcher is one of 62 students who have completed their flying course at Randolph and Kelly fields in Texas, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington quoting an announcement by the War Department.

Hatcher is 22 and a former member of the Glee Club and Cap and Gown shows at Pitt. Continuing his singing activities at the southern schools, he formed a quartet, all other members of which were killed in airplane accidents.

The youth's parents live at 2836 Perrysville avenue.

M'DONALD ILL, CABINET REIGN IN BALANCE

LONDON, June 22.—(AP.)—The decision of Premier Ramsay MacDonald to take at least a three months' rest, leaving Stanley Baldwin in command of Great Britain's national government, aroused parliamentary circles today over the future of the regime established as a result of the financial cirsis of 1931.

Downing street confirmed MacDonald's holiday plan, but announced doctors had advised the Premier to go abroad. There is a possibility he will make a trip to the United States or Canada, but at least the first week is expected to be spent at Lossiemouth, Scotland, his home.

Should MacDonald's health not respond to the rest treatment, informed observers consider his present retreat would provide a graceful means of political retirement. But that emphatically is not the Premier's present intention.

HOPES FOR HEALTH

His hope is to build up his strength for the autumn session of Parliament, which will provide the greatest test the national government has faced.

With MacDonald away, the only Laborite among National government leaders will be J. H. Thomas, jovial Secretary of Dominions and man-about-town, who lives up to his nickname, "Dress-Suit Thomas."

The dour former chancellor of the exchequer, Philip Snowden, who with Thomas and Mac Donald supplied Laborite leaders for the National regime, proclaimed two weeks ago his return to active politics. But it was generally believed this will largely consist of appeals—or protests—against the government's policies.

NO SURRENDER

MacDonald's departure leaves the government almost wholly in the hands of Conservatives but his supporters do not think for a moment he has surrendered to predominant influences.

Laborites and Liberals such as Snowden and Sir Herbert Samuel, former home secretary, one by one have deserted the national regime until the most popular description of MacDonald is that he is a prisoner of Downing street with Conservatives as his jailers.

MacDonald during the past year waged one of the bravest fights of his career and seriously risked his health by detailed attention to the duties of prime minister.

BRITONS RENEW DEFAULT FIGHT

LONDON, June 22.—(AP.)—New demands that Great Britain pay her war debts to the United States were made on the floor of the House of Commons today.

Members of the Labor and Conservative parties joined in an attack on the delay in the settlement of the problem which some members asserted was harming Anglo-American relations.

Col. Josiah C. Wedgwood, Laborite, took advantage of a debate on the finance bill to declare:

"I want from the chancellor a definite assurance that, be difficulties what they may, England is going to meet her bond in the long run and pay her debt to America."

Capt. Victor A. Cazalet, Conservative, suggested that the government consider a lump sum payment offer, stating that some quarters had mentioned a payment of $1,000,000,000, which would give Great Britain terms virtually relative to those the United States granted Italy.

PAGEANT ENDS SHRINE MEET

MINNEAPOLIS, June 22.—(AP.)—A brilliant pageant at the University of Minnesota Memorial Stadium ended the national Shrine convention last night.

After nearly a week of activities and business sessions, thousands of Shriners from all parts of the United States and some sections of Canada were returning to their homes today.

The 1935 convention will be held in Washington, D. C.

BRITAIN, RECOVERING, TO EXTEND DOLE

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.

LONDON, June 22.—Britain has spent four billion dollars in the last 13 years on the dole. She spent half a million dollars last year. She probably will spend $400,000,000 or more this year.

Can Britain stand it? Does she intend to give up the dole?

She can stand it. She does not intend to give up the dole.

Britain intends to extend the dole, make it available to more workers, include younger workers and give them larger payments. She also intends to separate unemployment insurance from the dole proper. She wants to keep separate the payment of benefits which workers have earned, from benefits which they have not earned. But she intends to continue to support every unemployed person in England at a tolerable living standard.

DOLE SPEEDED RECOVERY

This is what Britain thinks of the dole, despite all the minority critics who maintain that the dole is to blame for this country's "permanent unemployment."

This may sound like heresy, but it is the heresy of Tories, not Socialists. The program of extending the dole is the program of the present government, a government backed by a House of Commons with 472 Conservatives out of 615 members. This government is a capitalist government. It believes in the dole as a measure to preserve capitalism.

First thing this government did with its budget surplus this year was to restore the cuts in the dole. Battling to keep its currency sound the government had cut the dole 10 per cent in October, 1931.

Today the restored rates of benefits are paid for men over 21, $4.26; 18 to 21, $3.50; 17 to 18, $2.25; 16 to 17, $1.50. For women over 21 they are $3.75; 18 to 21, $3.00; 17 to 18, $1.87; 16 to 17, $1.25. Each adult dependent will receive $2.25.

The difference between these rates and those cited in the last article seem small, about 50 cents more for each adult male worker. It is, however, to mean precisely the difference between having not quite enough to eat and having enough.

TO ADD 1,500,000 MORE

But this is not all the government is doing with the dole. It is going to bring in another 1,500,000 workers into the scheme of unemployment insurance. It is going to lower the age for inclusion in unemployment insurance from 16 to 14 and thus bring in 750,000 young people.

More notable is the fact that the government intends bringing into the unemployment insurance scheme farm laborers. There are 700,000 of them. They were left out before because it was claimed their wages were so low anyway that if the dole were offered them they would rather quit work and go on the dole.

Now they too are to be included. For one reason, because a decade of experience with the closest observation by the hardest boiled inspectors and by hostile, strictly capitalist-minded administrators has revealed a surprising fact. That fact is that workers would rather work than remain idle.

WORKED 2 YEARS ON REPORT

The Royal Commission on Unemployment Insurance worked for two years on its report. Its findings will cover 529 pages. It was a distinctly realistic, unsentimental commission. Its most prominent member was Henry Clay, economic advisor to the Bank of England. On the basis of its report the government drew up the new unemployment bill containing the changes in the dole system outlined in the foregoing.

The commission said:

"It is not that unemployment relief leads to the refusal of available work; the unemployment exchanges provide a check on that abuse, were there any general inclination towards it, which we believe there is not."

In the whole year of 1933 out of around 5,400,000 claimants for relief, precisely 2,649 were caught cheating and punished. The "means test," excluding from benefits all those who had any other means of support, excluded an average of about 70,000 persons per million, or 7 per cent. Everyone else receiving benefits has proved he needs them to live

NEW WHITECHAPEL

In Whitechapel at night on the stairways running down to the Thames the youths and maidens of the poorest quarter of London sit and make love, looking down on mudflats where centuries ago the bravos of ruling barons used to bury their enemies up to the necks and let the rising tide finish them.

EXAMPLE OF CLASS TIMES

Today as we sat in a Whitechapel dockside eating house, drinking milky tea with a swaggering gang of young workmen, the social worker from Toynbee Hall exclaimed:

"There is no reason today why any human being in Britain should go hungry, or cold, or unclothed, or uncared for."

At the other end of that vast conglomerate that calls itself London is Notting Hill. It boasts that its slums are worse than Whitechapel. Within one block of them a green and shady park is surrounded by a high iron fence.

Around the park are the dwellings of wealthy folk. Just a block away the street is full of shabby women sitting on stoops leading to greasy corridors. Their children play in the streets.

But, more important, the schoolmaster of Notting Hill's elementary school showed me his slum pupils. They were bright faced, clean, adequately clothed, showed no signs of undernourishment and all wore shoes.

William Randolph Hearst Donates Trophy for National Junior Birdmen Model Contest

Beautiful $2,500 Sterling Silver Trophy, Specially Designed to be Offered in Addition to European Trip or Aviation Scholarship

By J. JAMES MOORE

Greetings, Junior Birdmen and Birdwomen! How would you like to win the choice of a $500 Aviation Ground School scholarship or a trip to Europe, and in addition be the first year's holder of the William Randolph Hearst trophy, a 10-year perpetual award for the National Model Plane Championship!

Here is an opportunity for everyone of you Model Building Junior Birdmen to get up on your feet and do something. The National Junior Birdmen All-America Model Plane Championship contest will be held shortly after the local Wing City Model Plane Derbies at which you will have an added opportunity to win yourself honors and handsome awards.

The national contest, however, will only be open to the wing champion of each local Model Plane Derby, so on July 7 be sure that you are at Schenley Oval, Schenley Park with your three models — an all-Balsa glider, a single-stick propelled flier and a double-stick twin propelled model.

Remember, that the highest point scorer in this local Model Plane meet will be declared the Pittsburgh Model Plane Champion. In addition to whatever medals he or she win in the individual events, and the Pittsburgh Model Plane Championship Trophy which will be awarded as a permanent prize, this lucky champ will also be sent to Washington, all expenses paid, to compete in the national contest.

The city Model Plane Champion of every other Junior Birdmen territory throughout the United States will receive the same trip and same privilege of competing in the national contest for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy which I will describe to you in just a few lines.

But remember, in order to be eligible for the nationals, you must participate in the local derby. So, if you haven't sent for your official book of rules and an official entry blank as yet, do it right away. It will be sent you free. Then, be sure you fill out your entry blank, send it back to me pronto, and start on your models just as pronto.

Then I will be seeing you at the Schenley Park derby on July 7, and perhaps have the pleasure of putting you on board a fast, luxurious Pullman bound for Washington just before July 28, in timbe to arrive for the great National Junior Birdmen All-American Model Plane Championship Contest.

ARMY INSIGNIA NO. 3

The "Busy Bee," found on the fuselage of all planes of the 58th service squadron of the U. S. Army Air Corps.

William Randolph Hearst Model Plane Trophy

The beautiful $2,500 sterling silver William Randolph Hearst Trophy, which our publisher is donating in the interest of good, clean and wholesome sport, and in the interest of aviation in America, was especially designed by Lambert Brothers, of New York, under the supervision and direction of national headquarters.

It depicts a Junior Birdman, standing in position set to fly a speedy model which he is holding aloft, waiting for desirous prevailing winds. At his side, on the ground, is a Junior Birdwoman, looking up with admiration at the youth's skill and courage. This is done in statuary effect and both are mounted atop a beautiful globe of the world, done in relief. Across the Equator is a ribbon on which are the words "Junior Birdmen of America."

This entire portion of the trophy is mounted on a sterling silver base, upon which are the words "William Randolph Hearst Trophy" and underneath "The National Model Airplane Championship."

A beautiful onyx green marble base is set underneath this great trophy upon which, in 14 carat gold, is set the wing emblem of the Junior Birdmen of America. All around the wooden pedestal are 10 sterling silver shields on which the name of the winner is to be engraved each year.

Whose name will be the first to inform the world that he or she is the current national model plane champion of the United States? Will it be a member from our own wing? We let New York beat us on the motto contest, let our wing take the National Junior Birdmen All-America Model Plane Championship Trophy!

While the William Randolph Hearst Trophy is the finest award any boy or girl can have, bearing his or her name, we musn't lose sight of the other interesting awards. This trophy will not be in the possession of the champ! It will be displayed throughout the United States at leading museums, colleges and other places accessible to the public—and Junior Birdmen.

However, a beautiful loving cup, with the design of the William Randolph Hearst Trophy etched on it, will be presented to the winner, each year, for permanent possession. But in addition, remember, the lucky winner will have his choice of either a $500 aviation ground school scholarship at any college he or she may choose, or a month trip to Europe.

There are many other interesting prizes for other place winners in the national contest. These are all described in the official book of rules which are obtainable by writing to the local Junior Birdmen Headquarters.

At any rate, get your copy right away, fill out your entry blank, and be sure you enter the local Model Plane Derby on July 7, win some of the many fine awards, capture the greatest number of accumulated points, and then you have a chance to climb higher at the Washington contest. Remember, the Sun-Telegraph will pay all expenses for the wing champion's trip to the national contest.

National Contest At Fort Meyer

Actual preparations are now in progress for this gala national contest. It is to be held just across the Potomac from Washington, at famous Fort Meyer Field.

Members of the United States Army Post, stationed at the field, will act as hosts to the contestants and will also participate as judges, timers, etc. Luncheon will be served the members, judges and committee at the field.

Fort Meyer, of which I will tell you more at a later date, is historically famous in aviation history because it was there the Wright brothers first demonstrated their airplane to the United States government. At this same field you Junior Birdmen and Birdwomen will soon have an opportunity to demonstrate to the country your skill in model aircraft.

ATTENTION, MEMBERS!

In the toy department of Kaufmann's store—on the third floor—you can secure the balsa wood and other supplies that you will need in building your model planes. They have a most complete stock of materials for the members of the Junior Birdmen. You can also get you Outdoor Book of Rules in the store's model supply depot. But remember that your entry blanks, which you will find inside the book, must be mailed directly to me at the Sun-Telegraph.

U. S. AIDE BOWS, TESTIFIES AT ARMY QUIZ

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(AP.)—Changing his mind overnight, Col. Joseph I. McMullen today agreed to answer questions by a member of the House Military Sub-committee investigating War Department purchases.

He balked at a question yesterday by Representative James (Rep.), of Michigan, as to whether there was a meeting at the witness' house "one Sunday afternoon."

Today, however, he told the committee that although he had found he had a right to refuse to answer questions, he was willing to answer it.

Chairman Rogers (Dem.), of New Hampshire, began questioning the chief of the War Department patent section regarding contracts for disposal of surplus clothing.

McMullin said Harry H. Woodring, the Assistant Secretary of War, asked him to draft the contracts, and told of delivering one to Ralph O'Neil, former national commander of the American Legion, at the Mayflower Hotel here. He explained he thought it was for Joseph Silverman, of New York, interested in purchasing surplus War Department supplies.

McMullen said he drew the contract pursuant to a letter from Silverman and inserted the usual terms of such contracts.

McMullen said the contract he originally drafted was dissimilar from the one that resulted, and testified it was executed by Woodring, having previously been executed by Silverman.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS -:- By PAUL MALLON

Radical Steel Men, Johnson Both Outwitted

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Some new chapters will be added to the political cook books when the kitchen secrets of this administration are out. What these New Deal cooks did to the steel strike situation is a choice chapter in itself.

The high tension strike leaders were in control up until a few days ago. Their strike plans had been made. Everything was ready for their steel kettle to explode.

All of a sudden, the high tensionists found themselves in the ice box. When they looked around, there was the similarly high tension federal negotiator, Gen. Johnson, sitting in the cooler alongside them.

Control of the situation had passed suddenly back to easy-going steel labor leader Mike Tighe and to soft-voiced Frances Perkins, the Labor Secretary for President Roosevelt.

DEAL

This happy change was not accomplished as naturally as it looked. Some very vigorous spoon-stirring was done on the inside by the joint co-operation of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Tighe. How Mr. Tighe won the labor convention over from the rank and file agitators in a series of meetings in his hotel room is a story he will have to tell.

Nearly everyone seems to be satisfied now. Labor has far more confidence in Madame Perkins than in Gen. Johnson. Under Tighe's leadership, it will play along toward a calmer plan for holding labor union elections. Its rank and file leadership had clearly carried it too far toward an angry strike.

The strike issue is not settled, but it has been delayed at least for two or three months.

VIEWS

There are two opposite inside views about the national labor situation now. You can get one from a Congressional labor expert who could not speak frankly if he spoke openly. In private he says:

"I am very worried about Mr. Roosevelt going off to Hawaii. He is the only man in the country who could handle a national labor uprising if it came. In view of the labor feeling in the various section of the country (the dock strike on the Pacific Coast, the steel, automobile and other situations), I believe there is just an outside chance that the labor question may become nationally serious."

A calmer view is reflected by a labor spokesman of the administration, who whispers:

"The labor situation cannot become nationally serious anytime soon. There have been many strikes, but there is little relation and no co-ordination among them. They are being settled swiftly. Organizations of labor and their leadership are not yet very strong. They cannot afford to take the bit in their teeth. They are too sensible to try it.

"Everything will be ironed out gradually during the course of the next year without any more trouble than we are having now."

OPEN SHOP

It is supposed to be a secret, and it may be kept as one, that certain industrial leaders will hold what amounts to an open shop meeting at a certain hotel in Chicago within a few days. They will organize to contest the labor program of the administration.

The call for the meeting specified that the matter should be kept confidential. Uninvited guests will not be permitted to attend. The administration already knows all about it.

HOT SPRINGS

Several business leaders had a highly confidential plan at the Hot Springs NRA meeting to spring something hot on the labor subject. They had figured out a substitute for the NRA program. It would have softened the labor features and made the NRA fundamentally a co-operative business movement.

Wiser heads prevailed upon the authors of the plan to keep it unsprung in their pockets. It would not have been adopted, if offered, but it would have caused a tremendous fuss.

NEWS

There is so much news in Washington now that it sometimes takes a year for a Congressman to find out what is going on.

Recently a group of western manufacturers wired their Congressman, urging him to appear for them at an NRA code hearing. He did, making one of his best speeches, and concluded with an outraged demand that his manufacturers be given a code.

Said the administrator in charge:

"But this industry has had a code for nearly a year."

Said the Congressman:

"In that case I subscribe to it."

You cannot floor a Congressman, or fool him—for more than a year.

U. S. AIMS NEW ATTACKS ON HENRY FORD

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Failing in all its inducements to have Henry Ford fly the Blue Eagle over his factories, the administration today erected still further barriers in front of Ford's selling window.

The first blow was the ruling of Comptroller-General John R. McCarl, upheld by the District of Columbia Supreme Court, forbidding any federal government department or agency from buying Ford products.

But the blow the Ford company is expected to find the hardest is contained in the regulations governing the disbursement of the $500,000,000 federal loans-to-industry bill.

One of the regulations stipulates that each borrower must agree in advance not to spend ony of his loan directly or indirectly for any "machinery, articles, materials or services" furnished by a firm which does not pledge allegiance to the NRA.

This is substantially the same prohibition contained in President Roosevelt's order of last March barring government purchases from firms not displaying the NRA insignia.

And, of course, firms not signed up with the Recovery Administration are not eligible for loans.

At the same time another federal agency—the examiners' division of the Federal Radio Commission—recommended the commission refuse license renewals for three Ford Motor Company broadcasting stations, used to broadcast weather reports to the Ford ships on the Great Lakes. Ralph L. Walker, the examiner, reported that one of the three stations now in operation interferes with distress signals radioed from the lakes.

BEAVER HOLDS DOUBLE FETE

BEAVER, Pa., June 22.—This town today was the scene of a double celebration marking the dedication of the county's new courthouse and also the repaving of Third street, Beaver's main thoroughfare.

The courthouse, replacing one destroyed by fire more than two years ago, was dedicated first. Judge Frank E. Reader spoke. Later State Secretary of Highways Samuel S. Lewis was to turn the highway over to the borough, with Burgess D. A. Moore accepting on behalf of the municipality.

A citizens' parade concluded the program.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

We met a little girl yesterday, fellows, who has never been either absent or tardy during nine years of school.

That is a swell record, all right, and not many fellows have a better one, although we have heard that a very few boys and girls go all the way through high school and never miss a day or are never late.

To have a record like that means that you have to keep pretty healthy. If you get ill even once, so that you have to stay in bed, you miss school and spoil your record.

And to keep from being tardy even once you have to always get up in the mornings on time, too.

We asked the little girl who has such a good record how she did it and she explained that she was careful not to get sick, and that she made it a habit to get to school on time every day.

Good habits are always a help, fellows!

We wonder if any Junior Patrol member has ever found an Indian arrowhead?

The other day we were looking at a whole collection of them, and also of other stones and flints that the Indians used as knifes, tomahawks and war stones.

They used animal sinews to fasten these stones to arrow shafts and sticks of tomahawks.

But always they made these implements out of stones, chipped, cracked or drilled in the shape they wanted them. That was many, many years ago, before the white men had come into this country and brought metal tools and guns.

The Indians, however, always got along pretty well with their stone tools and weapons. They even had sharp little arrows with which to shoot fish and small birds.

Write and let us know how your patrols are doing this summer, captains. And if we can help you with some advice or aid, let us know and we will answer you right here in the Mail Box.

TWO HELD HERE FOR THEFTS

Frank Laskey, 45, and John Miller, 42, both of 1207 Epiphany street, were being held in the county jail today in connection with the looting of clothing stores in Brookville, Falls Creek, Dubois and Punxsutawney.

They were arrested in their room last night by County Detectives Walter Monaghan and Peter Conners on descriptions wired here by the state police. Clothing allegedly stolen from two stores in Brookville Wednesday night was recovered there in an express office.

The detectives who recovered $100 of merchandise in an express office here said the loot of the robberies was packed neatly and shipped C. O. D. to Pittsburgh.

The sleuths said that Laskey claimed he found the recovered merchandise along a highway. The pair will be turned over to state police, according to the detectives.

CAMPBELL BODY DUE HOME

The body of Robert D. Campbell, 65, prominent in Pittsburgh industrial circles, who died yesterday in Orilla, Canada, where he was spending a vacation, was expected to be brought to his home, 1345 Inverness street, today.

Mrs. Campbell left for Canada yesterday upon receipt of news of the death of her husband.

Mr. Campbell was one of the founders of the Allegheny Steel Company, and was senior vice president and a director of that company. He also was a director of the Reliance Life Insurance Company and the Farmers Deposit National Bank.

MELODY, COMEDY » 'Spotlight Revue,' Countess Albani » ON AIR TONIGHT

Broadcast Balloon Flight

The National Georgraphic Society announces that its giant stratosphere balloon carrying Maj. W. E. Kepner and Capt. A. W. Stevens as observers, and an NBC short-wave transmitter, will take off for a flight and a radio broadcast some time today, depending upon the weather.

The great balloon is expected to rise to an altitude of 82,000 feet, the greatest height ever attained by man.

If the flight is successful, the broadcast may be picked up for the NBC networks at various times during the day.

* * *

With Frank Crummit as singing master of ceremonies the second all-star presentation of "The Spotlight Revue" is heard over a CBS-WJAS network from 10 to 10:45 this evening.

Stoopnagle and Budd and Parker Fennelly serve as comedians on the program.

Victor Young's Orchestra and the Eight Gentlemen from Milwaukee supply the musical background.

Summer's Here

The Countess Albani, substituting for Jessica Dragonette, sings over WCAE tonight form 8 to 9, with Rosario Bourdon's Orchestra.

Bourdon welcomes the first day of summer with a special arrangement of Grainger's "Country Gardens."

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

George W. Cook, Jr., of Etna asks whether the Supreme Court of the United States has handed down a decision passing upon the constitutionality or unconstitutionality of the NRA.

Several minor controversies, for instance that in regard to the milk dealers, have been passed upon by the Supreme Court, which held that the NRA was applicable.

Questions of major controversy that strike at the heart of the constitutionality of the NRA have not as yet been decided by the Supreme Court.

In the fall session of the court other cases, no doubt, will be heard, and the opinions handed down may decide the constitutionality of the NRA.

* * *

Leroy H. Smeltzer, of Greensburg, attentive radio listener, clears up some disputed statements made in an aviation speech by one of the Globe Trotter's guests.

He informs us that radio beacon signals are not transmitted or received on short waves but on intermediate frequency in the vicinity of a thousand meters.

The "peep-peeps" indicates the pilot is "off course" and a steady whistle indicates that the pilot is "on course."

Thanks for the check-up, Leroy.

Mr. Soisson, Pittsburgh—Sometime ago I published the dimensions and specifications of the clock and signboard that adorns Mt. Washington.

You tell your New Jersey visitors that that clock in New Jersey isn't as big as our clock here in Pittsburgh, that is, if the New Jersey clock they refer to is electrically operated, because the manufacturer of the Mt. Washington clock claims that his is the largest electrically operated and controlled clock in America.

I'd take in the world but I am cautious this morning.

Cap'n Smith Gets Big Surprise

By AIRCASTER

It seemed kind of home-folks to tune in KDKA any time of day or evening, all the long way down to South America and back, and hear the familiar voice of Fred Weber, Glenn Riggs or Bill Sutherland.

And it was surprising to find that the sailor's ditty box, with its books, magazines, writing materials and personal trinkets, has given way to the loudspeaker.

Radio has become the principal diversion of the men who go down to the sea in ships, from the captain to the cabin boy, and sailors know more about programs and studio stars than ninety-nine out of a hundred landlubbers.

The first thing Capt. Smith, of the M. V. (for motor vessel) "Gulfwing" asked, when I stepped aboard and introduced myself as a Pittsburgher was:

"Pittsburgh! Well, then, you maybe know Louie Kaufman!"

"Sho!" I assured him, "Louie and I are on the air together almost every night."

It has been several years, now, since Louie pioneered as announcer and jack-of-all-trades on the pioneer broadcasting station, but his name's still a radio byword on the sea. And KDKA remains the sailors' principal contact with life on land.

SEAFARING FAN

As regularly as clockwork during the three weeks I spent on board the Gulfwing, cruising down through the Windward Passage, along the coast of Haiti and Venezuela, the captain, finishing his supper, would look at his watch, rise from the table and remark:

"Well, time for Lowell Thomas on KDKA. Let's go!"

Perhaps you can imagine the Captain's surprise and pleasure when, one evening far down in the Caribbean, he sat down to the loudspeaker in his cabin and heard Fred Weber's voice come out across thousands of miles of land and sea, announcing clearly:

"Tonight, ladies and gentlemen, we dedicate a program of seagoing music to Capt. Smith and the crew of the good ship Gulfwing, somewhere down in the Caribbean Sea."

That morning I had stepped into the ship's radio room and handed a message to "Sparks," the radioman.

"Sparks" tapped out a series of wireless dots and dashes to the RCA shore station at Tuckerton, N. J., whence the message was relayed overland to Pittsburgh.

KD COMES THROUGH

At 11:30 that evening the first mate, the chief engineer and I, playing pinochle with the skipper in his cabin, kept an eye on the clock. At a couple of minutes before 11:30 the mate suggested to the skipper:

"Well, cap'n, let's see if them fellers up there in Pittsburgh's still on the air."

And a moment later, the old weather-beaten captain who had been listening to KDKA at sea for 10, 11 years—never dreaming that he might hear his own name over the air—had the surprise of a lifetime.

A day or two later, when we picked up a pilot at the entrance to Lake Maracaibo in Venezuela, he came up the ship's ladder with a wise grin.

"Evenin', Cap'n Smith!" he greeted us. "We reckoned you'd be arrivin' pretty soon, when we heard them somdin' you a radio program from up in the States! Ain't you comin on in the world, though, Cap'n Smith—gettin' talked about around the world!"

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Fran Eichler's band fills another 15-minute spot tonight, starting at 6:15.

Opposite song types — Paul Gannen at 6:45 and Lewis Munnell at 9:15.

Eddie Peyton does a medley of "Moon" songs as a feature of the 11:30 Frivolities.

Jimmy Long Gives Sports Review

Two studio recitals pave the way for this evening's network features on WCAE.

Jeanne Clasky, soprano, sings for the WCAE audience at 7:15.

Raymond Griffin, basso, is heard at 7:30.

The Motor News is broadcast over WCAE at 5:45, and at 6 o'clock James J. Long, dean of sports writers, is heard in his weekly chat on athletic events.

U. S. SEEKS NEW PA. FORESTS

The government filed condemnation suits in Federal Court against four large tracts of land in McKean and Elk counties totaling 3,965 acres, sought for national forestation and protection of watersheds of contributaries to the Allegheny River.

Earlier in the week similar action was taken against 2,008 acres of land in Howe Township, Forest County.

One of the new suits was against two tracts of 1,056 and 998 acres, respectively, in Hiland Township, Elk County, known as Ward B. Frost tracts, watersheds of Martin Run and Wolf Run. The other was against 1,911 acres in McKean County. This consists of two tracts, 1,737 acres in Wetmore Township, held by the East Branch Oil Company, and 174 acres in Corydon Township, designated as the C. G. Fitzgibbons estate tract. These properties are part of the watershed of Tionesta Creek and Willow Creek.

The suis were filed by United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld, on instruction of the Attorney General. Judge Nelson McVicar set September 4 for the hearing in the latter suit and August 21 for the tracts in Elk County.

PITTSBURGH'S ORIGINAL BARGAIN BASEMENT

POLICE HEAD'S WHITEWASH DAPP TIFF

That little altercation between Smart Dapp, city detective pointed by Mayor McNair, and radio car patrolmen, today ame a matter of history as of a misunderstanding."

Police heads after hearing the e principals involved, decided make it unanimous with Magis- te Theodore L. Moritz, the yor's secretary, who discharged pp without a hearing because said it was a "misunderstand- "

Dapp and the patrolmen, James McGuire and Edward McCall, been slated to explain before Police Trial Board the details the quarrel which occurred en Dapp called the police to n his car, stalled in front of home at 238 Semple street.

According to Acting Police ief Jacob Dorsey, a satis- factory explanation was given day before him. Public Safety rector A. Marshall Bell, Inspec- Harry Moore in charge of the kland district, and Lieut. Arch arrone, who was on duty at the kland Station at the time rsey said:

"There'll be no suspensions nd no charges. It seems that Dapp was the aggressor of the hole thing, but from our in- uiry we haven't sufficient evi- ence to place charges against Dapp or the officers.

"Dapp admitted he called the adio car, but said that his city ar had broken down and he eeded help. Dapp denied he tated there was any trouble at is home. The whole thing was misunderstanding.

According to police records, Mc- ire and McCall pushed Dapp's r for a block without success in tting it started again and an gument ensued when they said ey could give no further aid. Dapp, arrested on a disorderly nduct charge, was taken to akland Police Station where he mediately called Mayor McNair.

Although McNair had stated at police and firemen when ar- sted should be treated as any- ne else, Dapp was discharged ithout a hearing by Moritz.

POLICE ACCUSED BY EX-RAIDER

id not reveal his motive. Bell greed to make the investigation.

The director told the commis- ion he was hampered by Civil ervice restrictions in getting rid f undesirable personnel.

DILLINGER HAD GUN'

Hoey chimed in:

"I agree with you on that. You have a lot of lieutenants that have it all over Dillinger. Dillinger just had a gun and they didn't."

Bell was asked by Dennis J. Mulvihill, counsel for the commis- sion, if the director's recent police changes were made on advice of anyone outside the department. Bell replied:

"Of just general conversations with a number of persons."

Mulvihill asked:

"At the time the changes were made, who was present at a con- ference "

Bell answered:

"Supt. Marshall and myself. Part of the time the Mayor and Mrs. R. Templeton Smith."

DENIES STEEL ANGLE

Bell denied knowing that Mrs. Smith's husband was a coal com- pany official who might be inter- ested in police preparations in view of the anticipated steel strike. He also denied that any represen- tative of the United States Steel Corporation had offered advice on police arrangements.

Leff, former inspector o f city detectives, was asked under what circumstances Capt. Boyd was shifted from the detective force.

Hoey asked:

"Did Boyd ask permission to go to Buffalo with a friend and did you refuse?"

Leff replied:

"There was a conversation. He wanted to be relieved for a couple of days."

VAGUE ON BOYD

Leff wouldn't say definitely that this was the cause of Boyd's being detached to serve on the vice squad directly under Capt. Marshall.

Leff complained that the police department is subject to political influence. He said:

"Outside interference demoral- izes the force. It is political in- terference, mostly."

Under the present system entire responsibility rests on the Mayor, Cavanaugh told the commission.

Promotions are won only through politics, the erstwhile lieutenant and World War veteran asserted, men without experience are pro- moted over the heads of qualified officers, and men who do a meri- torious piece of work like round- ing up the "Blue Bandana" gang are unrewarded.

UP TO MAYOR

As to the responsibility for po- lice efficiency, Cavanaugh said:

"All our Mayor needs to say to our director is, 'I want an efficient police department.' That word is passed on."

A police school and more men on beats were needed to build an efficient force, he stated.

Cavanaugh cited his own expe- rience when he returned from France after the war as an exam- ple of political control of the po- lice bureau.

INFLUENCE NEEDED

He quoted the Mayor at that time, without naming him, as say- ing, when Cavanaugh, then an instructor in the police training school, with a top civil service rat- ing, sought promotion:

"Your ward has all the pat- ronage it's going to get. I just appointed a deputy fire chief over there."

Cavanaugh added:

"I told them I was well quali- fied and headed the Civil Serv- ice list. But I had to send ward politicians in before I later got the appointment. That would be eliminated under a merit system."

It would help if officers would get out and see what's going on, Cavanaugh told the commission. He said:

"I know of men going on beats and spending their time playing poker and drinking. Such con- ditions could not exist if there was a lieutenant dropping in every hour."

WORKINGS OF POLITICS

Attorney Dennis J. Mulvihill, counsel for the commission, asked Cavanaugh:

"How do politics function in the police department?"

Cavanaugh replied:

"It works often through a hint dropped by the inspector or a lieutenant."

Mulvihill:

"Can notorious vice condi- tions exist without police know- ing it?"

Cavanaugh:

"No. Eventually the infor- mation filters into the depart- ment."

Mulvihill:

"If vice does exist over a period of years is that evidence of protection?"

Cavanaugh:

"I would go slow on that. There are some sections of this town that never see a police- man."

Millvale Youth to Go to West Point

COMIC PARADE TO ATTRACT THRONGS

It is predicted that the Sun-Telegraph comic parade at Kenny- wood Park on Friday, July 13, will be the most colorful and interesting pageant of the kind ever held in Pittsburgh with throngs of happy, laughing chil- dren impersonating the world's most famous "funnies." There'll be scores of "Tillies," "Jiggs and Maggies," "Mickey Mouses," "Snuggins," "Annie Rooneys" and all the other favorites of the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph comic pages.

Scores of kiddies with the help of their parents are already mak- ing plans to impersonate that funny character for which they think they are best fitted.

There's going to be plenty of fine prizes for the best comics. The two very best—boy and girl—will each get a standard make bicycle and the two next best will get $15.00 outfits of clothes—their own selections—from the top of the head to the bottom of the feet.

Children up to 16 years of age are invited to enter, using the blank on this page. There is no entrance fee but it is advisable to get the blanks in now so that President Brady McSwigan, of Kennywood Park, and the Sun- Telegraph will know how many to make arrangements for. The parade will take place at Kenny- wood where a board of judges will pick the prize winners.

Incidentally, this is the regula, annual Sun-Telegraph outing day for the children of Pittsburgh and vicinity and hundreds of strips of free tickets will be given away for the rides and attractions. Watch the Sun-Telegraph for de- tails about the free tickets.

SIX-YEAR FIGHT WON BY WATER CONSUMERS

HARRRISBURG, June 22.—(AP.)—Water consumers in 47 Pennsylvania communities have won their six-year fight for lower rates from the Scranton-Springbrook Water Service Company, and as a result can look forward to $3,000,000 in refunds from rentals paid in the past.

In a decision handed down yesterday, the Public Service Commission ordered the company to file new and lower rates within 60 days and make the huge refund over a four-year period.

APPEAL BLOCKED

With an appeal to the Superior Court cut off by immediate re-certification of the commission record, the utility was left but two avenues to continue battling the consumers: The Pennsylvania and United States Supreme courts.

The longest order in Public Service Commission history—322 pages and four pounds in weight—upheld complaints first filed on June 5, 1928, by the city of Wilkes-Barre and others.

The refunds were ordered on payments for water service in excess of the new schedule from July 1, 1928, to the present, plus 6 per cent interest.

CUTS INCOME $500,000

Gross effect of the new rates, which cover domestic, commercial, industrial and municipal service, will be to reduce the company's average annual allowable income by more than $500,000.

For the period between July 1, 1933, and the future, the commission allowed but a 6 per cent return on investment instead of the previously accepted 7 per cent. It was the first time the commission applied its ruling slashing the 1 per cent from the allowable return.

Dan Beard Quit Smoking as 'Sissy' Habit

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(Universal.)—When women took up smoking, Dan Beard, founder of the Boy Scouts of America, quit, according to Walter MacPeek, local scout commissioner.

Yesterday was Beard's 84th birthday, and MacPeek entertained friends by telling of a recent visit with the idol of American boyhood. MacPeek said:

"Beard told me he had smoked for 40 years, but that when women took up the habit he quit, because he didn't want to be a sissy!"

DAVIS TO SEEK NEW TRIAL IN WEST

Plea Waits Ivory Rites; Lawyer's Son Likely To Push Fight

CARLYLE, Ill., June 22.—(AP.)—New trial proceedings for youthful Thomas Davis, Jr., of Pittsburgh, are in abeyance until after the funeral of his death-stricken chief defense counsel.

Then, Carlyle attorneys assisting in Davis' defense have indicated they will enlist the aid of Robert Ivory, Jr., in preparing the new-trial plea.

Davis, 19-year-old high school student, was convicted yesterday of assault with intent to injure a Clinton County deputy sheriff.

VICTORY FOR IVORY

The conviction came a few hours after Chief Defense Counsel Robert Ivory, Sr., 74, also of Pittsburgh, collapsed and died from a stroke of apoplexy. The jury had deliberated 20 hours.

Judge F. R. Dove set July 2 for the hearing on the new trial plea, and postponed entencing pending its outcome. The verdict carries with it a maximum penalty of one year in the county jail, a fine from $25 to $1,000, or both fine and imprisonment.

The elder Ivory's last case was at least a partial victory, inasmuch as Davis would have faced a much stiffer sentence if the jury had convicted him of assault with intent to kill, which was charged by the state.

CLAIMS ACCIDENT

The case was the outgrowth of the wounding of Deputy Sheriff Henry Donnewald after the latter had searched Davis' car as the youth stopped at Carlyle for gasoline.

A scuffle between the two occurred as the deputy found a gun, pistol and knife in the automobile. Then, the prosecution claimed, Davis deliberately fired three shots at Donnewald.

Davis testified the gun was discharged accidentally, and that he did not know Donnewald was an officer at the time of the scuffle. The deputy was wounded with his own weapon.

METER TAX SUIT TO HIGH COURT

The legal trail was cleared today for an appeal to the State Supreme Court in the city's controversy with eight public utility concerns over the proposed $2 meter tax.

In a final hearing before Judge Elder W. Marshall, which lasted less than 10 minutes, the utility companies admitted all the facts, but not the conclusions of law, contained in the city's answer to the action restraining it from collecting the meter tax.

Judge Marshall recently ruled that the city could not collect the tax.

Today's action was simply a technical move to dispense with the taking of testimony before the appeal is taken by the city to the Supreme Court, lawyers on both sides explained.

Put Famed Writers In Hollywood and They'd Be Gag Men

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Great authors are in Edinburgh, talking about the next war.

Don't do too much talking, brothers, for that's what starts it.

The famous H. G. Wells is commander of the swivel chair cavalry, and he is already scrapping with Emil Ludwig.

Ludwig wants all the writers to meet three days after a war starts. Wells says that three days after any war starts you won't be able to find a writer.

Mr. Wells is author of "The "Invisible Man" and should know his subject.

Well, Edinburgh ain't any different from Hollywood. Put Shakespeare, Kipling, Washington Irving and Longfellow in one room and they would all turn out to be gag men.

MAXIE BAER AND HIS GIRL—THE GIRL HE MARRIED—DOROTHY DUNBAR WELLS, SUN-BATHING DURING HIS TRAINING FOR A FIGHT .... LATER SHE SUED, DIVORCED HIM

Maxie Piles Up Victories Without Using Left Hand or Defense, Then Gets a Real Test; Makes Money, But Can't Keep It

MY LIFE AND LOVES—By MAX BAER
World Heavyweight Boxing Champion

CHAPTER VI.

If I swung a left hand during my first year as a fighter, I can't remember, and I'd say it was a mistake. If I ever made a real effort at defense the action was accidental. Bob McAllister kept trying to get me to use the left. Told me a thousand times, if he told me once, that Id never get anywhere with only a right-handed attack and no defense.

"Yeah?" I'd sneer back. "And who knocked off those birds that stepped in front of me last year?"

"But they were bums."

"Everybody's a bum when they get in front of me."

"But, you've got to have a two-fisted attack," Bob would howl back.

"Listen," I'd say. "When I try to use the left, it's awkward for me and I can't connect with it. But I can lam them with my right. You're a sap for telling me that when I get a chance at a fellow's beard I should sometimes use my left—which is no good—whereas if I bang him with the right, he's a stiffie in a hurry."

Bob would cuss and go on predicting that some night or other I'd get hit so hard while putting my left in my pocket that it would take 10 hospital doctors to patch me together again.

Was Beating All Comers

But one by one I met the fellows out in our California neighborhood and beat them. In the fights that went more than a punch or two I'd usually get nailed on the chin. But nothing would happen except that wild laugh would come over my map, and that really helped to win my fights.

Those guys would stand there and gawk after they rammed me and left me laughing. But they didn't stand long. I'd get the right in action and either they would go down, if I hit, or they would take it on the run and I'd have to play a "chase me" game with them.

I never trained seriously for any of the fights in 1929. Didn't see any reason for it—and that settled it. I wasn't quite 21, I had enough energy to run a locomotive, I felt I could fight all day and all night, and I saw no reason for road work, or for doing those dizzy gymnasium stunts.

Of course, if I could have found some fellows to box with, that would have been different. But nobody wanted any part of me. They said I made every gymnasium bout a fight, and they didn't want to be a punching bag for a "crazy guy from Oakland."

His First Important Battle

The first important battle of my career was against Ernie Owen in Los Angeles in 1930—just about one year after I became a fighter. I had adavnced with right hand punching alone from an unknown fighting for $35 a night to $4,200 for beating up Owen in 10 rounds. When I heard about my $4,200 cut, I sure gave the laugh to those fellows who had been telling me I'd get nowhere at all if I didn't have a two-fisted attack, or, at least, a left-hand defense to go along with the right-hand charges.

Jack Kearns had Owen then. Owen was smart and a good hitter. He was game, too. When the fight was over, even though I was winner, my face looked as if I had been using it to test out a mule's kick. Owen nailed me with a right-hand on the left eyebrow. The punch chipped the bone. It puffed out my eye and my cheek and completely shut off the vision in my left eye.

Ancil Hoffman, who is handling my affairs now, was at the ringside, seeing me in action for the first time. He said he was sure I was cuckoo because all during the rest of the fight—I mean after I could see out of only one eye—I'd grin whenever Owen hit me, and that I turned away from Owen several times and faced the crowd, laughed and saluted it.

His Mind on a Girl in the Crowd

What he didn't know was that I was trying to wig-wag a girl I had parked at the fight to tell her not to mind my "shiner," and to be sure to meet me right after the show—as planned.

I put Owen down five times that night—but couldn't keep him there. I won the decision, and Owen asked for another chance. So I stiffened him in five rounds in Oakland. He still wasn't convinced about my ability, and I took him on in Portland and knocked him out in two. After that Owen took me off his mailing list.

When I reached my twenty-first birthday—February 16, 1930—J. Hamilton Lorimer and I entered into a new contract. Until then we were operating on a guardian document. The new deal gave me 66⅔ and Ham 33⅓—fair enough!

I was going good by that time. I had knocked off so many of the boys, and was telling the world how good I was, that folks were saving up their money to buy tickets for each succeeding fight in the hope they'd see me knocked into the Pacific Ocean. Those who had been saying I was the world's worst heavyweight and never saw it proved in the ring kept coming back hopefully. They crowded the old Arcadia Pavillion in Oakland to cheer the guy—no matter who he was.

Champion Tells of Wigwagging Girl Friend In Crowd During Bout; Admits He 'Is As Good as Dempsey or Tunney'

Knocks Out a 'Killing Hitter'

Ham matched me up with Jack Linkhorn and there was a wild scramble for tickets. It was a cinch right at the beginning that the Arcadia couldn't hold the mob, so the bout was switched to the Civic Auditorium, and they jammed that place—to root for Jack.

He was quite a fellow along the Pacific Coast then. He had knocked out 18 men in a row up to the time we hitched up. He was rated as a "Killing Hitter," and, with his punching power like that, and me without defense—well, you can figure what everybody thought.

I knocked out Linkhorn with one solid punch in the first round—and my share of the $17,000 house was $7,500.

Boys, was I good?

And did I laugh?

I blew a three-round decision to Tiny Abbott and also a 10 to Les Kennedy in 1930. But I got square. Put the snoozer on Abbott in six later on, knocked out Kennedy in three in a return battle, bumped out Jack Stewart in two, Tom Toner in six, Buck Weaver in one, Kayo Christener in two.

'Good as Dempsey or Tunney'

I was getting boisterous and rich!

Ham was handling all the money. He advanced me funds as I needed them—and I needed them, all right. Suddenly I found I had more relatives—that I never had heard of—than King Soloman. And was I a pal? But what difference a few hundred—a few thousand dollars? I was a cinch to be champion—and hadn't Dempsey and Tunney made millions? I was as good as either—that's the way I figured things. So I passed out the cash.

SPEAKERS SEEK TO WIN TUBE TOLL FOES

Meetings Slated For Dormont, Carnegie

County Commissioner W. D. Mansfield and other civic leaders will take the stump tonight in an effort to overcome objections which may prove fatal to a federal grant and loan of $20,000,000 in the county.

Main meetings are scheduled in Hillsdale Avenue School, Dormont, and Carnegie High School.

They will culminate protests and counter-arguments over the fact that the federal allocation, sought by the Allegheny County Authority for self-liquidating public works in the county, will involve placing tolls on the Liberty Tubes.

CIRCULARS SCATTERED

Ten thousand circulars giving a brief resume of the advantages of the Authority allocation to South Hills residents have been distributed preparatory to the Hillsdale School meeting. There Mansfield and other county officials will appear at 8:15 p. m.

Announced for the purpose of indorsing the Authority, the Carnegie High School meeting will be attended by representatives from West End and from boroughs and townships out to the Washington County line.

Meanwhile, Congressman Clyde Kelly had wired County Solicitor J. P. Fife, also special counsel for the Authority, that development of a controversy over the tolls would kill the county's chances for the federal funds.

OPPONENTS BUSY

Opponents of the toll plan also were busy. Attorney Ralph F. Smith, of Dormont, charged the County Commissioners with attempting to bluff the people. He said:

"The County Commissioners' threat that, unless tolls are placed on the Liberty Bridge and Tunnels, the federal loan will fall through and deprive 12,000 men of work is a last-minute effort to bluff the people into acceptance of their arrogant program.

"All that the County Commissioners need do is to remove the $1,400,000 project for a ramp to the Liberty Bridge and Tunnels to clear the way for the adoption of this federal loan.

"If it is true, as represented by people in sympathy with the County Commissioners, that the federal authorities are insisting upon quick liquidation of this loan as an excuse for annexing this $1,400,000 project to the Liberty Tunnels and Bridge for toll purposes, then it is a frank admission that the people of the South Hills will bear the brunt of payment of this liquidation program."

M'NAIR, STORM TEAM ON TOLLS

Lightning flashed around the Hazelwood School last night as Mayor McNair delivered himself of a speech protesting the imposition of tolls on the Liberty Tubes. Pointing up, the Mayor said:

"Look, even nature is protesting against this toll."

Regis Gallagher, of the Mayor's retinue, making his first speech, was heckled by a slightly inebriated spectator, who first asked the Mayor:

"Want me to contradict him?"

Then he launched into a series of questions about the city incinerator. He was escorted from the hall.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 22.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Yale gave President Roosevelt a degree, but they made him make a speech for it. Degrees are getting higher priced. That's the most anybody has given for one in years.

Will Rogers

The President kinder held up for his Brain Trust, he said he would take brains anytime in preference to politics. He just as good as admitted you couldn't get both in the same body. He paid a very high compliment to Congress, and he should. They had just adjourned the day before.

Yours, WILL.

Cut On Foot Fatal To Coraopolis Child

She was playing near her home 10 days ago when the accident occurred.

Wage Conferences To Resume Monday

William J. Kelly, American Federation of Labor organizer, said today that conferences between gasoline filling station employes and oil company officials will be resumed next Monday. At that time an attempt will be made to settle demands of the men, which include union recognition, wages and working conditions.

WON'T REMOVE M'NAIR MANOR

Mayor McNair says McNair Manor can stay put on its little city plot by the jail—in spite of the fact that Building Inspection Superintendent George E. Evans has been saying it can't.

The Mayor said yesterday that he had told the Biltwell Construction Company, builders of the little frame house intended as a model for housing relief, that it could stay where it was.

Evans said he had given no extension on the time allowed the house to stand, and pointed out that a previous extension of 60 days was exhausted. The Mayor announced he'd give a new extension in writing if desired — and he would notify Evans.

3 Want Hearing On Lottery Charge

Three men arrested on charges of operating a lottery will be given a hearing before Alderman Ira H. Edmundson, of Mt. Lebanon, tonight. They are William Levine and Lee Braxton and John Font, the latter two Negroes.

The Rev. A. B. Hightower, Negro preacher and private detective, accompanied Constable John C. Edmundson on the raids in the Hill district which led to the arrests.

HORSESHOE CHAMP HERE TO SHOW HOW TO RING 'EM

Hollywood's Toast Has Hot Stuff Up His Sleeve

James Risk, of Hollywood, Cal., who holds more than his share of horseshoe pitching records and championships, is in town today to show the boys how to ring 'em.

Some of Risk's stunts include throwing ringers over a blanket stretched across the court so that he can't see the peg, lighting a match with a shoe, and ringing eggs, cigarets and pop bottle without breaking them.

Risk ordinarily rings about 80 out of every 100 shoes he throws, but has done better in competition. He explains that it's all in his swing, which is "long, effortless, and easy."

In flight, when he throws them, the shoe turns one and three-quarter times, and lands flat with its arms around the peg.

Risk will be in the Pittsburgh district, giving exhibitions, until about July 4, when he leaves for New England.

Roxie Long Arrested In Hill Store Theft

Roxie Long is back in the news again.

He's accused by Center Avenue Police of breaking and entering a chain store at 2208 Webster avenue early today and "carting" away merchandise. Two others are sought.

Roxie, who faces charges of obtaining groceries by tendering "rubber" checks in payment, was arrested in his home after Anna Anderson and William Marshall, Negroes, of 2205 Webster avenue, gave police the license number of the machine they said they saw being loaded with merchandise.

Police said the license number had been issued to Roxie. Later the Anderson woman identified Long as one of the trio, police said.

Roxie denied the charge.

Earlier in the week police confiscated a quantity of canned goods in the Long store in Amanda avenue, alleged to have been stolen in New Castle.

Job in Every Family Aim of RWD Here

James L. Stuart, county Relief Work Division head, today announced that the relief work program, as it is now operating here, will end August 31.

A new system aimed at providing a job for at least one employable person in every family on relief will be inaugurated September 1, he said.

Stuart's announcement came following the return of Philip H. Lantz, assistant RWD administrator here, from Harrisburg where Eric H. Biddle, state relief director, called a conference of RWD officials this week to plan the new program.

Lantz asserted the system to be adopted is in its early stages of development, but will be systematically planned as the date for its inauguration nears.

The RWD will merely mark time for the rest of its existence, according to Lantz, who said that few projects are being renewed by the authorities at Harrisburg after the original amount of funds granted them have been exhausted.

It is doubtful, he asserted, that any new jobs will be started under the present administration.

Workers now employed by the RWD number 12,200. According to Lantz, the men will be retained as long as the state relief office continues to allocate funds to Allegheny County.

RAIL BUSINESS INCREASE FORECAST

Railroad shipments, reflecting general business conditions, will show a 5.2 per cent increase for the third quarter of 1934 compared with the corresponding period last year, according to a forecast by the Allegheny Regional Advisory Board.

Shippers of the Pittsburgh district, advisers to the railroads, along with railroad executives, heard the forecast yesterday at a meeting in the Hotel Schenley.

COAL, COKE JUMP

The advisory board estimates that coal and cok. will show a 6 per cent jump for July, August and September over the same months of 1933; sand and gravel, 15 per cent; petroleum and products, 9.4 per cent; brick and clay products, no change, and iron and steel, a decrease of 5 per cent.

For the first quarter of this year shipments shot up 31 per cent over the first three months of 1933. In the second quarter the increase will be between 15 and 18 per cent, according to estimates.

U. S. OWNERSHIP

Government ownership of railroads came in for scathing condemnation by H. A. Palmer, of Chicago, editor of The Traffic World, at the meeting. Government control would mean making a political catspaw of the railways, he said. He added:

"In the first place, some fellow like W. G. McAdoo would be put at the head of the railroads. He didn't know anything about railroading when he began his job as director general and he never learned anything about it. The various heads of regions or departments would be politicians.

"Did you ever hear of a postmaster who knew anything about the postal business when he was appointed? . . . For that matter what of the great Gen. Johnson himself, administering all business by the grace of God and his own loud voice."

Fourth Trial Sought In Suit for Damages

Another motion for a new trial has been filed by the Fort Pitt Brewing Company in the case of Pete Athas, Chatham street, who was awarded a verdict Wednesday for $13,500 against the company for personal injuries. The case has been tried three times. Athas claims that he was knocked from a ladder when a truck of the defendant company struck it in 1927. The company denies their truck caused the accident.

Crowd Watching Mayor Open Police Pistol Range

THE NEW CITY POLICE OUTDOOR PISTOL RANGE NEAR ASPINWALL . . . MAYOR McNAIR DEDICATED IT WITH FIVE SHOTS

M'NAIR, POLICE GO BANG! BANG!

Pittsburgh police own a brand new revolver range today on Filtration plant grounds, Aspinwall.

At opening ceremonies yesterday, Mayor McNair led the way to the firing line and cracked five shots through his target at fifteen paces, but not all in the black. The Mayor's daughter, Betty, wearing her special gold police badge, officially opened the range.

Speakers included Jacob F. Dorsey, assistant police superintendent, and Col. W. R. Dunlap, director of supplies. The latter pointed out that police have to buy their own guns and ammunition, and advocated City Council now appropriating funds for shot and shell.

J. P. Barr, building maintenance superintendent, was in charge of the range construction, built at no cost to the city. Jones and Laughlin donated the huge 32 by 8 foot steel armor plate backstop; contractors donated the cement; city workmen supplied the labor, and even the timbers supporting the targets were salvaged from old stalls in firehouses.

Ten revolver teams fired their first match following the dedication, and Virgil Edwards, world's champion rifle shot, gave a demonstration.

RAIL FIRM BUYS RIVER FRONT

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., June 21.—Reviving reports of plans for the construction of an Ohio River bridge at Smith's Ferry, Pa., as part of the program for an outlet for the Youngstown steel district, Montour Railroad interests have acquired 18 acres of river front property at Georgetown, Pa.

The property, purchased from William Semple, of Pittsburgh, by James E. White, also of Pittsburgh, representing the Pittsburgh Coal Company, of which the Montour is a subsidiary, includes the Smith's Ferry-Georgetown ferry rights. The land comprises a strip 30 feet wide and about a mile in length.

White has also acquired four and one-half acres owned by James Blackmore, Smith's Ferry, adjoining a 40-acre tract recently puchased from R. A. Wallover and John C. Child, which would give the Montour access to the steel mill at Midland, Pa.

As a counter move, the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Company, part of the Pennsylvania system, has purchased the 50-acre Harry Dawson farm in Smith's Ferry, while both railroads are bidding for the adjoining 50-acre Howard Fife farm.

North Side Plans Community Jubilee

A committee of North Side business men announced plans today for a North Side community jubilee, fair and picnic in West Park June 30. They include children's games, starting at 10 p. m., two band concerts, athletic and aquatic meets and fireworks on Monument Hill at 10 p. m.

CITY AIMS BLOW AT DIVES

An ordinance providing for arrest and punishment of persons guilty of keeping or visiting disorderly houses has been introduced in City Council.

In an accompanying letter from the law department, immediate passage was urged on the grounds that the courts have declared an old ordinance covering these offenses to be void because of the uncertainty of the penalty.

In the present legislation the maximum penalty is fixed at $100 fine or 30 days in jail.

The provisions of the ordinance also extend to gambling houses and "other unlawful establishments."

MAN ACQUITTED IN CHURCH ROW

John Bibza, of 116 Crawford avenue, Duquesne, stood cleared today of perjury charges emanating from a bitter dispute between rival factions of the Slovak Evangelical Augsburg Lutheran Church, of which he is a prominent member.

Charges were leveled against Bibza after he scheduled some of his property as bond for a fellow church member arrested for assault and battery in connection with the internal trouble in the congregation. Bibza was accused of making false statements in posting the bond.

A jury yesterday found him not guilty and assessed the costs against Mary Kovac, one of the complaining witnesses. Judge M. A. Musmanno dismissed the costs.

Injured in Trolley Wreck, Gets $3,000

Anna M. Tremellen, Magnolia street, Mt. Lebanon, injured internally when two cars of the Pittsburgh Railways Company collided June 29, 1932, at Perrysville avenue and East street, won a verdict of $3,000 in Visiting Judge J. R. Waite's court yesterday. It was alleged that she was thrown to the floor, striking her head. She asked $30,000.

REPORT ON QUIZ AT LEECH FARM TO BE MADE

The committee investigating reports of thievery, drunkenness and misconduct at the Leech Farm tuberculosis hospital was to make its first report to Health Director Ray P. Moyer today.

Dr. Moyer made announcement of the investigation yesterday. He said he had ordered it on the ground of unsigned information, given by a person whose name would be available if he cared to ask. He said he had not ascertained the identity of the informer.

Members of the investigation committee are Mrs. Helen H. Ehrenfeld, Dr. R. H. Harrison and Dr. Brown Fulton. When he made the announcement, Dr. Moyer was not able to furnish the first name or the initials of Mrs. Ehrenfeld. He said the names had been suggested by a person whom he refused to name.

A letter was sent to Dr. J. Shilen, superintendent of the hospital, asking his full co-operation with the committee.

M'NAIR SEEKS VOICE ON FUND

Mayor McNair wants to be among those to pass on adjustments in liquidation of collateral protecting the city's million dollar deposit in the closed Pennsylvania Trust Company.

The Mayor yesterday sent back a resolution passed by Council permitting settlement of the so-called "political notes" which guarantee the city's deposits, by the State Secretary of Banking, the City Solicitor and City Treasurer, and with the approval of the City Controller.

The Mayor asked that the resolution be amended to include him among those who must pass on the adjustments.

The purpose of the resolution was to make possible the sale of collateral in event it will be necessary to take less than face value.

TWO GARBAGE PLANTS VOTED BY COUNCIL

City Council today voted to build two incinerators.

Sitting as the finance committee, Council voted to purchase land at Chateau and Reedsdale streets, on the North Side, and a site adjoining the Brilliant Pumping Station near Highland Park.

The solons were split on both propositions. On the North Side site, the vote was five to four. In favor were Councilmen Charles Anderson, Walter Demmler, Thomas J. Gallagher, John Kane and P. J. McArdle. On the second site, these five were joined by John M. Huston.

PROTESTS MADE

Cost of the North Side project is estimated at $500,000; of the Highland Park plant, $300,000.

Council will consider these purchases formally at meeting Monday. Then they will be submitted to Mayor McNair.

Protests have been filed against both sites.

END SEEN TO CONTRACTS

Before today's vote Councilman William A. Magee suggested that the offer of the American Reduction Company to sell its plant to the city should receive consideration.

The new incinerators would put an end to the garbage contracts given by the city to private contractors.

The American Reduction Company offered its plants and equipment for $625,000 and suggested in addition that a rubbish disposal plant be built for $150,000.

GARBAGE 'SITE' TAXES BOOSTED

Mostly on account of the garbage row, the county had today added $111,880 worth of land to its tax column.

The acquisition, which means about $900 more in taxes each year to the county, was brought about by the discovery that 44 acres of land in the Twentieth Ward was not being assessed. The land is on the McGunigle estate, Chartiers Creek, which was listed as only 18 acres, but proved to comprise some 63.

The discovery was made by assessors working under H. C. Workmaster, head of the real estate division of the county tax board, after attention had been attracted to the estate by the price asked when it was proposed as one of the many sites for a city incinerator.

Examination of the assessment also lead to a revision, changing the valuation of an acre from $800 to $2,000. The result of the change in valuation and discovery of additional land raised the assessment of the estate from $14,800 to $126,800.

SICK BOYS LINK FOES IN STRIKE

SEATTLE, June 22.—(AP.)—A policeman and a strike picket, each with a sick child in his home, watched each other warily near a dock entrance today.

Whenever a messenger or motorcycle appeared near the dock, Patrolman C. W. Norris hurried to them. He explained:

"It's my boy. He's terribly sick. He's only nine and I thought the wife or the doctor might be sending me word."

The other father, "just a picketeer," kept on eye on the heavy timbers, the coils of chain and the piles of rock placed at strategic points to enforce the coastwise strike of 27,000 waterfront workers. He said:

"Funny how we all get in a mess like this. There's the cop, Norris. His kid's sick, maybe dying. So's mine. Neither of us can go home. We got to stay here, watching each other. He because he's got a job; me because I'm fighting for one."

'Torpedo' Operator, Vet of Oil Fields, Dies

FRANKLIN, Pa., June 22.—(AP.)—Services are being arranged for Travis Mateeer Agnew, oldest "torpedo" operator in the Western Pennsylvania oil fields.

Agnew, who died yesterday after a brief illness, was 74. He made his own nitroglycerine for the "torpedoes" at Brandons Ferry, near Franklin.

Railroad Victim Ellwood City Man

BUTLER, Pa., June 22.—(AP.)—A man who fell from a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train and was killed has been identified as Roy S. Roof, 31, father of three children, of Ellwood City.

Roof's body was found yesterday on the tracks near Harmony Junction.

Public Health Good, Cramps His Alimony

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—(AP.)—Stanley Leonberg's support of his wife is a matter of life and death. He explained to a Domestic Relations Court Judge that the public health is too good to allow him to pay her $50 a week support.

Leonberg is an undertaker.

Law Gives Firemen Rights on Sidewalks

HIAWATHA, Kan., June 22.—(AP.)—The law here has failed to keep pace with the firemen. Asking a revision of city laws, Mayor Newton Reynolds points out that one ordinance gives firemen "full use and right of way of all sidewalks for their bicycles going to and returning from fires."

TENNIS AND PERFECT FREEDOM, CLOSE TO CITY

Prominent Society Women Sponsor Outing Spot

Working girls from Pittsburgh mills and offices, in need of bracing healthful country air and food, can find both these days at Pleasant Hill Farm, summer camp near Glenwillard.

In a pleasant valley, the camp is across a stream from the road, partly hidden by stately trees, and back far enough that highway traffic noise does not reach the house. A great hill, shaggy with forest, guards the clearing at the back.

The pool, in front, is hidden behind a rustic fence. Nearby is the tennis court, with hard clay surface.

Inside, house and furnishings are kept spotlessly clean. Roomy sleeping verandas, protected from the sun's glare by awnings, are swept by cool breezes. The library is equipped with radio.

LARGE DINING HALL

Always, dinner time finds all the girls assembled in the large dining hall with healthy appetites.

The camp is one of society's favorite projects. The Pleasant Hill Farm Association, with 40 women prominent in Pittsburgh society on the board of directors, is in charge.

In Pleasant Hill Farm they have built a vacation spot where girls who want rest and play away from city noise, work and worry, are invited to make themselves at home.

FINANCIAL AID

The camp, however, does not support itself. The charge is only $7 a week for each girl, or $1.75 for a separate week-end. Both the Welfare Fund, of which the camp is a member, and the association, which has often sponsored benefits to make improvements and retire deficits, aid financially.

The farm's history began 23 years ago, with the first camp located in Brownsville road. The association moved it to the present location in 1922 and built the large house, fitted with all modern conveniences, which is the principal improvement. Society benefits raised the money to build the steel bridge across the creek and the swimming pool.

There are beds for 90 girls, counting the two sleeping cabins built near the big house to take care of the overflow in recent years.

EXPERIENCED STAFF

Life at the camp, guided by an experienced staff, is full of activity and interest. Two recreational directors teach tennis, swimming and basketball and lead hikes and out-of-doors games.

Indoors, there are table games and singing parties. Plenty of books and magazines are in the library for those who like to read.

Mrs. George H. Love, association president, explains that girls who would like to come to the camp should call Miss Margaret Schodlatz, camp superintendent, at Coraopolis 9777, to make reservations. The camp will remain open, she reports, until about September 15.

MET AT STATION

The camp station wagon will meet the train at Stoop's Ferry and transportation between Stoop's Ferry and the camp is included in the camp fee. Week-ends are popular with many girls who cannot be longer away from their work.

Originally, Pleasant Hill Farm began as a project of the Founders' Chapter of the Y. W. C. A., with Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Mrs. William S. Sutton, and Miss Sarah C. McClelland among the charter members. Miss McClelland is now treasurer of the association, and Miss Evelyn Evans is secretary.

Dead Flier's Plane Prepared for Test

LOS ANGELES, June 22.—(AP.)—The plane the late Claire Vance, veteran air mail pilot, built as his idea of what a cargo-carrying ship should be, will be utilized by Lieut. Murray B. Dillie, Jr., in an effort to break nonstop flight records.

As a preliminary test, Dillie will attempt to make a round-trip flight between Los Angeles and New York, nonstop, about July 4. The big plane has a gasoline capacity of 1,200 gallons.

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

A vivacious, dark-haired member of our younger set will be married today at Bemus Point, on Lake Chautauqua — pretty Wilhelmina Coyle, daughter of the Dickson K. Coyles, of Wallingford street, and Falconer Jones, of Jamestown, son of Col. Ralph A. Jones and the late Mrs. Martha Falconer Jones, of Jamestown and Buffalo.

Before the white peony and fern-decked fireplace in the living room of the Bemus Point summer home of the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. William Steinmeyer, the ceremony will be performed, the Rev. Dr. A. J. Holl, of the First Lutheran Church, Pittsburgh, officiating.

Her mother's wedding gown of white satin, trimmed with Duchesse and rose point lace, will be the bride's wedding gown, too. The dress has a court train, edged with lace, belonging to her paternal great-grandmother's wedding gown. She will carry an all-white bouquet of lilies of the valley and bridal roses.

Miriam S. Hunter To Be Maid of Honor

Her cousin, Miriam Steinmeyer Hunter, as maid of honor, will wear a blue organdy dress having a wide blue ribbon sash of contrasting shade, ending in the back in a slight train. Her hat will be of fuschia pink organdy, and she will carry a Dresden bouquet tied with fuschia ribbons.

Her bridesmaids, Betty Dalbey, of Pittsburgh, and Marjorie Ruth Jackson, of Jamestown, N. Y., will wear similar gowns, but their dresses will be a lighter shade of blue than that of the maid of honor, and their sashes will be darker than hers.

Ralph Allen Jones, of Buffalo, will be his brother's best man, and Samuel Macmillen Davis and Richard Hallock Davis, both cousins of the bridegroom, and both of Chestnut Hill, N. Y., will be ushers.

Reception and Dinner Will Follow Ceremony

A reception and dinner will follow the ceremony. The mother of the bride will wear pink crepe with a large brown straw hat; Mrs. William Steinmeyer, the bride's maternal grandmother, will wear a black lace gown with touches of rose point lace at the neck, and a black hat, trimmed with lavender flowers; Mrs. Emma K. Coyle, her paternal grandmother, will appear in orchid chiffon and a white hat.

At the bride's table covers will be laid for 16. Tables on the terraces and verandas will be arranged for other guests. After a wedding trip the bride and bridegroom will make their home at "Wajohety" on Lake Chautauqua.

The bride attended Miss Ellis' School, and is a graduate of Westover, Middlebury, Conn. The bridegroom is a graduate of Choate School, Wallingford, Conn., and of Cornell University.

Pittsburgh guests at the wedding included the Roy M. Jacksons, the William A. Steinmeyers, the Charles S. Steinmeyers, the Edwin A. Coyles and their son, Robert Machesney Coyle, Mrs. Francis Keating, Virginia Keating, John Batchelar, Mrs. Chester R. Babst, Jane Sloan, the James M. Dalbeys, the D. J. Hicks, the James Finnessys, Mrs. Reed B. Coyle, Harriet Armstrong, the junior Charles T. Seiberts, the James Caruthers, Mrs. William H. Normecutt, the William A. Fords, Louise Bausman, Nancy and Dorothy Lanfitt, the Clarence Gettmans and many more.

'Tacky' Tournament Held By Women Golfers

The St. Clair Country Club and its golf course rang with peals of laughter yesterday. And no wonder. Yesterday was the day for women members' annual "tacky" tournament—the golfers play around the course in amazing costumes.

And there was a donkey for the woman player having the highest score on hole 13—the donkey transported her up the steep hill leading from hole 13 to the fourteenth tee.

For her paper composition big nose, big ears, big feet, big hands, Mrs. Clark Gould won the first prize for the funniest costume. Mrs. J. Ashford was the prize winner for the most complete costume—that of a Dutch girl. Mrs. W. E. Clark won first prize for low gross score, and Mrs. E. C. Reither, for lowest number of putts.

Social World Full Of Interesting Events

But to return to the costumes—honorable mention was received by Mrs. W. E. Clark, Mrs. Harry Lowe, Mrs. William Killough and Mrs. Bernard Falks.

Arranging the day were Mrs. Edward Bruce and Mrs. A. G. Wicks. And motion pictures of the event will be shown at a party later on in the summer.

This afternoon golfers who have children will be tempted like other mothers to take their children to the special entertainment for boys and girls, to be a part of the big benefit for the West Penn Hospital this afternoon, and tonight at Fox Chapel Golf Club.

Society to Dedicate Tablet to First Pittsburgh Newspaper Woman, Jane Grey Swisshelm

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

A memorial tablet to Jane Grey Swisshelm, first Pittsburgh newspaper woman and noted abolitionist and suffragist, will be dedicated on Thursday afternoon by the Woman's Historical Society. The tablet will be placed on the Sixth avenue side of Gimbel's store, which is the site of Mrs. Swisshelm's girlhood home.

Mrs. Swisshelm

Jane Grey Cannon (Mrs. Swisshelm) was born December 6, 1815, on Water street, of staunch Scotch-Irish ancestry on the distaff side. Her father was Thomas Cannon, of the family that gave to the Reformed Presbyterian Church some of its most influential ministers. Shortly after Jane's birth the family moved to Wilkinsburg, where they remained several years, coming back to Pittsburgh to make their home on Sixth avenue opposite the present site of Trinity Church, where only the graveyard was in those days.

From a "subscription school" and from her parents, little Jane received her education and for a few weeks attended a girl's seminary at Braddock's Field. Trained in rigid orthodoxy, Jane is said to have suffered great mental distress over religious dogmas. At the age of 21 she made her unfortunate marriage.

Much of her literary work was done at Swissvale, where her husband's old family homestead was situated, a log house that had been a fort of the French and Indian War. In those days when it was considered presumptuous and immodest for a woman to speak her mind, Jane Grey Swisshelm came out in no uncertain voice with her ideas concerning slavery, some of her articles being published.

With Lucretia Mott and Mary A. Grew she took up the fight on behalf of the rights of women with the result that the Pennsylvania Legislature passed a law securing to married women the right to hold property. In 1850 Horace Greely engaged Mrs. Swisshelm to go to Washington to write for the Tribune—scathing letters as they turned out to be.

The last years of her life were spent at the old Swissvale homestead, where she continued to write on current events and where her death occurred July 22, 1884.

All these facts have been compiled by Mrs. E. D. Harshbarger, of the Historical Society, who is chairman for the dedicatory exercises which are to follow luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday.

Annette Caressa Weds Dormont Man

In St. James Church, Wilkinsburg, on Thursday, June 14, Mons. Stephen Walsh solemnized the marriage of Miss Annette Caressa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Caressa, of Marlboro avenue, Floral Park, Wilkinsburg, to John F. Delaney, of Dormont.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin made with a high cowl neckline and a row of satin covered buttons extended down the back, and the long sleeves ended in points over the wrists. Her veil of tulle, finished with a wreath of orange blossoms, cascaded the length of the dress train. She carried white summer flowers and lilies of the valley.

Miss Virginia Caressa, her sister's maid of honor, wore pale pink crepe made with a cape collar of organza and carried pink roses and blue delphinium. The bridesmaids, Miss Jane and Miss Bernice Caressa, also sisters of the bride, wore blue crepe gowns and carried muffs of crepe and organza. Edward Smith was the best man and Frederick Stash was an usher.

After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Delaney left on a wedding trip and will reside in Dormont when they return.

SUMMERY WHITE TOUCHES ON DARK MODELS

Right, white dotted brown crepe with a waist-length cape of white linen trimmed with the crepe.

The frock above is brown crepe with good shoulder details—but the trick is the long detachable white linen gauntlet cuffs.

Left, a swell navy sheer with an organza blouse with a fluted collar edge and matching cuff ruffs. Note the fluted kick pleats.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

NO OTHER UNIFORM has ever been devised which has the variety and ingenuity of the dark ensemble with lingerie touches, intended for hot weather smartness. It is a joke on the menfolks who cling to the same combination in their suits and shirts, but who never have got past that elementary stage of the thing, and who sublimely disregard sensational changes.

Women are smarter. Cotton, linen, silks that are sheer or heavy, chiffon and velvet are some of the materials in dark shades which one can find in ready made summer tailleurs this season. One peek at the thermometer will tell a girl which will be the most comfortable, and she can find one that will be appropriate for any kind of occasion.

* * *

THE THREE MODELS sketched here are particularly attractive for town wear, the sheer navy ensemble being a natural for cafe parties by afternoon or evening lights.

Among the many other models that can be found the jacket and skirt of eylet embroidery deserves some notice for its 1934 success. In black, with jacket revers of heavy pink linen, and a tie or nosegay of the same shade on the frock itself, you have a very useful, cool outfit. And the spectator sports outfit seen recently at one of the big race tracks should be passed on. A white linen skirt with a frilly lingerie blouse was combined with a black and gray cotton tweed in a very loud pattern, and a beet root Tyrolean hat topped the ensemble.

NAVY BLUE SHEER or heavy silk with touches of powder blue linen makes a lovely costume. Black cotton net, much tucked and tailored is very sophisticated with white organza collars and cuffs. Dark brown with touches of butter yellow—say dark linen with a light string blouse—is cool and inviting, and distinctly townish.

The final junior drive was held as part of the national which has as its purpose stimulation of interest in young people by describing to them the needs of the Jewish youth in Germany and by pointing out how great is their responsibility toward t[illegible] obtain. The money it raises is chiefly for the amelioration of German Jewish youth.

The executive committee of the Pittsburgh junior division included Jane Metzger as secretary; Stanley Goldman as vice chairman; Flora Rothenberg, Nancy Newman, Robert Barr, George Golanty and Margaret Freund.

300 at Opening of Home Arts Studio

Nearly 300 representatives of women's organizations were present yesterday at the luncheon opening of Rosenbaum's Home Arts Studio. On the seventh floor of the store this attractive studio has been fitted out to accommodate church and club groups for luncheons, teas or other functions and will be under the direction of Mrs. Sara Tomlinson.

Here, too, patrons will be served tea each afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

The studio is most attractive in its decorations of tan and brown shades, with just a touch of contrasting blue in the ceiling lights and wall panels. Venetian blinds, also of tan, give it an added suggestion of coolness on warm days.

A rostrum is equipped as a modern kitchen while adjoining the studio is its own kitchen, where yesterday's luncheon was prepared. Mrs. Tomlinson greeted the guests and introduced Walter Rosenbaum, general manager of the company, whose brief talk was also a welcome to the women.

Two "high fashion" notes to start the day off properly! Have you heard about the new ombre hose that Paris is taking up in a big way? New Yorkers are almost stepping out of their shoes in their haste to get the new black or brown satin cocktail bags at $2.98. This fall they'll look $10 at least.

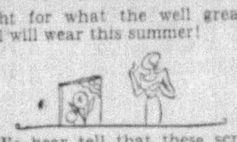
It's a game! A new kind of shuffle board that you play on your front porch or on the lawn (lacking the deck of a steamer!)

An eight-foot or so piece of oilcloth in green with yellow numbers painted on it lies on the floor . . . while you go plunkety-plunk with your "shuffle" to get the round wooden discs into their rightful places! $2.50's worth of fun for all your friends and the family in hot weather when active games are too much of a good thing!

* * *

Lest you bake your little face into a pie . . . oh, pieface! . . . use some of the sun oil that is available at almost any one of the stores. We know of one brand that comes in a 75c bottle (good size, too), which is probably less than most others.

Light . . . fine . . . easily absorbed by the skin . . . and utterly right for what the well greased girl will wear this summer!



We hear tell that these screen bridge tables are about the most hot-socking buys that the town offers along this line! (A little birdie told us of course!)

And so, being big-hearted that-away . . . and not wanting to see you all pine away for want of same . . . we suggest . . .

These at $2.49! That fold up easily with a rest to set them on when they're being used as a screen . . . which flips up under the table, out of sight, when it's in use as a table-proper! Strong . . . staunch . . . with beautifully decorated tops!

* * *

Lastex again! First in girdles . . . first in gloves . . . first in the hearts of all you country-women of ours and now in slippers for the first time (to our knowledge).

Lastex mesh slippe- . . . for pattering 'round the house on sultry days . . . for porch use when just the family is around! Lastex slippers in all pastel shades . . . with soft soles and the all-lastex-mesh tops that make you feel as if you had nothing on your feet and still give you a sole (pretty good, what?). Excellent for traveling . . . and vacation time is near. 95c.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

The big war in Hollywood, it appears, is the war against boredom . . . That is, for the stars and others in the magic lanterns . . . A columnist rarely finds time to yawn . . . Not this one, at any rate . . . The ever-changing scene and people manage to be exciting enough . . . David O. Selznick, the executive for Metro, however, is a sensible and gracious host . . . You are assured of a good time at his mansion in Bel-Air . . . He flits from group to group when he throws a party—to make sure that ennui doesn't set in . . . And his is a neat trick to prevent boredom—which certainly can be copied by hosts everywhere . . . Frinstance: when Mr. Selznick observes that the conversation is lagging among any of the grouped guests—or a lull has set in—he merely walks over and drops a bit of rolled-up paper into any lap . . . Ten times out of nine the person (into whose lap the piece of rolled-up paper falls) opens and reads it . . . On it is the name of someone—Tallulah Bankhead, let's say, or Walter Winchell . . . That reminder serves to pep up that group—for someone is sure to begin with: "Now, take that Winchell guy, I can tell you plenty about him, etc., etc.!" . . . With that as a starter the gossips start knocking anybody all over again.

Among other items that amuse me is learning that in the Brooklyn phone book (or so they tell me) is one Ming Toy Levy . . . She was so christened during the run of the show "East Is West" . . . And that on a recent passenger list bound for Yurrop were: "Mr. and Mrs. H. Ginsburg and infant, Conde!" . . . A Japanese name under the T's in the Los Angeles phone book is veddy, veddy fuddy—but they'd delete it, anyhow . . . Remind me about it when we next meet—you'll choke! . . . Like that song they're playing on my Scott right now, the one line in it that is contagious is: "You're every song I sing" . . . And the way Ruth Etting sings "Easy Come, Easy Go"—too good . . . When this appears on the stands in New York—I will have enjoyed my first two-day holiday in a spell . . . Aboard the 130-foot yacht of a Mr. Goetz, a local money man . . Whose guests included the Los Angeles District Attorney Fitts and his wife . . . Judge Sam Blake, a young man, who is so popular nobody'll run against him—and so he is assured of another six-year term . . . Bing and Mrs. Crosby, Gordon and Revel, Hazel Forbes, Eddie and Mrs. Cantor, the chief of detectives in L. A. and some of the attaches from Washington . . . The trip was to Santa Catalina Island, a form of Heaven, on the Pacific.

Well, I have been amused and saddened in my career by letters from people—but this one tops them all . . . A Mrs. Eulalia Callender, of Galion, O., scolds me because I related that the cops were instructed to shoot Dillinger dead on sight, etc . . . She says when she heard me flash that—she could have broken my nose . . . Her fury is most interesting . . . She champions Dillinger, but her lengthy letter, much of it unintelligible, was hardly as interesting as one she enclosed—from a man described as Dillinger's attorney . . . Apparently the form letter, which it seemed to be, is sent to all o' Dillinger's fan mail senders and admirers . . . It is amazing how the attorney rates his client. He never mentions J. D. by name, however . . . But he sets forth that his "client" is a student of the Bible and "a dandy fellow," etc. . . . His press notices, of course, testify otherwise . . . But get a load of the attorney's letter!

It follows: "My Dear Mrs. Callender: Yours of March 7th received and read with a great deal of interest. Let me say in behalf of my client I certainly appreciate a very tender feeling reading between the lines of your short message. I can clearly realize the trend of your beautiful heart. I will undertake seriously to have the message delivered to my client in person. You may rest assured that I am perfectly safe in saying that the party in question will be most appreciative of your very sweet offerings and thought. I, like you, believe that it was the hand of God that enabled this young Christian to live on.

"From my experience with the party in question I can safely tell you that he will rob no banks, but it is his firm intention to travel in the path of righteousness. He is a great student of the Bible. The last conversation I had with him he had told me that it was his intention to give the balance of his life in this world to God, and beyond any doubt, your sweet prayers have had a great deal to do with his deliverance. I remain, very sincerely," (Name deleted, why give him an ad?).

Mrs. Callender's scribbling on the margin of the above read: "Am enclosing letter from Dillinger's lawyer."

Baxter Star In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Such Women Are Dangerous," showing in the Fulton, along with the Baer-Carnera fight pictures, which have jumped the attendance in the Sixth street house to the standing-room mark this week, will prove interesting, if at all, because of its fairly logical manner of handling a mass of incident rather than in story-appeal. This is not high, because the basic theme is not such as to evoke much audience sympathy.

There is to commend it a suave characterization by Warner Baxter as a writer of best selling novels who has that attraction for women that the more silly ones seem unable to resist. In other words, the star's workmanship is better than the stuff he has to work with, and if you can be satisfied with good acting by a good actor—well, there you are.

Our author has an affair with one woman, which gets him into no trouble, but he finds difficulty piling upon difficulty when he refuses to have one with a young girl—a hero-worshiping type who tries to force herself upon him. Failing, she kills herself under circumstances that result in the arrest of the writer on a murder charge.

Which leads up to a well-done court room sequence, in which Irving Pichel, of Pittsburgh, Pa., appears as attorney for the defense, and Irving does make a good lawyer, as those who saw him as the D. A. in "An American Tragedy" will recall.

Feminine lead roles are capably played by Mona Barrie, Rochelle Hudson and Rosemary Ames. Henrietta Crosman, Herbert Mundin and Richard Carle, veteran musical comedy star, are in the cast, too.

Hearst Metrotone News includes Max Baer smilingly commenting on his victory over The Man Mountain, Mr. Carnera.

Miss West Cautious

By LLOYD PANTAGES

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 22.—One of my local MATA HARI'S informs me that the reason MAE WEST appears so rarely in public is that a bunch of the BOYS have been unfortunately telephoning the BROOKLYN BERNHARDT from time to time and slipping her the following nasty threats:

"You've made about a million bucks with that face of yours but one day we are going to throw acid at it which will fix your money making beauty for all time."

No wonder the lady takes detectives with her when she goes to the prize-fights.

The most disappointed man in the Americas—or would it have been Europes—was LAWRENCE FOX, a broker, who discovered that the apparition in gentlemen's riding clothes that seemed to be pursuing him for some four days on a bridal path on the RIVIERIA, was none other than GRETA GARBO on her last European jaunt. MR. FOX became so completely hysterical at the idea that he was about to see the Devoon NORDIC face to face, that he whipped out his riding boots and had them especially polished to the point of frightening the horse, and waited on the very same bridal path for THREE WEEKS (shades of Elinor Glyn) but never again saw the GARBO. One of her palsy walsys had tipped her off, and she moved her horse elsewhere.

McGraths in Open Air Drama

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Paul McGrath, with his wife, whose stage name is Lula Mae Hubbard, are among the Pittsburghers who will be active among the summer playhouses along the Atlantic and up the Hudson. The Rockridge Players, managed by Charles Coburn, announce performances of "Murray Hill" with the McGraths in the leading roles.

Mr. Seibel

The Rockridge Players have an outdoor theater seating 4,500 as part of their plant. Among the interesting productions that are planned for the open air is "Rip Van Winkle," which should have a very atmospheric setting so close to the Catskills, where the scene is laid. "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "Lysistrata" will also be given in the outdoor theater.

The playhouse for indoor performances, of which a picture is before me, looks so much like the old theater at Oberammergau that one expects a few peaks of the Bavarian Alps to rise behind it. Perhaps there'll be instruction in yodeling in the music school that is connected with the enterprise.

SCOUTS ON THE TRAIL

One of the interesting facts in connection with these summer play centers is that dramatic managers, and especially picture studios, have their scouts rushing up and down to see the new things—much as baseball clubs have their scouts visiting the bush leagues.

Two young women, Miriam Meredith and Phyllis Blum, saw 13 shows during one week. Whether they saw anything worth showing on Broadway or in Hollywood, they do not reveal. But they are very proud of having seen Clark Gable first, long ago when he was one of the many.

They are not looking for plays about Negroes—which cuts out both "The Green Pastures" and "Othello." They are not looking for race problems, politics or labor. That eliminates "Stevedore," as well as most of Galsworthy and Shaw. They are looking for a vehicle for Anna Sten, who recently did "Nana." But they can't have another of Zola's books, because his heirs have protested that the Hollywood version was "idiotic, naive, and nothing like the original."

BARGAINS IN OPERA

The biggest opera bargain ever offered is now at the disposal of New Yorkers in the Hippodrome. "Aida" at 50 cents—with "36 Exotic Egyptian Dancing Girls," to say nothing of elephants, camels and horses. This hardly pays for hay for the elephants. There will be no bargain matinees.

That most eloquent of eloquent Fellows, the Colonel who is the megaphone of the Barnum-Bailey-Ringling circus, will have to use dollar adjectives to make his show seem bigger and better than this "Aida."

But there's an idea for the circus! The daughter of Rasputin, the mad monk, has just written a book to vindicate her father. She wants to obtain for his memory "the respect and veneration that are its due."

The young lady earns her living as a trainer of wild animals.

There is her qualifications either for the sawdust ring or the movie version of "Androcles and the Lion."

Tickets on Sale For Civic Play

Tickets for "The Curtain Rises," the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse's initial production for the 1934 summer season which will be open for a week in the Arnold School Monday evening, are on sale at Gimbel's, the Penn-Lincoln Hotel, Wilkinsburg, and Youngk's newsstand in Squirrel Hill. Seats may also be purchased at the playhouse office in the William Penn Hotel. The technical staff for "The Curtain Rises" includes De Lisle Crawford, technical director; Frank Cassill, assistant; Margaret Challinor, stage manager; Henrietta Cohen, mistress of properties; Mary Alice Yaste, bookholder.

British Studios Bidding For More Artists

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, June 22.—Hello! Another indication that England is bidding for Hollywood celebrities was evidenced over the weekend when I overheard the movie village end of a transcontinental telephone conversation which concerned such notables as Clive Brooke, Director William Beaudine, Maureen O'Sullivan, Sally Blane, Richard Bennett and John Gilbert.

The above-mentioned were "requested" by both British International and British-Gaumont. It just proves to Hollywood that England is tremendously important in its efforts to produce world-entertainment movies. It is the first admitted rival of the long exclusive movie colony.

H. W. Hanemann, funny writer for RKO, had the gossips very much aglow over the week-end. He was seen escorting Dorothy McCoy to the airport. The buzz-buzz was that he was eloping! No such thing! Hanemann is very much married, but he was putting Dot on the plane for a runaway marriage with Craig Brooks, a fiction writer.

It was quite accidental, but Allen Jenkins appeared to be a composite of Schnozzle Durante and Maurice Chevalier. In other words, Allen's nose had suddenly assumed greatly enlarge proportions and his lower lips had that Ubangi-effect a La Chevalier. It seems that Mr. Jenkins had a fistic battle with Lonnie d'Orsay, Paramount assistant director—and, what's more, Mr. Jenkins and Mr. d'Orsay will again meet for a fistic routine at a very early date.

Hollywood in general did not know of the fistic battle, but will undoubtedly hear of the second. Mr. Jenkins plans to win that one!

One Warner Film Belongs In the First Rank

By KARL KRUG

With a sob in its throat, a tear in its eye and a message in its heart, "No Greater Glory" has come to the Warner as the latest defy of Hollywood to the challengers of the sincerity of that often crack-brained village.

One can do no less than rank "No Greater Glory" with the outstanding photoplays of the past 10 years. Not only has it been superbly produced, splendidly photographed and tenderly told, but it is, in my opinion, the finest contribution of all the fine things Frank Borzage has contributed to the talking screen.

With all those deft, human directorial touches for which he is noted, Borzage has taken two groups of youngsters, placed them "at war" for possession of a vacant lot as a playground and emerged with one of the most forthright film entertainments it has been my pleasure to behold in many months. That Borzage has cast off the iron-bound shackles and traditions of Hollywood in making "No Greater Glory" is just one more indication of the man's sound sense of picture play values.

While the battle these groups of youngsters wage for the vacant lot is only a play-war, it is subtly symbolic of the greater conflicts that are staged between nation and nation, and the futility of each is grimly and forcibly brought to light. It is my guess that your eyes will be wet more than once as "No Greater Glory" unreels its determined narrative without once flinching from the truth as originally set down in Molnar's "The Paul Street Boys" from which the film was adapted.

From a seat on the sidelines, two old soldiers watch the conflict as it develops and comes to a climax, and for a character to stir an audience as it has seldom been stirred by a juvenile player before there is little George Breakston as the physically frail yet valiant-hearted "Nemecsek," whose fragile body houses a spirit noble in truth, honesty and sincerity.

This youngster's performance is pitched in just the proper key to realize the total value of such a role as he is offered in this, his screen baptism. As companions he has such adroit youthful players as Frankie Darro, Jimmie Butler and Jackie Searl, with every part handled capably and sincerely. Both Ralph Morgan and Lois Wilson are first rate as the parents of Nemecsek.

Because of its subject matter, "No Greater Glory" should not be confused with "something only for the children." On the other hand, it is straight-from-the-shoulder drama that never tries to shove its smiles and tears behind a barrage of sophisticated wisecracks.

While I cast benisons in the general direction of Columbia Pictures for such an outstanding triumph as "No Greater Glory," it is difficult to reconcile "The Most Precious Thing in Life" as a product of the same company. A doleful saga of doubtful purpose.

Donald Cook, Jean Arthur, Richard Cromwell and Anita Louise are cast in the leads in this dire attempt to revive all the sufferings of the long suffering screen mothers. The Joe Penner short and the Maxie Baer filler would have been more than sufficient as sidelines in the current Warner program.

Ride to New Haven

HERE'S another taxi story. This one happens to be true. And if it isn't one of the best cab yarns you ever heard, I miss my guess. Take a peek:

Just for the sake of variety and because his name is Jim, we will call the driver Jim. He's about forty years of age, and he's been hacking ever since the days of the red flag. In case your memory is short, a red flag always betokened a meter that registered an extra dollar every time the cab hit a bump.

Having been in the game so long, Jim knows every trick of the trade. He was in the racket when a hustling hackie could knock out $50 and $60 a week. And he's still in it today when a driver has to go like the devil to earn himself $20 in the same space of time. However—

Jim usually hacks in the West Forties, near Sixth avenue. About a week ago, around three in the morning, he sat at his wheel and looked gloomily about him. There wasn't anything doing, and it didn't look as though he'd pick up another fare. Oh, well, he'd hang around for thirty minutes more and then call it a go.

He unfolded his favorite newspaper and read the same sporting page for the third time that night. He had just reached the point where the sporting editor was urging a fight between James J. Braddock and Max Baer—when the stew appeared.

Jim dropped his paper and stepped hastily from his cab. The stew seemed much like other stews—except that, if anything, he was a trifle stewier. The driver held open the door and the drunk swayed unsteadily.

"I'm a businessh man," he said. "One of the bes' businessh men in the world. You unnerstan' me?"

"You bet," nodded Jim. "I can tell by lookin' at you that you're a heluva business man. Step right in, mister, and I'll have you home in no time."

The drunk fell into the machine and hiccoughed loudly.

"Who'sh sayin' anything 'bout goin' home?" he demanded. "I jus' told you I'm a businessh man—and businessh men don't go home. You wanna make somethin' out of it?"

Jim grinned.

"No chance, buddy. We're pals, you and I. Just tell me where you want to go."

The stew settled back in comfort.

"I'm goin' to New Haven," he announced. "I got some businessh up there. You drive me up, wait 'til my businessh is over, and then you drive me back. Unnerstan'?"

Jim didn't think he heard correctly.

"Just a minute, mister. I don't quite get you. You're in New York now, you know. Are you sure you want to go to New Haven?"

The drunk gazed at him belligerently.

"Wassa matter with you?" he asked. "When I say I wanna go to New Haven, thas where I wanna go. I'm a business man and I got a lot of friends in Tammany—so you better not get fresh about it."

"You gotta lot of nerve tellin' me my businessh. What do you thing I'am—drunk or somethin'? Close that door and start driving. We're gonna go to New Haven."

Jim closed the door, resumed his seat at the wheel and scratched his head. As badly as he needed the money, he couldn't see a trip to New Haven with a drunk who obviously didn't know what it was all about.

The ride called for more than 75 miles each way, and the sleeping beauty in the back wasn't exactly prosperous-looking. It was very doubtful that he would be good for the fare.

"This is a cute note," Jim muttered to himself. "I don't get a break all night. And when somethin' does pop up, it's a drunken bum that wants to go to New Haven. Fine business!"

He thought the matter over for a few minutes, and then decided to drive over for a cup of coffee. He'd permit the stew to continue sleeping. After he'd had his coffee, he'd waken his fare. And if the drunk still insisted on going to New Haven he'd take a chance with him.

Jim drove over to Eighth avenue and entered his favorite Coffee Pot. He sat there for almost an hour, discussing the problems of the world with the counterman. And as he rose to leave, he talked of his fare with another driver.

"I don't know just what to do about it," said Jim. "The guy's out like a light. I thought of drivin' him to New Haven and takin' a chance on the pay. But it's gettin' late and I—well, I just don't know."

The other driver offered his opinion.

"If he don't look like ready money, Jim, you'd be a sucker to take the job. I'd advise you to take him back where you picked him up and charge him whatever's on the clock. You're better off in the long run."

Jim accepted the advice. He stepped back into his cab and drove back to his original stand. As he came to a stop, he discovered that the drunk was awake.

The stewy one struggled with door handle and finally staggered out. Fumbling about in his pocket, he drew out two $20 bills and passed them to the driver.

"Just a minute, mister," Jim protested. "If you want to pay me, I can't——"

The stew cut him short.

"Stop getting fresh," he hiccoughed. "You mus' think I'm drunk, or something. I know jush as well as you how mush it costs to drive to New Haven and back. Another word out of you an' I'll have the cops here."

And with that he stumbled away, leaving Jim $40 richer for a drive of two blocks.

FIELDS PHILOSOPHIES

W. C. Fields is, at the moment, the highest class funny man in Hollywood. In the last several months his stock at the box-office has jumped amazingly, and Bill attributes his return to favor to the fact that he has no money.

"A comedian can't afford to have money," says Bill. "It's fatal. I know because I made a lot of money once, and I almost fell right out of pictures. It wasn't until I went broke again that I got back. If an audience remembers that a comedian has a million bucks stuck away in some bank, it doesn't consider him funny.

"And, if a comedian has a lot of dough it hampers his work. Instead of concentrating on laughs, he's worried about cutting coupons." But, and this is the very worst thing that could happen to him, he acquires dignity."

Mr. Cantor and Mr. Jolson please copy.

A SONG FOR DOROTHY

They were talking about Dorothy Dell last night, and someone mentioned that in "Little Miss Marker" she sings a song in which the lyrics, "Take Me Away From It All," are plenty prominent. But that wasn't what I started to write about.

The late actress got her first "break" with the last "Follies," which Mr. Ziegfeld opened here, and she was topped by only one songstress in the production, that being Miss Ruth Etting in her characterization of Nora Bayes singing "Harvest Moon." Even Helen Morgan's "Half Caste Woman," the audience reaction to which was a bitter disappointment to the Old Master, didn't get near the hand accorded Miss Dell.

Jerry Howard, erstwhile Healy stooge, who just passed through en route to Hollywood, told me something I didn't know about that "Follies." He was in town the day Dorothy was killed.

"Ziegfeld had that kid singing for five solid hours before he signed her," Jerry said. "She crashed his office when word came out that he couldn't see her until the next day, and then he spent the afternoon listening to her songs, mostly blues and Negro spirituals. She walked out of the place with a contract."

WHAT ABOUT STOCK?

I hear that Florence Reed is kicking up a terrific trade in her revival of "The Shanghai Gesture" in the Colonial Theater in Akron, a playhouse operated by Mott Shea, owner of the Fulton here. The natives are flocking from as far away as Cleveland to see her, and the entire countryside has become stock-company conscious.

In the meantime, such an established place of repertoire as the Pitt lies dark and shuttered here. When a community the size of Akron can support a summer stock troupe, Pittsburgh should be able to follow suit. While the Edwin Vail venture was a dud, it was doomed from the first by bad management. The wonder is it lasted as long as it did.

From a city that once supported three legitimate playhouses and a stock company winter and summer, to say nothing about a show boat on the side, the legitimate has sunk to a low estate in the immediate vicinity. And, I mean no disrespect to the worthy amateur movements now in progress here.

There is a possibility of a stock engagement in Pittsburgh before the summer fades. The town needs it, and properly handled, with guest stars, I think the venture would be a success.

Three Boys, Instead of Two, Aided by Joan

By HARRISON CARROLL

International News Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, June 21.—Instead of two boys, as she thought, Joan Crawford really has been sending three Denver, Indiana, youths through school this year, the actress learned today.

The news came when William and Donald Donaldson, whom Joan befriended, nervously asked studio friends to tell the star that they had been making the expense money she gave them also pay the expenses of a 13-year-old younger brother. All three of the boys have been going to Compton, Cal., high school.

When informed of the innocent deception, Joan quickly allayed her proteges fears that she would object to the money being split with their younger brother. On the set of "Sacred and Profane Love," her new picture at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the star said:

"I'm glad to hear they were so generous. Now that I know they have a brother, I'll be glad to see him through, too."

It was due to Joan's kindness to the Donaldson brothers that the town of Denver, Indiana, this year declared a holiday on her birthday.

Now that the two elder boys have finished high school, she'll send them to the University of Southern California beginning next term. Both boys are looking for summer jobs to help pay their own way.

AUTO SKIDDING IN STORM KILLS 2

Two men were dead today and two others were injured, one seriously, as the result of a skidding accident at the north end of the Thompson Bridge, Duquesne, late last night.

The automobile carrying the four men slipped from the highway during a thunderstorm and struck two poles.

A third man was killed as he walked in Duquesne boulevard, near Kennywood Park.

The dead were Stephen Belayan, 19, of Frank street, Whitaker; William Pernick, 20, also of Whitaker, and Martin Zehfus, 60, of Duquesne boulevard.

Belayan and Pernick were passengers in an automobile said to have been driven by Steve Banick, 22, of Whitaker. Belayan was almost instantly killed, while Pernick died several hours later, in McKeesport Hospital.

Anthony Rabel, 24, of Whitaker, was taken to McKeesport Hospital in a serious condition.

Banick was arrested by Duquesne police.

Zehfus was fatally injured when struck by an automobile driven, according to police, by Robert Manion, of 141 Meridan street. Zehfus died in Homestead Hospital.

Mrs. Anna MacIntire, 60, of 311 South Fifth street, Duquesne, was believed to have suffered a broken neck when the axle of an automobile in which she was a passenger, broke and the car overturned on Bull Run road.

STORM GREETS SUMMER

Summer was settling down for a three months' visit today after having been officially ushered in last night to the roar of thunder and flash of lightning.

Yesterday was the longest day of the year, but only by a few seconds, Observer W. S. Brotzman explained. The sun attained its farthest point north at 9:48 p. m. eastern standard time. Today it was on its way south, but the warming up will not reach its peak until late in July.

Continued warm weather with more showers was in prospect for tonight and tomorrow. Yesterday's maximum was 90.

From .20 to .30 inch of rain fell in scattered districts. Only a trace was recorded at the Weather Bureau. Hail fell in Beechview.

A chimney on the home of Mrs. Mildred A. Lauler, at 1665 Kelton avenue, Dormont, was struck by lightning as was one on the home of J. Steele, rear of 240 East Eighteenth avenue, Homestead.

A pole at Forbes street and Dallas avenue, and wires in the 1700 block Brownsville road and McGann's Corner, West End, also were struck.

Woman Changes Mind, But Not Constable's

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 22. (AP.)—Constable Ernest B. Provance has become a firm believer in the theory that women change their minds more easily than men.

He went to the home of Mrs. Charles Cottage, of Hays Works, yesterday to arrest her husband on a charge of desertion. She had sworn to the information several hours before.

Mrs. Cottage said her husband was not at home. But the constable searched the dwelling and found him in a cupboard. He was arrested, despite the wife's apparent change of mind.

YOUTH DROWNS IN POND

Caleb Myers, 19, of 108 Dry street, McKeesport, was drowned when he was seized by cramps while bathing in a pond near East McKeesport last night, the Coroner's office reported.

Myers, swimming with several companions, failed to reappear after diving. His unconscious form was recovered 20 minutes later by Sherwood McGraw, 21, of 104 Broadway, East McKeesport.

His companions and neighbors worked almost two hours in an attempt to resuscitate the victim.

HINTS ON WAYS TO AVOID FOOD SPOILAGE

Warm days bring the ever important problem of food spoilage. Fresh meats, like other raw foods, must be recognized as perishable and must be cold if they are to keep.

In the modern mechanically cooled refrigerators where very low temperatures are maintained, fresh meats will keep four to five days, and cooked meats several days longer. Cured meats, like bacon and ham, and highly seasoned sausages will keep for extended periods.

Unwrap the meat as soon as it arrives to keep the paper from absorbing the juices and drying onto the meat. Wipe the meat with a damp cloth if necessary but avoid washing it, since the water soaks out flavorful and nutritious juices.

Wrap the meat in fresh oiled paper if it is kept in the electric refrigerator, so as to prevent the surface of the meat from drying. Small cuts like chops may even be placed in the hydrator with the vegetables. Although it is usually suggested that meat be left unwrapped for efficient preservation, it dries out badly if left uncovered in the lower temperatures maintained in mechanical refrigerators.

It is possible to freeze fresh meats by wrapping them and placing them directly inside the

WAYS OF ADDING ZEST TO WARM WEATHER MEALS

Children, especially in vacation days, when they play near home, are apt to get into the habit of making frequent trips to the pantry, now for an apple, a little later for a few cookies, so that at mealtime, they're simply not hungry—"don't feel like eating."

Yet they need a balanced, nutritious diet all the year round. One way of curing them of "not hungry" is to have such delicious meals, that they'll regret having taken the edge off their appetites. Mrs. J. Marcus, first prize winner, has done this. Of her chicken salad, she says:

"My children love it these hot summer days, and it's so delicious and healthful."

What recipes which will add zest to meals do you have to send to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph? Miss Penny, you know, is awarding one $5, five $1 prizes, daily, to the best recipes received. No recipes are returned.

CHEESE BREAD
GERTRUDE RUPPERSBERGER,
Freeport.

One quart lukewarm water.
One yeast cake.
One-half pound of grated cheese.
One and two thirds ounces sugar.
Two and three-quarters pounds flour.
Three ounces lard.
One ounce salt.

Yield—two large loaves of bread or three small ones.

Dissolve the yeast in a little lukewarm water. Mix the cheese with the flour. Put it into a bowl. Make a hole in the center of the flour and put in the dry ingredients. Heat the water and melt the lard in it. Let it cool to lukewarm, then add the yeast. Pour the liquid into the hole in the flour. Mix the flour into the liquid thoroughly until one has a smooth dough. Let it rise. Knead it down then, let it rise again. Mold into loaves and let rise, then bake in a hot oven for 40 minutes. When baked rub the loaves with butter.

MRS. JOSEPH FENNER,
340 W. 13th avenue, Homestead.
CHERRY MUFFINS

Two cups flour.
Four teaspoons baking powder.
Three-fourths teaspoon salt.
Two tablespoons sugar.
One egg.
One cup milk.
One-fourth cup butter.
One cup fresh pitted cherries or unsweetened canned cherries.

Sift the flour before measuring. Then re-sift with other dry ingredients (baking powder, salt and sugar). Combine the beaten egg, milk and melted butter. Add to the dry ingredients and mix quickly as possible adding cherries with the last few stirs. Pour the batter into oiled muffin pans. Bake in a hot oven 20 to 25 minutes.

F. M. EARLY,
938 Washington road (74).
FATHERLAND FARM MEAT LOAF

Butter a long narrow cake tin and line with cold mashed potatoes, smoothing with a spatula into an inch-thick layer. Inside this put a filling of roast beef, chopped coarsely, seasoned with pepper, salt, and a few drops of onion juice, and moistened with gravy. Smooth this filling within one inch of the top of the tin, and cover with mashed potatoes. Bake in hot oven for half an hour. Turn from pan on a long platter. Looks like a crusted loaf. May be cut in slices.

He knew this butter secret

Beauvilliers, host to Parisian epicures more than a century ago, knew that whipt butter has a finer, more delicious flavor. If he were alive today he would recommend to you—try this delicious new kind of butter, Chiffon Whipt Butter.

created by KRAFT

YOUR FIRST REAL TASTE OF BUTTER

Kraft brings you the epicurean secret of instant and finer butter flavor. Starting with the finest selected, pasteurized cream, the great Kraft creameries add to the customary churning a scientific new operation: the butter is properly whipt. This distributes the flavor and aroma elements more completely and uniformly through every bit of the butter. They are more instantly released when the butter touches the taste buds on the tongue.

Salted or Unsalted—Packed only in half-pound cartons

Chiffon WHIPT PURE Butter

Spreads easier

This new creamy-textured butter spreads more easily than ordinary butter. Yet it keeps its form and texture in warm weather. You find it easy to make sandwiches with this delicious Chiffon Butter.

Creams more quickly

Chiffon Butter creams much more easily and in much less time than ordinary butter. Saves time and work in making sauces, cakes; baking is a real joy. Chiffon Butter's finer flavor makes all good foods taste better.

Economical

The big Chiffon package is nearly a third larger than the usual half pound of butter. This butter is whipt, yet in baking you use it measure for measure, the same volume as ordinary butter.

freezing unit. Freeze them quickly. Frozen meat will keep for days and should be left frozen until just ready to cook. Freezing is particularly adapted to whole fowl and fish.

MARINADE USEFUL

If cooling facilities are poor, fresh meats may be kept by covering them with a marinade. This is a mixture of 1 part cooking oil and 3 parts vinegar seasoned with salt, mustard and pepper or other spices. Poured over the meat, it prevents spoilage for a day or two, until the meat can be used. Marinating tends to tenderize and season the meat as well as preserving it. A chuck or rump roast so treated makes a delectable pot roast with a flavor quite new and interesting.

Bacon sometimes becomes very dry and brittle when it has been kept over a period of a week. To avoid this condition, wrap it carefully in plenty of oiled paper and place it on the bottom shelf of the refrigerator. The colder temperatures of the top shelves are unnecessary for keeping cured meats.

Make your refrigerator serve you in planning meat dishes for the summer menus. A good veal roast prepared for one dinner will keep five or six days if chilled at once and will delight the family as cold sliced veal, jellied veal loaf or salad, or in a hearty club sandwich.

Here are a couple of recipes we suggest using for the left-over cold roast.

* * *

JELLIED MEAT LOAF—2 cups finely diced cooked meat, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, ¾ cup boiling water, ¼ cup vinegar, 2 hard cooked sliced eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon diced celery, 1 chopped pimento, ½ chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons finely minced onion, ½ cup mayonnaise or boiled salad dressing.

Soak the gelatin in cold water, then dissolve in the boiling water. Add vinegar and salt. Cool. When mixture begins to jell mix in all the other ingredients excepting the eggs. Rinse a mold in cold water, arrange the egg slices on bottom and sides, then pour in the meat mixture. Set in cold place until firm. Serve on a bed of shredded lettuce. Serves 6.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS

:-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-:

By MARION BRUNOT

Mean Father Now Seeks Daughter's Friendship

He HAMMERED the HEEL from one of her EVENING SLIPPERS.

But that wasn't enough, he always abused her MOTHER, he read cheap serial fiction and squandered his PAY CHECK on poker games.

And to make life still more unpleasant when she got a real beau, he always scolded her in a LOUD VOICE.

And, although he was a good mechanic and knew well what was expected of him as a citizen, he didn't pay his debts and ran around with other women.

Miss Brunot

And yet, because he chances to be her FATHER, there are people who say she should treat him with RESPECT.

One of these is her father-in-law, who in five years has been more of a real father to her than the other man was in all the long years in which he had his chance.

KEEP GOOD OPINION

Evidently this man, in his FINENESS, doesn't realize how contemptible some other men can be. That's it, sister . . . There are men who are so high principled and so kindly disposed, they imagine all other men are the same. They are such good souls that we, you and I, sister, must think twice before we jostle them too hard. . . . You must keep his good opinion . . . and yet, surely after all these years with the BIG, BAD MAN who ruined your mother's life as well as those of her children, it does seem peace should be yours if you can have it.

Just because a man chances to be a father, is no positive proof that he is a noble product of God. Just because a man vows before a minister, to love, honor and, protect a woman, does not verify for a certainty he will do so.

There are cold, cruel, tyrannical, selfish fellows who were never cut out to make anyone happy. Not even themselves . . . There are men who dissipate all the good in them until there is nothing left but dross. There are men who are fathers, and who have no more idea of the responsibility intrusted to them, than has a poor, pink-eyed, blinking rabbit.

LEARNED BITTER LESSON

You mother drew such a man. It may have been because she was innocent and trustful, and she imagined the entire crop of roses was thornless. She has learned her lesson bitterly.

But evidently, although you do not say so in so many words, she was a good mother. The very fact you stand up for her and protect her, indicates that.

It does appear unnecessary, since you are married and content, that you should have this contentment marred continually, and merely because this father of yours wants to lean a little upon you.

The fact that all your friends and neighbors sympathized with your mother when she divorced him, tells LOUDLY the true story.

And yet that FATHER-IN-LAW OF YOURS! What a kind, tolerant man he is. How well he has erased your acrid opinion of men. You even are beginning to understand that command "Honor thy father . . ." And because you have come in contact with him.

SHOW HIM REAL WOMAN

And although it would be most unwise for you, at any time, to consider opening wide your doors to the black sheep you describe so ably, yet once in a while, it mightn't be so bad, to let him know you have a HEART, so that he may have a glimpse into a young woman's sweetness and tenderness. One who can almost forgive the HEEL TORN so RUTHLESSLY from her graduation slipper and who can half way forget the insistance of the halving of the money she had gathered together herself in order that she have a graduation like other girls. A woman, so exceedingly fine, that she can partly clean from her memory the years of torment and uncertainty which he created for her.

It does seem a shame, real women have to put up with such an inhuman scoundrel for years and years. And then at last when the said scoundrel is worn and dilapidated, he can come slinking back, and ask for consideration.

It does seem too bad, a human wreck who has despoiled all that might have been good for himself, and after he has degraded both himself and all those who should be dear to him, will try to hurdle what's left of him, over his weakened fences, and land square in front of a girl like you. Asking for respect.

ARE YOU ENTIRELY FREE?

And yet who else is likely to do anything for him, except the women he has tormented?

He has lived in their thoughts, through the drumming-in of his evil ways.

Your mother is safely out of his way. The ARM of the LAW is her guardian.

And yet, you, sister. His daughter, who fate has finally given a SQUARE DEAL. Are you entirely free of him?

I cannot say . . . He may be your CROSS . . . we all have one, we are told.

Your father-in-law, of the great heart, may be right.

You owe respect to his opinion . . . he has raised the shades and let a little of the sun in for you. . . .

FAY KING FINDS CINDERELLA A DURABLE FAIRY STORY

By FAY KING

Cinderella is the best known, most popular fairy tale in the world.

Whenever youth and beauty are rescued from obscurity, poverty, or persecution by some remarkable good fortune, we think of Cinderella.

Ages ago it was a nature myth.

Cinderella was the Dawn imprisoned by Night clouds, until rescued by the Sun.

Then, long ago, a Frenchman rewrote the story as we know it. Cinderella became a beautiful girl, the Night clouds, her jealous relatives, the Sun a handsome prince.

Her famous slipper was then of fur, but was mistranslated into "glass," the words being similar, and glass it has remained to us.

When we read "Cinderella" in the headlines of our newspaper, the very name instantly signifies the trend of the story.

Contract Bridge :: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

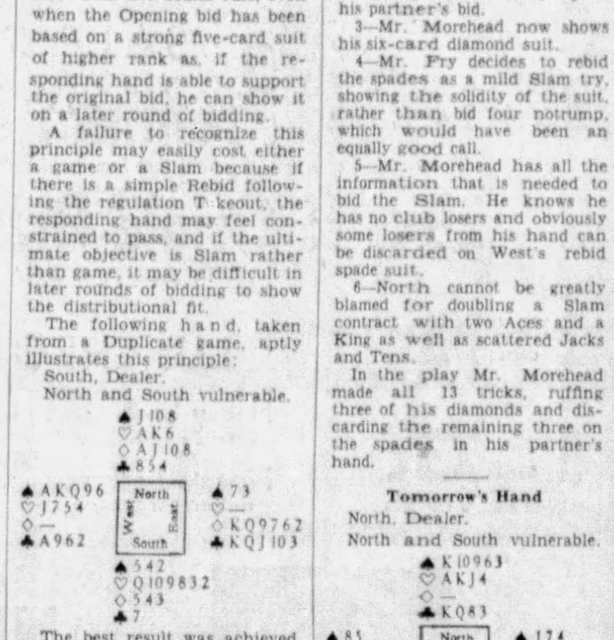
Supporting Your Partner

After a player has opened the bidding and his partner has made a Takeout for which he has strong support, immediate indication of that support should be given if the Opening bidder does not have a better bid. This is a sound rule, even when the Opening bid has been based on a strong five-card suit of higher rank as, if the responding hand is able to support the original bid, he can show it on a later round of bidding.

A failure to recognize this principle may easily cost either a game or a Slam because if there is a simple Rebid following the regulation Takeout, the responding hand may feel constrained to pass, and if the ultimate objective is Slam rather than game, it may be difficult in later rounds of bidding to show the distributional fit.

The following hand, taken from a Duplicate game, aptly illustrates this principle:

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The best result was achieved at the table where A. H. Morehead sat East and Samuel Fry, Jr., sat West. The bidding went:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣ (1)
Pass	4 ♣ (2)	Pass	4 ◇ (3)
Pass	4 ♠ (4)	Pass	6 ♣ (5)
Pass	Pass	Double (6)	Redouble
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Mr. Morehead prefers the five-card club suit to the six-card diamond suit for his Takeout because of the honor score.

2—Mr. Fry rightly decides not to rebid his strong spade suit but to indicate immediately game certainty and Slam possibilities by the double jump of his partner's bid.

3—Mr. Morehead now shows his six-card diamond suit.

4—Mr. Fry decides to rebid the spades as a mild Slam try, showing the solidity of the suit, rather than bid four notrump, which would have been an equally good call.

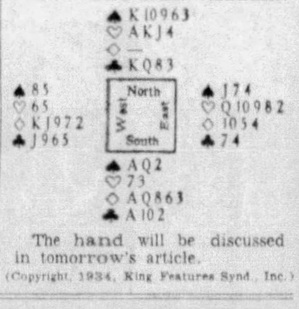
5—Mr. Morehead has all the information that is needed to bid the Slam. He knows he has no club losers and obviously some losers from his hand can be discarded on West's rebid spade suit.

6—North cannot be greatly blamed for doubling a Slam contract with two Aces and a King as well as scattered Jacks and Tens.

In the play Mr. Morehead made all 13 tricks, ruffing three of his diamonds and discarding the remaining three on the spades in his partner's hand.

Tomorrow's Hand

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

:-: :-: Hints for the Household :-: :-:

Grease marks on furniture can be removed by adding a few drops of methylated spirit to the furniture cream.

Dye stains on washable materials can usually be removed if the mark is saturated with lemon juice and then left for two or three hours before washing.

Scorched woollens should be treated immediately with glycerine. Leave for a few hours, then wash in warm soapy water.

Cover mildew spots on clothes with a mixture of soft soap and powdered chalk and leave in the sun to dry.

To polish stained floors, apply the polish and leave for 10 minutes before polishing. The shine will be more brilliant, more lasting and less rubbing will be required.

If a little gum arabic is added to the water used for dampening down pleated garments the pleats will keep in longer.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Now that Mister Al Fresco beckons the gals to come out and play, it is not amiss to remind the seekers after good looks that vivid make-up is not the thing for the athletic dolly. Save it for the merry evening, when the music is going and lights are dim.

Shampoo for the white-headed sisters: Beat up the whites of three eggs, add half a teacup of tepid water and half a cup of melted soap. Rinse the hair thoroughly, friction in the shampoo until it foams.

Rinse with warm water. Don't worry about cooking the eggs. If particles adhere to the strands, the brush will remove them. Use more shampoo, rinse again. Give a final rinsing with a few drops of bluing added to the water. The silver crown will shine.

The plump darlings may balk at the milk but they needn't. Milk contains only a small quantity of fat, it won't add to weight. Halibut liver oil is an aid to mouth pearls. The usual dose is 15 drops a day. Doesn't taste bad. Add it to the second cup of coffee you have for breakfast.

Beading the eyelashes is something that few women can do. As a general rule, the good old mascara fills the bill.

If the solid form is your favorite, dip the eyelash brush in water, pass the bristles over the mascara, hold the lashes on the finger, apply the brush lightly. For the evening party, it is not a bad idea to lengthen the eye with a tiny line of crayon at the far end. But not if the eyelids carry a shadow. That's too—too much.

BOUDOIR DOLL PATTERN 761

Somehow a boudoir doll must be exotic and so express the feminine longing for frilliness. This dainty one, lovely dressed in organdie, crisp taffeta or any cotton material is certainly frilly and yet very simple to sew. The ruffles, of course, could be of lace or a contrasting material. The hat, too, is easy to make but if preferred may be omitted, as the doll is certainly very well dressed without it.

Pattern 761 comes to you with a pattern for a dress, hat and petticoat for a regulation 26 inch doll; detailed instructions and material requirements for making these.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

Madge Terror-Stricken at Disappearance

As I stood outside the door behind which Lee Chow was guarded, I felt as if I were in that old and common nightmare where one is trying to shriek, and cannot make a sound.

My fists were going through the motions of a tattoo upon the door, and my lips were framing the words, "Hugh! Hugh! Quick!" But my terror over the disappearance of Junior and Roderick from the room off the nursery must have paralyzed my ear drums, for I could hear neither my knocking nor my frantic calls.

Yet they must have been audible inside the room, for just as I reached the nadir of despair, the door swung open and Hugh Granland caught me in his arms as, utterly spent, I swayed and would have fallen but for his swift action.

Behind him I was conscious of my father's anxious face, and the two men spoke as with one voice:

"What has happened? Tell me."

IN HUGH'S ARMS

Vaguely I knew that Hugh's arms were round me, holding me closely, safely, and for an instant I rested against his shoulder, too utterly exhausted to move or speak. Then a cry tore from my throat, and I straightened and put my fists against Hugh's chest in an attempt to stand erect.

"The children!" I gasped. "Roderick and Junior! I can't find them anywhere! They're not in the room where they went to sleep."

I heard a deep breath of relief from Hugh, and he took his arms from around me and put his hands over mine, which were clenched against his chest.

"You mustn't be frightened," he said, with the soothing manner one would use to a child. "No doubt they planned to get up early on some business of their own—you never can tell what boys of that age have in their heads—and it will be an easy matter to find them."

But my father's voice was sharp with anxiety as he pushed past us.

"When did you miss them?" he demanded, while his eagle glance swept the corridor.

"Just now." I faltered, my fears intensified at the sight of his terror. "Faith wakened me when she cried for her breakfast, and while I was giving here her bottle I asked Lillian to look at the boys. I waited two minutes, and when she did not come back I went to the room, and it was empty."

I heard my voice ringing in a crescendo of terror and Hugh's clasp tightened upon my hands.

"Steady!" he whispered. "I tell you the boys are all right. I'll stake everything on it."

"Where is Lillian?" my father asked next.

"I heard her downstairs, going from room to room calling the boys," I answered.

"I'll find her first," my father said. "Hugh, Lee Chow's safe enough, isn't he, if we lock the door?"

MUST GUARD BABY

"I'll stake my life that he won't waken for hours," Hugh replied. "That was a stiff hypo I gave him."

"Then you and Margaret come down as soon as you have locked this door," my father commanded. "But wait! What have you done about Baby Faith?"

"She's in her crib with her bottle," I answered faintly, "and the doors and windows are all locked."

"Then you either must go back there, or get someone to go in there with her," my father said firmly, as he walked quickly to the stairway.

"Oh, Hugh!" I breathed. "I must hunt for the boys. I can't go back to the nursery."

"Of course, you can't," he said, and his arms went around me for a second. "We'll call somebody."

"Can I help?" Avis Arlen's voice asked sweetly.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Facts About Meniere's Disease

Dizziness is not a disease, but is a sign of some disorder within the body. I am often asked what causes it.

Dr. Copeland

It may be the result of high blood pressure, heart disease, low blood pressure, or some constitutional ailment. As a rule, it can be traced to a disturbance of the semi-circular canals of the ear.

The semi-circular canals are contained within the bony structure where is located the internal ear. The canals lie in different planes, the thin fluid within them moving with the changing positions of the head. This fluid acts as a spirit level and gives the sensation of balance. The semi-circular canals are concerned with the function of equilibrium.

A common cause of dizziness is a strange disturbance known as "Meniere's disease." The semi-circular canals are disturbed and a sensation of dizziness occurs. In addition, the sufferer complains of loss of hearing and ringing in the ears.

Of course, not all cases of dizziness are due to Meniere's disease. Simple inflammation of the ear, especially chronic catarrh of the ear, often leads to symptoms like those found in Meniere's disease. As I have implied, high blood pressure may cause a similar disturbance.

Too often the sufferer from dizziness overlooks nature's warning and only consults the physician after permanent damage has been done. This made less difference years ago, because little was known concerning this chronic, distressing affliction. But it is different now.

A recent report tells of a new means of relief from the effects of this disease. A minor operation is proposed. In this operation the nerve leading to the afflicted semi-circular canals is removed. The hearing is not improved but the dizziness and other distressing symptoms are relieved.

Deafness is a serious handicap. Every means should be taken to prevent its occurrence. Proper hygiene, diet, simple health regulations and periodic visits to the doctor, would undoubtedly lessen the number of cases of deafness and the various ear disorders.

Answers to Health Queries

Dad. Q.—What precautions should be taken by a patient suffering from hardening of the arteries?

A.—The diet and general care are important under such circumstances. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

A good friend to the traveler is a three-piece suit of thin tweed in a soft rose-brown. The long swagger top-coat is worn over a two-piece suit, the jacket of which can be worn buttoned high to the neck as the top to another dress.

The smart dinner is the place to show off a beautiful frock of white chiffon. It is banded and pleated to softly mould the figure to below the hipline when it breaks out into soft fullness. A narrow round yoke extends into tiny sleeves and there is a narrow self-belt, softly tied in front.

It is forbidden to wear a small hat with a brim turned up all the way round unless you are very young and pretty. One charming girl wears such a hat in white transparent straw. The hat perches high on the head and the naive little brim is piped with black. A bunch of bright field flowers is high in back.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Divorcee's Signature

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Please tell me the correct way for a divorced woman to sign her name?

2—The correct way for a woman separated from her husband to sign her name? S.

1—Let's say that Mary Smith marries and divorces John Brown. The correct form of name for her use, after her divorce, is: Mrs. Smith Brown. Then her business and professional letters, and other letters to those who need to be informed of her formal name, should be signed:

Very truly yours,
MARY SMITH BROWN,
(Mrs. Smith Brown)

It is not in good taste for her to use the name Mrs. Mary Brown either before or after her divorce.

2—A woman who is not divorced customarily signs her name as she did before she was separated from her husband:

Very truly yours,
MARY SMITH BROWN,
(Mrs. John Brown)

Congratulations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A young man...we were playmates when children...is being ordained into the Priesthood very soon. I have been away from his city for over five years, but his parents were dear neighbors of ours, and I would like to write a letter congratulating them.

Please tell me what to write? Should I include my husband in my letter? How shall I sign the letter?

B.

Your letter might read:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Britton,

My husband and I were deeply happy to hear the news of your son's ordination into the Priesthood, and I do want you to know of our sincere congratulations on this sacred and significant step of his in joining the Holy Orders. You both must be deeply happy and justifiably proud of him, and do tell him, please, of our congratulations and of our wishes always for his well-being. He will fulfill his duties and responsibilities with the highest of ideals.

Dearest wishes to you from us both, and I do hope that we are to have the pleasure of seeing you sometime soon.

Most sincerely yours,
Mary Smith Birmingham

NEW P. O. RAMP ASSAILED BY REPPERT

Completion of the present ramp at the new Post Office will create the most vital traffic problem in the city's experience, at Bigelow boulevard and Seventh avenue, Chief City Engineer Charles M. Reppert told the Henry George Club today.

Reppert pointed out that this is the most congested intersection today and would be made worse by the flow of more than 1,000 mail trucks to and from the new building.

URGES PLAN

He urged support of the city's proposal to widen Bigelow boulevard from above Washington street to Grant, construct a viaduct for Seventh avenue traffic to and from the boulevard, widen Strawberry way, from Grant street to the boulevard, and build a ramp from Strawberry way to the present Post Office loading platform.

This project would cost approximately $2,000,000 of which the federal government is being asked for about $600,000, or enough to pay for the ramp from Strawberry way to the Postoffice.

SEES TRAFFIC TIEUP

James L. Start, former State Secretary of Highways, said:

"It's the most important thing the city can do in regard to its traffic problem."

If the proposed highway-ramp project does not go through, the 1,000 mail trucks and an estimated 100 private mail and express trucks using the intersection hourly will "tie up" traffic throughout the city's entire system, Reppert said.

MUNITIONS QUIZ HINTS 'SHOCK'

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(AP.)—An inquiry into the war materials industry has uncovered evidence which a Senator calls "shocking."

Senator Pope (Dem.), of Idaho, said yesterday that investigators for the Senate munitions committee had already uncovered "startling revelations," although they began the investigation only recently.

The information was carefully guarded pending public hearings in September. Pope said that to disclose it prematurely would destroy its "strategic value" and lead to "subversive propaganda" by firms involved.

It "will shock the nation" when disclosed, he added. The inquiry, he indicated, will uncover a large "ring" interested in the propagation of wars.

BOAT EMPTY, FEAR FOR PAIR

CHICAGO, June 22.—(AP.)—Relatives of a young couple whose sailboat was found empty by coast guardsmen on Lake Michigan yesterday clung to the slim hope today that they had been rescued by a lake vessel unequipped with wireless facilities.

The two, Raymond Gustafson, 24, and Miss Ruth Hatch, 23, went sailing Wednesday night shortly before a sharp midnight squall arrived. Coast guardsmen expressed the belief the two had drowned.

But the youth's father pointed out that a distress signal had been hoisted on the small craft and said it was possible they had been res-

Automobile Heiress, Prince on Honeymoon

ENSENDA, Mexico, June 22.—(INS.)—Carol Marmon, heiress daughter of Col. Howard Marmon, Indianapolis automobile manufacturer, and Prince Nicholas Tohkotoua, of Georgia and Hollywood, were honeymooning here today following their marriage yesterday.

They met in Hollywood, Cal., when the Prince was writing a novel and Miss Marmon was seeking a carer in the movies.

Father of 13 Jailed For Shooting One

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 22.—(AP.)—Frank Hall, 65, father of 13 children, today started a three-year sentence in the county jail for shooting one of his sons.

Members of Hall's family testified yesterday Hall wounded his son, John, after the latter had struck him. They said the older man had been drinking, and the son attempted to quiet him. John was not injured seriously.

Baruch to Desert Wall St. to Write

NEW YORK, June 22.—(AP.)—Bernard M. Baruch, an adviser to the President and long a figure of finance, said yesterday he soon would quit his Wall street career to write.

He planned, he said, to move to an uptown office and devote his time to his own memoirs and to literature about affairs in general.

Don't Slip Up on Summer Slips.

Pattern 1899.

Sun-Telegraph 15c Pattern

The average summer outfit slips up when it comes to slips. Nobody ever remembers to get enough. This design is shown to prevent that sort of backsliding. It's so simple and easy to make you can't possibly excuse yourself on the score of lack of time . . . and if you don't feel like investing in silk, well, synthetic materials are even better for this sort of garment. They're cooler and hang away from the body . . . and, of course, as inexpensive as daisies. So far we've failed to mention the panties . . . and all we intend to say is . . . look at the cunning things included in the pattern.

Susan Feels She Must Go To Work But Doesn't Know Where to Look

CHAPTER XVII.

"It was announced yesterday really," said Lutie. "We told a few people, and later on your father came home from Mrs. Hopper's, and he and your Uncle Worthy let everybody know about it."

"They were drinking your health and Wallace's all over the house," chimed in Aunt Edna. "I think they had quite a bit too much Christmas cheer in the egg nog. Quite a bit."

"You just imagine it," said Uncle Worthy.

Aunt Edna snuffed. "Well, you put enough into it to make you dance around all afternoon after Jessie Bunts, like a clown" she said. "I noticed her goggling at you, too." In Aunt Edna's eyes Uncle Worthy was a great lover, irresistible to all women.

That afternoon a delivery truck from Hart's store stopped in the snowy street outside the house and the boy came running up to the door with a package for Susan.

Inside the cover of the pasteboard box that the green paper wrappings revealed lay Connie Sayre's visiting card with "Love from Connie" written across it, and under the layers of white tissue paper was a wadded silk breakfast coat of a dim and subtle pink.

"It's an engagement present," Lutie cried in rapture. "Oh, but won't it be just the thing to wear when you and Wallace have breakfast in your own hotel room on your honeymoon . . . It's perfect! I've been wishing I could get you one, but I just don't seem to have the money right now."

Susan lifted the coat from the box. "If I'd gone to business school and got a position somewhere as I ought to have done two or three years ago, I could buy my own things now, Lutie."

To Discharge Anna

"Oh, we'll get a trousseau together for you, somehow or other," said Aunt Edna. "We have almost six months before June, and we're going to start cutting down our household expenses right away. Your uncle and I had a long talk about it yesterday. We've decided to let Annie go after all."

Susan's eyes flew open. "Let Anna go?"

Two weeks before Aunt Edna had said that under no circumstances would she discharge Anna. Susan remembered clearly how determined she had been in her declaratoin that there was no need for it. What could have happened since that time to make her change her mind?

"You see, your father has always contributed something toward the upkeep of this house, Susan," she began to explain, and holding the breakfast coat against her breast, Susan listened. "There has always been money from the rents and one thing and another, and according to your Grandfather Broderick's will, Lutie and Worthy and your father divided the income three ways—Well, yesterday your father asked Worthy to send him next month's check in Havana and he borrowed a hundred dollars from him besides. That makes things a little embarrassing all around. You see that, don't you?"

"What do you mean?" asked Susan. "That he didn't leave any money behind to pay my board?"

Her aunt nodded.

"Then I'll be living here at your expense from now on?"

Her aunt jerked her massive head up and down. "Yes—but after this week John's going to pay us $20 a week for your board and his—that is, until your father starts looking after you again. Your Uncle Worthy spoke to John about it this morning."

Can't Be Millstone

"I can't let John spend his money on me," Susan said slowly, her eyebrows almost meeting in a worried frown above her eyes . . . John was making very little. Twenty dollars was more than half of the amount of his salary check every week, and Susan felt certain that there was some sort of understanding between him and Connie Sayre. In all probability they intended to be married as soon as John was earning enough to keep up a home of his own. No, she simply could not be a millstone around John's neck.

"What I've got to do is to get some work to do and make some money of my own, Aunt Edna."

But while she said it the thought ran through her head that she was not trained to do any kind of work that paid a decent salary. She had had two years of music lessons, and she could play a few simple things like the Waldteufel waltzes, but she certainly did not begin to know enough about music to teach it. One summer Aunt Edna had let her take riding lessons at a North Carolina mountain resort, one winter she had had dancing lessons, and when she was 13 she had gone to a certain Madamoiselle De Hamel every Saturday morning to talk French. She had learned to say grace in French and that was about the extent of her learning in that graceful language. Those vague accomplishments were all the education she had in addition to what she had received in her 12 years in the public schools.

She could not typewriter, and she knew nothing about even the simplest kind of office work. The only thing, in fact, that she did know and understand was housework—the kind of work that Anna did in the Brodericks' kitchen for eight dollars a week! A small bitter smile just barely twisted Susan's lips as she realized that she would probbly be able to get a position as dish washer in a restaurant, or chambermaid in hotel, without any difficulty.

Enough Housework

"This is certainly no time for you to start talking 'job' again, Susan," said Aunt Edna, her corsets creaking as she leaned forward in her chair to poke the grate fire. "When Anna goes next week there's going to be more than enough work to keep us three women busy in this house. Why, just think of the washings, alone!" Her stout body sagged in the chair as if all strength went out of it at the very thought of the washings. "Besides, what kind of work could you do? You weren't brought up to earn your own living." She said it with flaring up of the Broderick family pride.

"Don't I know it!" cried Susan. "But if I only had been!—If I'd just had the business course that I've begged for and begged for, I'd probably have a good position by this time." Other things trembled on her lips. The things that she had said to them many times before when she had pleaded with them and her father to let her have the $100 dollars that would have paid for a secretarial course at the Spencerian Business College downtown.

It was no use to say them all again. It was too late to point out to them that office work was a much higher type of labor than peeling vegetables and scouring bath tubs and helping Anna with the ironing in the laundry in the basement.

PIE TRAYNOR'S OWN STORY OF PIRATES' SITUATION

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Berger Poison to Bucs. Homers Win Many Tilts. New Two-Day Mark Here.

Hubbell Cuts Screwballs. Pirate of '90's Dies. Blocks Bar to Records.

When Wally Berger made his first Pittsburgh appearance in the National League on May 1, 1930, he celebrated the occasion by cracking two home runs over the port wall at Forbes Field, one against Larry French and the other against Glenn Spencer. The pair of circuit belts caused the defeat of the Pirates by a 4-to-3 score. That started the big bomber of the Braves on a habit from which he has not departed since, and he was only running true to it when, following two drives out of the park on Wednesday, he took the second game from the Bucs yesterday with another pair of homers, after the fine pitching of Fred Frankhouse had floored the Traynors in the first half of the bargain.

Wally Berger

Up to date, in his four full seasons and part of another in the big show, Berger has made 111 home runs, and the Pirates have been the victims of 19 of them, or a shade above 17 per cent. To make matters worse, a large number of Wally's wallops against the Bucs were knockout blows that decided the games in which they were made, as was the case yesterday.

FOUR HOMERS IN TWO DAYS RECORD HERE

Berger established a Forbes Field record by making four home runs in two successive days. When the Cubs ushered in a new season here on April 24, 1931, Rogers Hornsby set a local mark for a single game by making three four-masters in consecutive times at bat, two off Larry French and one off Claude Willoughby, but Berger is the first player to make four homers here in two straight days.

Wally hasn't played any favorites among the Pittsburgh pitchers in socking his 19 homers. Five were made off French, five off Heinie Meine, two against Bill Swift, two against Remy Kremer, and one each off Red Lucas, Waite Hoyt, Leon Chagnon, Glenn Spencer and Ervin Brame. The one off Hoyt, on August 22 last year in Boston, gave the Braves a 5-to-4 victory in a 14-inning game after Waite, relieving Hal Smith, had pitched 10 straight runless innings in which he allowed only one hit.

HUBBELL THROWING FEW SCREWBALLS

Batsmen setting themselves for a sock at a screwball when facing Carl Hubbell these days are apt to find themselves crossed up frequently by being served something else. Though beaten by the Cubs yesterday, Carl already has hurled 10 victories and may win 25 games this year, but he isn't doing it wholly with the pitch of which he made a specialty in the past. While the Giants were here this week, Hubbell revealed that he is throwing fewer screwballs than ever before. The greatest number thrown by him in any single game this season was six, and he reached that high when he beat the Pirates, 1 to 0, in New York on May 28.

Carl Hubbell

The New York slab ace gives two reasons for cutting down on screwballs. One is that opposing batters always are looking for the pitch, and, with the same psychological advantage that a spitball pitcher holds in merely bluffing with a spitter, Hubbell catches them off guard and gains an edge by giving them something they are not expecting. The other reason is the liveliness of the ball now in use. Carl says the screw delivery was a safe bet for repeated use last year, because the hitters could not knock the dead ball far unless they met it squarely. They couldn't get a fair smack at a screwball, so they just hit it on the ground and an infielder took care of it. But even if he gives them only a piece of the lively ball to hit at, Hubbell finds that they may clout it for distance. It isn't necessary to meet it squarely to make it travel. So the Giant star is depending on his fine control and mixing up curves, fast balls and change of pace, saving the screwball for emergencies and tight spots.

DEATH RECALLS BUCS OF 40 YEARS AGO

The death of Montford (Monte) Cross in Philadelphia at the age of 63 recalls the Pirate days of Connie Mack and other prominent old Pittsburgh baseball figures of four decades ago. Cross played more than a full season with the Bucs as a shortstop. Following the release of Jack Glassock by Manager Al Buckenberger on August 20, 1894, the local club was so hard pressed for a shortstop that in addition to Eugene Demontreville and Frank Sheibeck two catchers were used at the position. On September 17, Cross was obtained from Syracuse to fill the vacancy, and he played here during the remainder of that season and all of the campaign of 1895, when he was part of an infield that had Jake Beckley at first base, Louie Bierbauer at second and Billy Clingman at third. Cross was a fine fielder and thrower but a light hitter.

Before the 1896 season, Mack, who had supplanted Buckenberger as manager, traded Cross and Pitcher Bill Hart to the St. Louis Nationals for Fred Ely, one of the greatest fielding and throwing shortstops of all time. In addition to Mack and the other players named above, the Pirates of Cross time included such famous oldtimers as Jake Stenzel, Patsy Donovan, Elmer Smith, Pink Hawley, Frank Killen, Joe Sugden, Ad Gumbert, Jock Menefee, Gus Weyning, Tom Colcolough, Jimmy Gardner, John Foreman, Jake Hewitt, Billy Merritt, Tom Kinslow, Chauncey Bill Stewart, Harry Jordan, Fred Hartman and Sam Moran.

STARTING BLOCKS MAY VOID NEW MARKS

If any new track records are set in the N. C. A. A. meet at Los Angeles today and tomorrow, starting blocks may keep them from getting recognition as world marks. That's what happened when blocks entered the international picture at the National Collegiates in 1929. Two great Ohio State athletes raced to new records, Simpson with a 100-yard dash in 9.4 seconds, and Rockaway with a 22.9 flight over the low hurdles. The marks were passed on to the A. A. U. There had been no rule previously against the use of starting blocks, but the A. A. U. ruled against them, disallowed the records and brought action by the International Federation outlawing blocks.

Charley Hornbostel

Dink Templeton, Stanford coach, relates that the N. C. A. A. then got mad and hasn't asked the A. A. U. to approve a record since. George Saling did 14.1 in the high hurdles; Dutch Meier made 14.2 in the same event; Ralph Metcalfe sprinted 220 yards in 20.4 seconds, and Charley Hornbostel covered a half mile in 1:50.9. Only one or two of them used starting blocks, but none of the records ever has been allowed. And the funny part of it, Templeton remarks, is that the blocks don't make a bit of difference one way or the other. He says he doesn't care about the blocks, but he hates to see the boys robbed of their records.

'Hustle' and 'Try' to Mark Buccaneers' Bid for Success During Regime of Their New Manager, He Writes

By Harold "Pie" Traynor

New Manager of the Pirates

(NOTE—THIS IS THE LAST OF THREE STORIES WRITTEN EXCLUSIVELY FOR THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH BY PIE TRAYNOR, DEALING WITH THE SITUATION FACED BY HIM AS HE ASSUMES THE MANAGEMENT OF THE PIRATES.)

In dwelling on the future of the Pirates and the plans incidental to the club's best interests, I would like to guard against the making of rash promises. Every schoolboy knows the Buccos could use a topnotch pitcher or two, but we should be candid about the matter and that means that our agents have been unable thus far this year to discover any future Hubbells, Mungos, Warnekes or Deans.

I feel you all will admit that one pitcher of the class of the hurlers mentioned would put our club on a par with the Giants, but right now there is no definite indication that any such ace is on the way to the Pittsburgh club. Still there are so many interesting angles to baseball that one can hope for the best and have his wish gratified.

CITES CASES OF VAUGHAN AND MUNGO

To make the point a little clearer we might consider the cases of Mungo and Arky Vaughan. Many times in the past 10 years owners have paid as high as $50,000 for a minor league phenom. In most instances the costly player has come through, but others went sour and made the investment look terrible. Now I understand that the Dodgers grabbed up Mungo for a song, and our hustling shortstop cost the Pittsburgh club little more than street car fare.

So as long as the American boy plays baseball on the corner lots there always will be logic in yearning for a Mungo or a Vaughan. And in this connection I might mention that Bill Hinchman and Carleton Molesworth, the two leading scouts of the Pittsburgh club, are at the present time combing the minor leagues of the land in search of diamonds in the rough.

I have unlimited confidence in Hinchman and Molesworth and I shall keep in close touch with them. Hinchman has picked up Ralph Birkofer and Harry Lavagetto in the past few years, and Molesworth knows as much about young players as anybody you can name. I played a full year under Moley at Birmingham in 1921 and if I made a favorable impression when I returned to the Bucs I feel I owe him something, for he surely showed me a lot.

GOOD YOUNG PLAYERS FARMED OUT

So the Pirates, like every other big league club, will have to trust to the luck of the game so far as budding gems are concerned. On the other hand, we intend to carry on with our systematic form of scouting with the idea of making some of our own breaks. I really feel that somewhere there are pitchers who have all the skill of the great slab artists I have mentioned in this article and maybe we will be able to grab off one or two as we go along.

The Pirate farm system also soon may begin to produce better crops. I have in mind the Little Rock and Springfield teams, not to mention Albany, where several of our boys are out on option. I have been hearing favorable reports on Infielder Bill Brubaker and Catcher Hal Finney, who are playing regularly with Albany.

I would like to state here that I have a high regard for Bill Brubaker, but I think I would harm the big recruit if I were to call him in at this time. He is getting the experience at Albany he needs and it would be better to keep him in action. Brubaker is fairly fast, he hits a long ball, has a good arm, and he is a hustler. The last-mentioned element of his play is what makes a hit with me. Bill is a "try" ballplayer.

LIKES "TRY" TYPE OF PLAYER

Finney is getting some valuable work at Albany and I understand he is very popular with the followers of the game there. Maybe Hal will return to help out our catching staff, although we are not in any jam behind the bat with Earl Grace showing some of his 1932 form and Tommy Padden looking snappier than ever. Art Veltman is a better catcher and hitter than he has shown in his brief tryout here.

Cy Blanton is a very promising righthander. He has been threatened with appendicitis, which is likely to retard his progress at Albany, but he showed us enough so that most of the veterans would like to see more of him.

I said I like a "try" ballplayer. In concluding these articles in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph I think it is timely to state that I will use the "hustle" type of athlete as the cornerstone of the Pirates so long as I am at the head of the club.

Whether the Pirates finish first or last, there is one thing I shall demand from each and every player on the squad, and that is unstinted effort. To use a slang expression, it's going to be "too bad" for any player who fails to run out all manner of batted balls or shows a laggard spirit on defense. Lack of hustle will not be tolerated on the part of star or rookie. I may have to crack the whip as I go along, but there will be no time when the report will be as loud as when it snaps over the lazy or indifferent player.

THANKS FANS FOR FAIR TREATMENT

I want to take advantage of this opportunity to thank all of you for the wonderful treatment you have accorded me in Pittsburgh, my baseball home. You have been so nice to me through the years that I look to my present role as the most enjoyable experience of my life.

BECK, RAYMOND PUT UP NEW BOXING BOND

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

So what? So Jules Beck and Lew Raymond, the never-say-die boxing promoters, come up with a brand new bond, which they are placing on file with the boxing commission, and are all set to begin operations anew — ah-ker-chew!—with their arena pitched in Greenlee Field. They are planning their first show for Thursday night of next week.

Promoter Beck and Matchmaker Raymond want the public to be let in on a secret to the effect that they have established contact for unlimited backing for the promotion of shows, including that Ted Yarosz-Vince Dundee title match, which they have not given up hope of landing. Yarosz, by the way, boxes Tait Littman on a benefit card in Chicago, July 18.

This is the night Al Quaill, our local middleweight prospect, only four fights removed from the amateur ranks, makes his eastern debut against one Harry Thompson in a six-round bout at Long Branch, N. J.

Tune in on the NBC hookup at 11:30 eastern daylight saving time tonight to hear Davis J. Walsh, sports editor of the International News Service, tell his impressions of Max Baer and Primo Carnera and their fight. Walsh wrote a corking story on the fight, and he minces no pronouns when he speaks, either.

Merchants of Washington, Pa., are selling tickets for a special baseball day there next Monday at which they expect to have one of the largest turnouts of the season in any minor league city. They claim they've disposed of 10,000 tickets already.

The Sports Memory Test editor left Connie Mack's name out of a list of former Pirates who are managing big league clubs, and now he knows how many people read his department.

Auto races will be on the holiday sports card in Western Pennsylvania on July 4, programs having been arranged for both New Kensington and Little Washington. The races at New Kensington will be the first to be staged on the fair grounds there since 1927, but the folks still remember what an automobile looks like.

Apples Meyers is the guiding spirit behind that boxing show to be held at Tinplate Park, Monessen, July 13, with Jack Dempsey refereeing the main bout, between Tiger Joe Randall and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe. Mayor James C. Gold is the promoter and it's a benefit show, with the tickets being hustled in large quantities.

No less than 28 California public links golfers, making up seven teams, are coming here for the National Public Parks tournament, at South Park, in late July and early August.

Bill Brown, the New York boxing commissioner, who spoke his mind on Max Baer's condition before the Carnera fight, and stuck by his guns afterward, was a good friend of the late A. R. Hamilton, the man who put Pitt in the big league athletically speaking. Hamilton was one of the many who took advantage of the benefits of Bill's health farm, and Brown spoke very highly of him to Pittsburghers at the big fight.

If Luke Carney thinks he has taken on any part of a chump for Eddie Zivic's first fight since his return from California, at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Monday night, he hasn't. Joe Costa, the party of the second part, is both a good boxer and a good puncher, and your scribe saw him dump Bobby Pacho, the highly-touted Mexican, for three counts in the first round of a great fight in New York's Madison Square Garden a little more than a year ago. Costa has beaten Lew Feldman and Joe Ghnouly twice each and knocked out Harry Carlton, Charley Von Reeden and Ernie Ratner. He's training for the local fight with Tony Canzoneri, who is getting ready to fight Frankie Klick.

The Men's Clubs of the Dormont churches will put on a baseball night at the Dormont Presbyterian Church next Monday night at which the Dormont team, of the City League, and the South Hills American Legion team will be honored. Guests of note will include Manager Pie Traynor and Coach Honus Wagner, of the Pirates.

Eddie Ran, of Chicago, will box Fritzie Zivic in the main bout at Hickey Park one week from next Monday. He's a seasoned campaigner who should test the local youth. Nat Litfin will be one of the principals in the six-round semi-final at Hickey Park next Monday, and Ralph Gizzy and Ernie Schwartz, of Cleveland, have been signed for one of the three five-rounders.

ROSY ROWSWELL FELICITATES PIE ON NEW JOB

Rowswell, who just about rates as the city's No. 1 baseball fan, thinks Pie Traynor will be a great manager of the Pirates. Here he is telling him so in a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

The old college try which the Pirates will always give Pie Traynor is a grand thing, but when it is mixed up with foot-of-the-class pitching the result is likely to be sour just as often as it is sweet. Manager Pie doubtless realized this truth today after he had pondered five home runs which had been hammered over the leftfield wall by Bill McKechnie's Braves, who yesterday sank the Pirates twice. The scores were 4 to 1 and 8 to 7.

The spectre of Wally Berger was still hanging over the Oakland Orchard today.

The inferiority of the Buccaneer pitching staff is an open book in the school of baseball, but just why major league hurlers will persist in throwing balls to Berger which he can pull over the garden wall is a bit of a mystery to the fans.

THROW HOMER BALLS

Red Lucas is admitted to be one of the foxiest pitchers of the game, yet Berger was able to hit one of Red's offerings high and dry into Schenley Park in the first game of the series. After Lucas had left the scene, Big Wally slammed a Chagnon pitch over the wall, although Leon had a three and two count and he had to get one right over or risk a base on balls.

Bill Swift apparently made the same mistake as that charged to Lucas when Berger went to the barrier in the third inning of the nightcap of yesterday. Bang—one more nice ball for the kiddies in Schenley Park.

Larry French stepped to the slab in a big crisis of the seventh inning. The southpaw hustler took Bucky Jordan out of the picture with a strikeout with the tying run on third, another on first and only one out. But Larry's first pitch to Berger was perfect for a round-tripper to the same left section and out of the field went the rocket. Goodbye ball game.

BUCS ALMOST BLANKED

Fred Frankhouse almost blanked the Pirates in the first clash of yesterday. The slick righthander shut the door in the face of the Oaklanders through eight rounds, but Paul Waner broke through for a run in the ninth.

Randy Moore's homer against the rightfield marking pole coming on top of a scratch hit by Lee gave Frankhouse sufficient runs to decide the issue. Frank Hogan scored two safety runs as the battle proceeded.

Ralph Birkhofer was not equal to the task of stopping the Braves and he gave way in the fourth to

Vaughan Takes National Loop Swat Lead

Associated Press.

Arky Vaughan and Heinie Manush led the Big Six Parade through an afternoon of heavy hitting yesterday, Vaughan connecting five times in eight trips to the plate, shot up from the cellar position, where he had been tied with Bill Terry, into fourth place, the top of the National League. He gained 11 points. Manush tightened his hold on the lead with one hit in two official times up, which lifted his average a point to .417, while his nearest rival, Charley Gehringer, remained at the .403 level. TERRY, CRONIN HONORED

NEW YORK, June 22.—(AP.)—Managerial rivals in the last world series, Bill Terry, of the Giants, and Joe Cronin, of the Indians, will pilot the National and American League all-star teams which meet in the Polo Grounds here Thursday, July 10.

Their selection, announced yesterday, came as a distinct surprise, for most baseball observers thought that, on the basis of seniority, Bill McKechnie, of Boston, would get the National League post, with the American falling once more to Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics. Mack managed the American League team which defeated the National, piloted by the late John J. McGraw, 4-2, at Chicago a year ago.

Apparently the choice of the two world series pilots is intended to set a precedent for future all-star games. John Heydler, National League president, said:

"By agreeing in the appointment of the two world series managers, the presidents of the two leagues feel they have established a precedent which can and perhaps will be carried out in other all-star games through the years."

Although the personnel of the two teams still is being determined by a nation-wide popular vote, both Terry and Cronin are assured of positions—the former at first base for the National Leaguers and Cronin at shortstop for the American League.

Hazelwood softball followers will be treated to a real game today when Manager James F. Ryan leads his S. A. O'Toole Club against the strong Hunzeker Radiators at Hazelwood in a bracket III game in the senior division. The Harris Reds are slated to clash with Holy Rosary No. 2 in another bracket III contest on the Taylor Allderdice High School field.

Fidelity Trust plays Koppers Coal in a bracket I fray of the senior class on the Schenley Oval No. 1 field.

Manager Harry Staubach has Al (Speed) Anderson ready to pitch for his Hunzekers against the O'Tooles. Al has yet to suffer a defeat. The lanky flinger has been pitching splendidly and is rated as one of the city's best hurlers. Last Sunday Anderson relieved Cassidy in the Hunzeker-Holy Rosary No. 2 contest and held the Saints scoreless for the six innings he pitched and allowed only two hits. Second Baseman Joe Corso has been playing a bang up game, and Ed Novey is Manager Staubach's hardest hitter. Kenneth Myers is Manager Ryan's choice to face the undefeated Anderson. Ira Rush has been fielding brilliantly at shortstop for the O'Tooles.

Clyde Confer, manager of the Harris Reds, has signed a new battery, Pitcher Francis Bernarding and Wilbur Robinson. This star duo is ready to face the Holy Rosary team.

The Frank Christy club will play host to the St. Richard softballers in a bracket II game of the Junior division at Washington Park.

Mrs. Frances J. Pitlock has her Harwick Red Sox primed for their game with the Meredith Groceries in a bracket I game in the girls' division at Ford City.

Managers desiring to add or substitute players for the ones already filed with this office have their last chance to do so today. The closing time for making changes is midnight. Players who have not been registered at the said date will not be permitted to compete in the eliminations after the regular round robin is completed.

YALE FRESHMAN, JUNIOR VARSITY CREWS BEAT HARVARD

PRESIDENT SEES HIS SON ROW LOSING RACE

REGATTA COURSE, NEW LONDON, Conn., June 22.—(AP.)—The presence of President Roosevelt, riding on the foredeck of the referee's launch, failed to inspire his son and the rest of the oarsmen of his alma mater, Harvard, as Yale swept to decisive victory in the freshman and junior varsity races opening the seventy-second regatta this morning.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., a stalwart, 180-pound youngster, 6 feet 4 inches tall, pulled a manful oar at No. 6 in the Harvard shell, but the Elis won the opening two-mile brush by slightly better than a length in something of an upset.

Then Yale's favored junior varsity, taking the lead at the half-mile mark, rowed steadily away from Harvard's Jayvees to win by three full lengths.

SON ROWS FINE RACE

It was a triumphant day for the President, regardless of which crews won, for his own graduation from Harvard many years ago was topped earlier this week by an honorary degree from Yale, bringing him into the Eli fold just in time to share the hilarity of the double victory, preliminary to the four-mile varsity classic this evening.

While the President failed to see his big son's crew win, he did see his son row a terrific race nnder perfect weather conditions. Billowing over his oar at No. 6, Franklin D., Jr., was the powerhouse of the Crimson shell, and his father, his battered white fishing hat atop his head, waved him on excitedly from the Dodger III referee's boat that followed a few short lengths back of the shells.

BIG DAY FOR PRESIDENT

The President seemed to be having a marvelous time, though he sat far quieter in a folding chair almost on the prow of the launch as the Yale Junior Varsity broke Harvard's streak of two straight in this race in 1932 and 1933.

The official times were announced as follows:

Freshman race—Yale, 9:47 3-5; Harvard, 9:51.

Junior Varsity—Yale, 9:49 1-5; Harvard, 9:48 3-5.

Dickinson College Quits Conference

CARLISLE, June 22.—(AP.)—Dickinson College, a charter member in the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference, today announced its withdrawal in order to schedule games with non-conference teams. Another reason cited for the withdrawal was the recent abolition by the conference of the rule limiting athletic scholarships. The board of athletic control also said they felt the conference regulations lacked "teeth."

John B. Fowler, Jr., of Altoona, a recent graduate, was named asistant treasurer and graduate manager of athletics. All coaches, including Joseph H. McCormick, football, were re-elected for a year.

Shields Tops Lott In London Tennis

LONDON, June 22.—(AP.)—Frank Shields, ranking United States player and No. 1 on the United States Davis Cup team, today defeated his teammate, George M. Lott, Jr., 6-3, 6-4, in the all-American semi-final round of the Queens Club tennis tournament.

In a desperate three-set struggle Wood defeated Stoefen, 3-6, 18-16, 6-3, to qualify for the other final berth.

'IRON MAN' IN MEET

Louis Peressen, of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, is to attempt to play the role of "iron man" in the Allegheny Mountain Association Senior track and field championships, to be staged at South Park on July 4. He has entered the 100-meter dash, discus throw, shot put and broad jump. John J. Quinn, of The Philips A. C., is to compete in both the 1,500-meter and 10,000-meter runs. Men's and women's entry blanks are available at 35 Vandergrift Building.

Claim Carnera Threatened With Gun at Ringside

NEW YORK, June 22.—A story was going around today that Primo Carnera came close to being bumped off by a man with the gun as he was entering the ring for his fight with Max Baer last Thursday night. The man with the gun brushed aside by Primo's seconds and a bodyguard prevented his return, it is said. The action happened so quickly that it was almost unnoticed in the crowd.

There were various versions of why the man should want to kill the heavyweight champion of the world before 60,000 witnesses.

Meanwhile Carnera was near recovery from his chipped ankle bone and torn ligament in Columbus Hospital and was visited by Baer today, and negotiations were moving along to bring them together again in the fall either here or in Chicago. Carnera also has offers for bouts with Steve Hamas here in August and with Art Lasky in Los Angeles.

BERGER JINX TO PIRATES

Waite Hoyt. Bill Harris also saw some action in this contest.

BILL USES ROOKIE

Boss McKechnie took a gambling chance in starting Recruit Dick Barrett in the second encounter in opposition to Bill Swift. Swift could not go the route, but he looked like a two-to-one shot over the Albany graduate at the outset. Berger made a costly fumble in the first inning and the Pirates jumped away with a three-run advantage.

Barrett had to be rescued by Leo Mangum in the sixth on top of a homer by Lloyd Waner which put the Pirates out in front with a one-run advantage. Berger's second homer of the day took much of the merriment out of the big crowd.

Mathes to Pilot Greensburg Club

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 22.—Joe Mathes, former pilot of the Springfield (Ill.) club of the disbanded Central League, will succeed Clay Hopper as manager of the Greensburg Trojans, of the Pennsylvania State Association, local club officials said today.

Hopper has not been discharged, but has been recalled by the St. Louis Cardinals, one of the sponsors of the Greensburg club, and will return to the road for scout duty. Scout Joe Schultz, of the Cardinals, and two new players were expected here today.

WOMEN STARS IN TOURNEY

By TOM BIRKS

Mrs. Marjorie Letts, of Chicago, shot sound and consistent golf to turn in an 82 and take the lead after one half of the big field of celebrated performers had posted scores for the first 18 holes of the Allegheny Country Club's annual two-day, 36-hole medal-play invitation women's golf tournament today.

Mrs. Letts was out in 40, four over par, and back in 42, only one over perfect figures, to lead Miss Bernice Wall, of Oshkosh, Wis., and Miss Mary K. Browne, of Cleveland, other fine shot-makers of national prominence, by one stroke. Miss Wall and Miss Browne each were out in 40 and home in 43 for their 83s.

Mrs. Harley Higbee, of Detroit, the defending champion, was well back in the field with an 89. Mrs. Higbee was playing excellent golf everywhere except upon the greens. She three-putted no less than 11 holes.

Miss Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo, was in an advantageous position for tomorrow's 18-hole round as a result of carding a sound 84 today, and Miss Nancy Byers, of Allegheny, and Mrs. S. F. Wadsworth, of Oakmont, kept the home forces in the running with 86 each. Mrs. Van de Venter Crisp, of Brookline, and Miss Fritzie Stifel, of Wheeling, were tied at 87. ACCIDENT MARS LOCAL TENNIS TOURNAMENT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Miss Mary Madden, University of Pittsburgh star, was forced to default to Mrs. Andree Russell, of Cleveland, in their quarter-final round match in women's singles, and to withdraw from the mixed doubles competition as a result of a severe and painful knee injury which she sustained when she fell in attempting to make a "get" in her duel with Mrs. Russell in the forty-sixth annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships on the courts of the Stanton Heights Golf Club today.

Mrs. Russell had won the first set, 6-2, lost the second, 4-6, and was leading at 5-1 in the third when the accident forced Miss Madden out of competition. The Pitt girl was paired with her brother, Bob, in the mixed doubles.

Quarter-final frays in men's singles were to feature the competition later in the day.

At 4 p. m. Frank Broida, Belmont's great young southpaw, battles Bill Haseltine, Philadelphia's hope and holder of two legs on the McCahill Cup, in the outstanding fracas of the tourney to date, while at 4:45, two Stanton stars, George Henderson and Russ Unger, joust in a tussle of futility, for Henderson will not accept victory, inasmuch as he is leaving for Montreal tonight to sail for England tomorrow evening and will default on match point—if he gets that far. In the meantime, there'll be competition aplenty in all three doubles events.

Yesterday saw another session devoid of major upsets, though once more several favorites were close to the ragged edge. In fact, only Dawe O'Loughlin, Bill Haseltine and Charley Lockhart came through their fourth round tilts without loss of a set.

Sam Harbison, rangy Allegheny Country Club protege of Julius Boise, rose to the heights to snatch the initial set from Broida, but buckled before the Belmonter's consistency, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4. Unger, the giant killer who dispatched Champion John O'Loughlin on Sunday, entered the last octet by eliminating first the present writer and then McCook Reed of the Keystone A. C.

Frances Grimes, hard-hitting Morgantown luminary, achieved the women's singles semi-finals by downing Flavia Taylor, 6-1, 6-2, as Dorothy Anderson, Butler aspirant and 1932 premiere, blanked Mrs. Charles Code to ease into the same frame.

It is the aim of Chairman Frank S. Smith to clean up all semi-final debates before the end of tomorrow's program. Yesterday's summary:

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER,
Former Great New Coach of Pirates

To the Sports Editor:

Now, of course, there was nothing printed about what Hitler said to Mussolini, or what Mussolini said to him, but I'll bet you a left-handed monkey wrench that when they got alone they admitted to each other that they never get over being surprised at finding themselves dictators. Also, I'll bet you Mussolini gave some good advice to Hitler, which maybe Hitler will take. If any changes are noticed in Hitler's policy inside Germany in the next six months I'll bet it is due to Mussy's advice. After the two had talked alone they let in some of their high officials so the officials could have the pleasure of saying "yes" to everything that was decided.

HONUS WAGNER.

N. C. A. A. TITLE TRACK MEET ON TODAY

LOS ANGELES, June 22.—(AP.)—The greatest array of college athletes ever gathered for a national championship were primed for their assault today and tomorrow on the N. C. A. A. and world records.

More than 300 track and field stars from 40 institutions were on hand for what promised to be the greatest meet since the Olympic games of 1932.

Five national collegiate record holders were back to defend their laurels, along with two other defending champions, but the pace was expected to be so fast that only two or three of these had any assurance they could retain their titles.

Preliminaries in all events but the distance races will be held today, with the finals tomorrow afternoon. Top performances by the chief competitors indicated that at least eight of the 13 N. C. A. A. records might fall, and five world marks topple.

STOCKS DRIFT DOWN IN DULL TRADING

NEW YORK, June 22.—(AP)—Hot weather apathy, in addition to other soporific influences, kept the stock market in somewhat of a comatose condition today and prices were irregularly lower during the greater part of the session.

There were intermittent dips and rallies, but few of these flurries rippled the dull trading surface. The silver issues were hesitant in contrast to their strength of yesterday. There were scattered firm as well as soft spots in evidence. Boardrooms were all but deserted, as most brokerage customers, seeing little chance for profit at the present pace, decided to take longer week-end holidays.

Wheat rallied after early indecision, although corn and oats sagged. Cotton improved as the relief administration announced a purchasing program starting with about 250,000 bales. Silver and rubber were quiet. Prime investment bonds were slightly higher. Foreign exchanges did little.

Just how inflationary the government's silver-buying program will turn out to be was a matter of considerable argument in the financial district.

In some quarters it was held that "a sustained rise in the price of silver would have a world-wide favorable effect on the international wholesale level which would be even more potent than the artificial rise of the gold price." It is not thought, however, that purchases around the present level of 45 cents an ounce would achieve the object sought by the administration. It was pointed out that if Washington follows the slow buying plan which was indicated by Secretary Morgenthau, the amounts of the metal which can be obtained will be small.

Skeptics of monetary experimentation continued to express doubts that the buying of silver, even in small amounts, and the issuing of silver certificates against such purchases, would aid business generally. One commentator advanced the prediction that "the test probably will bring a more disappointing realization of fundamental facts" than did the gold buying operation.

WHEAT TAKES NEW DROP

CHICAGO, June 22. — Fresh downturns took place in grain values early today after a show of firmness at the outset. Overnight moisture in drought districts northwest was reported, together with partial breaking of drought in Europe.

Opening unchanged to ½ higher, September 90-90¼, wheat afterward underwent a pronounced general setback. Corn started unchanged to ⅜ up, and subsequently receded all around.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

Business Must Share Confidence

By B. C. FORBES

"The country will go ahead in spite of anything Washington may or may not do."

THAT SENTIMENT is widely, but by no means universally, expressed.

Mr. Forbes

The plea made here to men of affairs to exert every effort to quicken recovery during the prospective long lull in eruptions at Washington has drawn sharp criticisms—in addition, of course, to indorsements. One reader, Charles A. Darbois, is "more than astonished" that any such suggestion should have been made in this column.

He asks:

"Do you, for one minute, suppose that there is an employer, big or small, who would wish to cut off his nose to spoil his face? We want all the business we can get. But it is impossible, under American methods of mass production, to make contracts ahead if there is always the fear overhanging that, after you have entered into your contract, somehow, sometime, the cost is going to be increased by some unforeseen and incalculable occurrence.

"Please remember you are not speaking to the galleries alone."

Admittedly, risks are inherent in launching ambitious business efforts at this time. Admittedly, excuses a'plenty could be found for hugging the shore.

But suppose all business men were to exhibit timidity, nervousness, insistence upon crawling into their shells, what would happen to the United States?

Instead of progress, we would suffer retrogression. Instead of employment expansion, we would witness employment contraction. Instead of growth of confidence, we would experience growth of pessimism.

HOW WOULD CONGRESS react to such a deplorable situation? It is a foregone conclusion that President Roosevelt and legislators would feel impelled, not to say compelled, to institute further drastic innovations, further questionable experiments, further un-American legislation and decrees.

Surely every thoughtful citizen should do everything within his power to avert such an eventuality.

Years and years ago I began to warn industry that unless it did much more to take care of its own, the politicians would inevitably get busy.

Similarly, I would most earnestly urge every employer in the land to go the limit in contributing to pushing the nation forward, because the only alternative would be renewed revolutionary activities at Washington.

I, for one, feel that the fewer additional un-American excursions embarked on at Washington, the better it will be for the future of the country.

President Roosevelt again this week plainly intimated eagerness to do things rather than to give the country a rest. Either industry or Washington must tackle the supreme problem of restoring employment and prosperity. Even at the cost of considerable risk, industry should step forward with renewed boldness and make a brave effort to achieve the national objective.

I HAVE BEEN asking the nation's employers what one quality they regard as most important in a business man. One replies, "guts," which he explains is another term for courage and confidence. He adds:

"My reason for stating this is that most of us change our policy to suit the times. We lose our confidence and courage in good times and fall into bad habits. Likewise, in bad times we should be consistent. If we have a certain policy, let us stick to it. I know I am preaching, because I don't practice it myself, particularly in good times.

"Bad times don't worry me quite so much because they worry the other fellow more, and I am going to have more reasonable competition when the bad times pass."

There you have a timely pointer. It is related of a famous general that, before an epochal battle, he addressed his soldiers, told them he knew they must feel uneasy, but added, with emphasis, that the soldiers on the other side probably felt even more uneasy.

Any fool can be a coward. The times do not call for cowards, but for men of faith, vision, daring.

My favorite motto is, "If you try, you may; if you don't, you won't."

Manager Joe Dobbs, of the Immaculate Heart nine, is going to make some radical changes in his lineup this evening when the West Penn Park aggregation clashes with the Scott Morgans in the feature game in the Greater Pittsburgh League.

For some reason or other, Immaculate Heart has not been going at the pace Dobbs feels it should with the talent available. This aggregation was together all last season, and fans will still remember the brilliant showing the locals made in the National Baseball Federation series here. The team gained the final round, and only bad breaks prevented it from winning the title. With about two changes, the same team started out this season, and Dobbs now is worried because the club is not hitting the same clip as last year.

Two games are carded in the City League this evening, neither of them having any bearing on the pennant race. Bill Hite takes his Beltzhoover nine to meet the J. J. Vaughans at the Salt Works grounds and Mt. Oliver goes to Frick Park to meet Dinty Moore's Parmelee outfit.

The champion Book nine just about sewed up the first half title in the City League last evening, winning the crucial game with Homewood, 9 to 5. The Book hitters collected 18 safe hits and put the game away with a four-run attack in the seventh inning.

COURTESY OF THE ROAD TO YOU

THE Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association sets forth the following as a courtesy guide to the operators of the trucks owned by members of the Association.

The Three "C's" of the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association:
COURTESY... to other highway users.
CONSIDERATION... for his share of the highway.
CO-OPERATION... with the people who have helped build our highways.

1. Always keep to the right side of the highway and pull as far to the right side of the road as possible to allow clear passage for passing vehicles. When making deliveries park next to curb, avoid traffic congestion. Park twenty-five feet back of intersection next to curb.

2. Even though you may have legal right of way, let the other driver have it when appearances indicate possibility of an accident.

3. Be especially careful when passing schools or places where children are at play, remembering that the public will condemn you in the event of an accident, no matter how blameless you may be.

4. Stop at STOP signs. Most accidents occur at intersections. Stop signs are effective twenty-four hours a day.

5. Be especially courteous at times when traffic is unusually heavy, giving every benefit of doubt to operators of passenger vehicles.

6. When it becomes necessary to leave your truck unattended, shut off your engine and set your emergency brake; place in low gear; never stop on curves, at the crest of a hill, or at any point where traffic cannot see your vehicle from all directions; at all times have red lanterns for night and red flags for day in the event of emergency stops, placing them at least 200 feet to the front and rear of your vehicle. When vehicle (two ton or more capacity) is disabled you must burn flares at night.

7. Observe the slogan of the Governor's Committee on Street and Highway Safety—"Take Time to Be Safe," and keep 500 feet apart.

8. Take long turns at intersections, short turns often result in accidents.

9. Change to low gear from a full stop when about to descend a steep grade; take no chances on your vehicle getting beyond control.

10. Difficult as it may be, try to listen quietly when the impatient owner of a passenger car calls you down for some real or imagined discourtesy or infraction of highway regulations. If you are wrong, apologize; if you are right, apologize just the same.

The Thin Man

By DASHIELL HAMMETT

"Be sensible, Mimi," I said. "Suppose Wynant was killed three months ago and his corpse disguised as somebody else. He's supposed to have gone away leaving powers of attorney with Macaulay. All right, then, the estate's completely in Macaulay's hands for ever and ever, or at least until he finishes plundering it, because you can't even—"

Macaulay stood up saying: "I don't know what you're getting at, Charles, but I'm—"

"Take it easy," Guild told him. "Let him have his say out."

"He killed Wynant and he killed Nunheim," I assured Mimi. "What do you want to do? Be next on the list? You ought to know damned well that once you've come to his aid by saying you've seen Wynant alive—because that's his weak spot, being the only person up to now who claims to have seen Wynant since October—he's not going to take any chances on having you change your mind—not when it's only a matter of knocking you off with the same gun and putting the blame on Wynant. And what are you doing it for? For those few crummy bonds in the drawer, a fraction of what you get your hands on through your children if we prove Wynant's dead."

Mimi turned to Macaulay and said: "You crook."

Guild gaped at her, more surprised by that than by anything else that had been said.

Macaulay started to move. I did not wait to see what he meant to do, but slammed his chin with my left fist. The punch was all right, it landed solidly and dropped him, but I felt a burning sensation on my left side and knew I had torn the bullet wound open.

"What do you want me to do?" I growled at Guild. "Put him in cellophane for you?"

Nick Tells of Murders

It was nearly 3 in the morning when I let myself into our apartment at the Normandie. Nora, Dorothy and Larry Crowley were in the living room, Nora and Larry playing backgammon, Dorothy reading a newspaper.

"Did Macaulay really kill them?" Nora asked immediately.

"Yes. Did the morning papers have anything about Wynant?"

Dorothy said: "No, just about Macaulay being arrested. Why?"

"Macaulay killed him too."

Nora said, "Really?" Larry said, "I'll be damned." Dorothy began to cry. Nora looked at Dorothy in surprise.

Dorothy sobbed: "I want to go home to mamma."

Larry said not very eagerly: "I'll be glad to take you home if . . ."

Dorothy said she wanted to go. Nora fussed over her, but did not try to talk her out of going. Larry, trying not to look too unwilling, found his hat and coat. He and Dorothy left.

Nora shut the door behind them and leaned against it. "Explain that to me, Mr. Charalambides," she said.

I shook my head.

She sat on the sofa beside me. "Now out with it. If you skip a single word, I'll—"

"I'd have to have a drink before I could do any talking."

She cursed me and brought me a drink. "Has he confessed?"

"Why should he? You can't plead guilty of murder in the first degree. There were too many murders—and at least two of them were too obviously done in cold blood—for the District Attorney to let him plead guilty of second-degree murder. There's nothing for him to do but fight it out."

"But he did commit them?"

"Sure."

She pushed my glass down from my mouth. "Stop stalling and tell me about it."

"Well, it figures out that he and Julia had been gypping Wynant for some time. He'd dropped a lot of money in the market and he'd found out about her past—as Morelli hinted—and the pair of them teamed up on the old man. We're sicking accountants on Macaulay's books and Wynant's and shouldn't have much trouble tracing some of the loot from one to the other."

"Then you don't know positively that he was robbing Wynant?"

"Sure we know. It doesn't click any other way. The chances are Wynant was going away on a trip the third of October, because he did draw $5,000 out of the bank in cash, but he didn't close up his shop and give up his apartment. That was done by Macaulay a few days later. Wynant was killed at Macaulay's in Scarsdale on the night of the third. We know that because on the morning of the fourth, when Macaulay's cook, who slept at home, came to work, Macaulay met her at the door with some kind of trumped-up complaint and two weeks' wages and fired her on the spot, not letting her in the house to find any corpses or blood-stains."

"How did you find that out? Don't skip details."

"Ordinary routine. Naturally after we grabbed him we went to his office and house to see what we could find out—you know, where-were-you-on-the night-of-June-6, 1894-stuff—and the present cook said she'd only been working for him since the eighth of October, and that led to that. We also found a table with a very faint trace of what we hope is human blood not quite scrubbed out. The scientific boys are making shavings of it now to see if they can soak out any results for us." (It turned out to be beef blood.)

Wynant Jealous

"Then you're not sure he—"

"Stop saying that. Of course we're sure. That's the only way it clicks. Wynant had found out that Julia and Macaulay were gypping him and also thought, rightly or wrongly, that Julia and Macaulay were cheating on him—and we know he was jealous—so he went up there to confront him with whatever proof he had, and Macaulay, with prison looking him in the face, killed the old man. Now don't say we're not sure. It doesn't make any sense otherwise. Well, there he is with a corpse, one of the harder things to get rid of. Can I stop to take a swallow of whisky?"

"Just one," Nora said. "But this is just a theory, isn't it?"

"Call it any name you like. It's good enough for me."

"But I thought everybody was supposed to be considered innocent until they were proved guilty and if there was any reasonable doubt, they—"

"That's for juries, not detectives. You find the guy you think did the murder and you slam him in the can and let everybody know you think he's guilty and put his picture all over newspapers, and the District Attorney builds up the best theory he can on what information you've got, and meanwhile you pick up additional details here and there, and people who recognize his picture in the paper—as well as people who'd think he was innocent if you hadn't arrested him—come in and tell you things about him, and presently you've got him sitting on the electric chair." Two days later a woman in Brooklyn identified Macaulay as a George Foley who for the past three months had been renting an apartment from her.)

"But that seems so loose."

Not Mathematical Murder

"When murders are committed by mathematics," I said, "you can solve them by mathematics. Most of them aren't, and this one wasn't. I don't want to go against your idea of what's right and wrong, but when I say he probably dissected the body so he could carry it into town in bags I'm only saying what seems most probable. That would be on the 6th of October or later, because it wasn't until then that he laid off the two mechanics Wynant had working in the shop—Prentice and McNaughton—and shut it up. So he buried Wynant under the floor, buried him with a fat man's clothes and a lame man's stick and a belt marked D. W. Q., all arranged so they wouldn't get too much of the lime—or whatever he used to eat off the dead man's features and flesh—on them, and he recemented the floor over the grave.

"So now that's taken care of. By renewing the lease on the shop and keeping it vacant—supposedly waiting for Wynant to return—he can make sure—reasonably sure—that nobody will discover the grave, and if it is accidentally discovered, then fat Mr. D. W. Q.—by that time Wynant's bones would be pretty bare and you can't tell whether a man was thin or fat by his skeleton—was murdered by Wynant, which explains why Wynant has made himself scarce. That taken care of, Macaulay forges the power of attorney and, with Julia's help, settles down to the business of gradually transferring the late Clyde's money to themselves. Now I'm going theoretical again. Julia doesn't like murder, and she's frightened, and he's not too sure she won't weaken on him. That's why he makes her break with Morelli—giving Wynant's jealousy as an excuse. He's afraid she might confide to Morelli in a weak moment and, as the time draws near for her still closer friend, Face Peppler, to get out of prison, he gets more and more worried. He's been safe there as long as Face stayed in, because she's not likely to put anything dangerous in a letter that has to pass through the warden's hands, but now . . . Well, he starts to plan, and then all hell breaks loose. Mimi and her children arrive and start hunting for Wynant and I come to town and am in touch with them and he thinks I'm helping them. He decides to play safe on Julia by putting her out of the way. Like it so far?"

"Yes, but . . ."

Love Calls :: Daily Short Short-Story

By MAUDE L. ROBINSON

A sour note instantly was introduced into any police gathering at the mere mention of Zany Mellup's name, for he had held up to ridicule the detective squad too many times.

Not that he was hard to find. He illumined the spot where he chanced to be with his too perfect suits with their too sharp creases, his overbright ties and his glittering diamonds, for Zany was "in the money." Laying hands on him in the act of acquiring the knicknacks of the affluent was, however, a copper's hopeless dream. Besides the police others wanted to lay hands on Zany.

This bright spring day, resplendent in gray suit and panama, ready for whatever might turn up for him, Zany swung up onto the boulevard bus with several other persons and climbed to the roof seats. Mechanically he turned his eyes to take in the girl who sat down beside him as the bus jerked suddenly onward. Her per little nose was just below his shoulder, which was pleasant, her big blue eyes were trusting and altogether she was a trim, cute little trick. He wished that she would glance at him, but she watched the street with a bored interest, oblivious to Zany's dashing ensemble.

Picture Her Bank

With another of his sidewise glances Zany shot his cuffs and straightened his tie and as he did so his elbow knocked to the floor her flat purse resting loosely in the crook of her arm. Their heads bumped as both of them dove for it. Zany got it.

"Say!" he gasped as they straightened up. "I'm sorry . . . I didn't mean . . ."

"That's all right," she dimpled at him in a brief, friendly smile that quirked her red lips. She opened the bag and proceeded to powder her absurd nose, frowning seriously into the tiny mirror. He shot a glance at the open bag. He saw a letter addressed to Mrs. James Arthur Foster.

"It's just the way I started out this morning," she murmured humorously. "All wrong. It wasn't your fault. Jim says I get into messes because I haven't any brains!"

Zany's sympathetic frown was inquiring.

"My husband," she confided, eyes on the lake. They were speeding through Jackson Park. "He got so mad because I did something I thought was terribly smart, things being as they are these days."

"What did you do?" Zany inquired sociably, amused.

She had small tapering fingers and nervously opened and shut the bag as she talked. "Nobody else would think it so awful," she relied. "When Jim got back from the races yesterday he gave me a big bunch of money to bank—and I stuck it behind a picture instead. It was safer—but the way he raved!"

"Zany walked through the living room.

"Oh—husbands!" Zany dismissed the breed into oblivion as he turned protectingly toward her. "I guess you banked it all right after that, didn't you?"

She dimpled again and her eyes laughed at him. "I just did not!" she stated. "After Jim got through storming and left this morning I hit on a dandy place. That Bessington building may be stylish, but has it got cracks! Anywhere you look! I just stuck the money in one of them between a shelf and the wall in my good dish cupboard."

They were crossing Drexel boulevard.

"I gotta get off here," he told her ruefully. His eyes admired her and she nodded archly. She waved at him as he crossed the street and the bus tooled on.

Not So Dumb

Keen-eyed, treading softly, Zany walked on through the Foster living room, into the little butler's pantry all done up in apple-green enamel and oilcloth. With practiced fingers he removed the small oval platter at the back of the middle shelf against the wall, a shelf just the right height for a small woman to reach.

His searching fingers found the gap between shelf and wall and they touched the roll of money.

Then he frone, for the corridor door opened and in came the "cute little number" he had left on the bus. Zany stepped softly behind the door. She came into the room where he was hiding, softly humming "Stormy Weather."

She went straight to the cupboard and reached her hand in for the money. As she turned away she spied Zany. He was about to pounce upon her when she suddenly smiled. "It's good to meet you again. I decided not to go downtown after you left the bus."

Zany straightened his shoulders. This was going to be soft. He'd make a few passes at her, then scram. So he left his hiding place and stepped to her side. He was about to begin with flattery when something about her eyes and mouth stilled the words. He looked again. Then came a heavy masculine laugh from the corridor doorway. He jumped. Into the room came Red Jim Foster, the kidnaper. In his hand was a gun. He was laughing like a fool. He called: "Nice work, Katie . . . nice work." Zany shrugged his shoulders, eyed Katie balefully and sneered. "And I thought you were a dumb cluck." "She is," chuckled Red Jim, "but you're dumber and now you're snatched. And it's going to cost one hundred grand to spring you."

A 2:30 Curfew for Co-Eds!

By Winifred Black

STANFORD UNIVERSITY girls don't have to tell anybody on earth where they have been if they want to stay out till half past two in the morning.

And they can stay out until half past two any old time they so desire and not even one pair of eyebrows will be lifted over the situation.

Now then, old-fashioned mother, just exactly how do you feel about that?

The hours are getting later and later every night in the year aren't they?

Even out at Stanford they've always insisted on a 1:30 a. m. deadline—but just within the last few days they've moved the clock forward a good round hour. And nobody appears to be in the least shocked or fretted about it.

What a time the mothers do have these days anyhow.

After the war 1 o'clock was the hour for daughter to get home, and mamma worried to death every minute after she had heard the clock strike 11.

The clock is a different clock these days, nobody goes to a party till 10 o'clock anyhow, any more. I don't know why they don't, but they don't, and we oldsters might just as well make up our minds to it and be calm and comfortable about it, don't you think?

Darrow and the General

One thing paramount in this string of united pearls is the untrammeled and independent system of threshing out a subject by debate.

Even when you are right a guy will give you an argument on it.

When you are wrong you can figure on a verbal and editorial shellacking that will blast you like a busy quarry.

Take Darrow and Johnson last month. The General asked the Learned Counsellor for his opinion on this, that and those. Darrow handed over his opinion and the General howled to the ridge pole and points more northern.

It was a good argument while it lasted. And it lasted. The attorney for the defiance handed down his condensed version in 333 pages. That would be quick thinking for a mail order catalogue.

The General answered in a volume exactly the same size in width and length. Only one more dimension was essential. And, having read both books, we can testify they were equally brief.

In this happy land, which is even happier if your parachute opens, criticism of an egg, the government, your political opponent, or even your wife or husband, is not treason to the state.

We will guarantee the next item for five or 10 years. If Clarence had published his critical treatise in Europe he would be now headed for the top Hilalayas, and so, Tibet.

The customer may not like the taste of the medicine. But, the druggist's rebuttal is that the customer asked for it. That is the same prescription Darrow hands to the General. He asked for it. And got it.

Darrow is an all-round lawyer. When there are human rights to be protected, he will defend man, woman or monkey.

His opinion is not to be bought. But it can be paid for.

Meaning that you can be in the wrong. But, with Darrow spouting every 10 minutes like Old Faithful, no jury will ever convict you of anything worse than using a neighbor's toothbrush to oil your fan belt. For that trifling service Mr. Darrow inherits fees of varying sizes. Just a nest egg. But, it's an ostrich speaking.

Darrow probably regrets the argument with the General. In the twilight of a man's life he doesn't care to get sunburned.

A Real Job for RWD

Workers Should Be Provided for Idle Community Recreation-Education Centers

With the closing of the public schools for vacation about 263,000 boys and girls in the city and county must solve the problem of what to do with their time. In addition, thousands of unemployed and those employed only a few days a week are seeking recreation.

At the same time many community centers, playgrounds and gymnasiums will be closed because no funds have been provided for supervisors and instructors. Many children, who in the past summers went to camps, will be forced to remain at home this year because of the greatly curtailed budgets of the Community Fund and other social agencies financing summer camps for children.

In order to solve this important problem, representatives of the Federation of Social Agencies, a Community Fund organization, have asked Relief Works Division authorities to provide recreational leaders to supervise these projects.

Sponsored by the Board of Public Education, and functioning as part of the Community Councils established in numerous districts of the city and county, recreational and educational centers originally were opened last spring with the aid of the RWD, but the workers were withdrawn after a short time and the project was brought to an abrupt close. At that time, according to figures given out by the Federation of Social Agencies, about 80,000 persons each week were taking some part in the activities of these centers.

If the present plan is approved as an RWD project, a group of about 50 workers would be requisitioned for service immediately in some of the outlying sections of the county where the situation is described as requiring particular attention. More than 200 others would be employed for service in the city and the remainder of the county.

Such a program is deserving of prompt attention from the RWD authorities.

Good News for Us

Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation Report Indicates Great Future for Pittsburgh's Industries

Pittsburgh's heavy industries, which produce the machinery and the buildings for a major part of the nation's business, have some good news.

A report prepared by the Brookings Institution of Washington, and financed by the Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation of Pittsburgh, finds that the claims of Technocrats and other new schools of economics that there is a vast surplus of productive capacity are untrue.

This means that any continued business recovery will bring new activity to the mills which produce heavy structural steel, to the electrical plants which make large motors, generators and turbines, to the makers of steel mill equipment which build the vast rolling mills for the entire nation.

Some even more concrete evidence of the truth of this statement has appeared in the placing of two big orders for steel mill equipment this year. The United Engineering and Foundry Company is building a continuous mill for the Ford Motor Company. Mesta Machine is building a similar mill for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company. These installations, including building and other facilities, will cost from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 each.

Prevent Forest Fires

Drought Condition Makes Danger Greater This Year Than in Previous Summers

The State Department of Forests and Waters has announced that 11 additional steel forest fire observation towers are being erected. These have been purchased with Federal emergency conservation work funds.

Ten of the towers will be 80 feet high and one will be 60 feet high. Thirty miles of telephone lines will be set up to provide for communication with local forest rangers and offices of district foresters. The towers will be erected by the Civilian Conservation Corps under direction of state forestry officials.

This work emphasizes the importance placed upon forest fire prevention by both State and Federal authorities.

But even more than this must be done. But it must be done by the motorist, the members of picnic parties, by campers.

Drought has increased the danger this year.

Only a short drive along the principal highways is needed to see the devastation which has been done in the past by forest fires. Such catastrophes endanger lives. They destroy the state's wealth. They destroy its great natural beauty.

Most of these fires are due to thoughtlessness. They are due to a carelessly thrown match, a discarded cigaret, a neglected campfire.

Remember this on your summer trips. Don't be guilty of destroying Pennsylvania's beauty.

The King Prefers Skirts

Blame His Grandma.

Traditions sometime get their start in strange ways.

A couple of centuries ago a Queen of Sweden earned the disapproval of the Court by wearing pants.

In 1934 the King of Sweden who, at the age of 70, still plays tennis, won't go on the tennis court with a woman player who wears shorts.

Tradition dictates that a Swedish King—even one with the most liberal, modern ideas—must disapprove of women wearing pants.

So Gustav can't enjoy playing with first-rate women players who think shorts more convenient and comfortable than swirling skirts.

Blame his great-great-grandmother.

Girls Will Be Girls

Unless They Want to Be Boys.

Girls will be girls, but they'll be altogether different when there are boys around and when there are none. They'll rely on the boys if they get a chance, according to Dr. McCracken, who, as president of Vassar, ought to know something about girls.

Girls become self-reliant in women's college, but co-eds do what the men do, says the doctor. It seems to be a simple matter of plus or minus; a girl wants to go along with a boy, but she'll learn how to go along by herself if she has to.

Seems to us, somehow, that it isn't a brand-new discovery. ...iblem.

Development of the nation's inland waterways ought to be carried on comprehensively as a major enterprise of the Federal Public Works program. The Government could add enormously and permanently to the national wealth by providing better channels of inland navigation and utilizing the great sources of hydro-electric power along these mighty streams. The waterways programs should include an adequate canal system. Naturally it would include a flood control program.

Railroads, in the early days, started to put the existing canals out of business and to monopolize the carriage of freights which paid the highest returns. The waterways should be restored and the system augmented to embrace the entire country—FOR COMMERCE AND PROSPERITY.

Every section clamors for the enhanced buying power which the financing of these needful public works would bestow upon the communities.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 22. — Thoughts while strolling: A lady's hair couldn't be that color. Bud Kelland's shirts and ties are same material. And Joseph P. Day is seldom without a carnation. They say Mrs. Pat Campbell, King Edward's idol, meeting London's most famous waif, Chaplin, and seeing his mimicry, asked to kiss him.

Short description of Eddie Peabody—country jakeish. Messmore Kendall juts a mean eyebrow. Dandy dog shop name: Puppyville. All S. S. Van Dine's books are a six-letter-word murder case. Most of us hanker for school when too late. Marion Davies and Dorothy Mackaill, close friends, look alike.

Indigestion jitter: Sumner Blossom's usual lunch is a slab of apple pie covered with melted cheese. You'd think Dickens had just been discovered. Fred Stone in one of Amon Carter's six gallon hats. Just what did they ever do to gold hoarders? Julia Sanderson's flutey up-take laugh would answer that.

George Armsby always looks as though he had just received the works in a barber chair. Dale Carnegie and Pierre Cartier have identical profiles. Time for a Society for Improvement of the Rich. A stirring book-title: "To The Vanquished!" And a salute to most of us these days.

One of my favorite people—Oliver Herford. Dawn Powell is from out Ohio way. Never see those young Rollos in horn-rimmed glasses anymore. Lucius Beebe suggests hat, gloves and stick. And Mrs. Bryan Foy, a 22-year-old Fannie Brice. If the Fairbanks-Pickford muss flares on Page One again, I'll scream.

Morton Downey is America's champ badge collector. In almost every pocket, he has one or more—symbols of benefits and gifts of lodges. His collection totals several hundred gathered hither and yon. As a shaver, his burning ambition was to be a policeman and sport a badge. As a tenor singer, he never lost the longing.

Hamish McLarnin, the writer, whose hobby is magic, has been knocking about India for several months hoping to see the famous rope trick. But like everybody, finds only people who know some one who knows some one who saw it. The rope trick is legend and nothing more. McLaurin also finds most Indian conjurers vastly over-touted. American illusionists—such as Thurston and Cardini—have them lashed to the mast. Indians often surpass in feats of muscular control, swallowing and regurgitating and the like. But these are not illusions. The charm of their work is performing evanishments at close range, thus perfecting the art of mis-direction.

* * *

I saw the immaculate Cardini, with silk hat and Inverness cape, go through his routine wearing gloves for perhaps the twentieth time a recent evening. His performance is a glossy study in superb finish. Every gesture a poem and triumph of facial expression. There are no efforts at humor in a Cardini performance. He takes his prestidigitations seriously. And I have never seen him when he did not bring down the house. Yet I always have prickly qualms he is going to kill himself inhaling the smoke of the hundreds of lighted cigarets he yanks from the air.

Elsie Janis has re-opened her beautiful estate near Tarrytown, bought with the profits of her most famous play, "The Vanderbilt Cup." Since directing a successful revue on Broadway last season, she has been devoting her time to writing fiction. In maturer years she prefers this mode of expression.

Another stage deserter is the lively Eddie Dowling. But instead of literature, he has turned to politics. And Broadway rumors insist that he is not kidding; that he is seriously considering possibility of a U. S. Senate seat. Dowling's real name is Goucher and his grandfather founded the girls' college bearing that name. He is happily married to Ray Dooley, the original baby-voiced talker of infantile roles in the Follies. She was one of the very few comics who could make Ziegfeld's glum expression break into a smile.

I received a manicure today in one of those silvered and mirrored botiques by a striking Julia Hoyt looking brunette with a feather of snow white, like a cockatoo, in her hair. As she polished I spun a fanciful web—perhaps an impoverished princess in exile. At length I commented on the white streak and my admiration therefor. "You can git it done for $2," she said. How consistently life cracks up the illusions.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Love Is Built From Simple Things

Someone, in remembrance, has given me a little figure of Mary. Such a crude bit of pottery, you might wonder why it has such power. The fingers of the one who fashioned it, some unknown peasant, knew little of the complicated business we call Art. Nor, I suspect, would Art have helped him greatly in the thing he wished to do.

To mold something that would mean love, something that would show the comfort and joy and helpfulness that lay in love, even for a poor peasant; to mold it in the form of that Gentle Lady who was poor, like himself, yet through her love walked free in every heart—that was what he wished to do. And only his own heart could tell him how.

So he went about it in his own way, using the simple methods and materials that were natural to him. Kneeling there in the dim, green cavern of some old fig tree's shade, with his sweat-stained mattock lying forgotten in the hot, still fields, he fashioned the small figure clumsily, patiently, from the common clay, and burned the clay to hardness in the small brick oven he had built himself.

Then, with crude colors ground from that same soil, he gave her such crude beauty as he could. Some small, blue flowers on her rough, white robe, a touch of gold about the Baby's head, a flare of gold above her brooding face.

Now I hold the thing he made, so crudely modeled you can hardly trace kind Mary's face. Yet from it comes such healing gentleness that it is like the touch of kind, strong hands.

A bit of common clay, warmed by a simple peasant's faith and love, so small it's easily hidden in one hand—so great its comfort spreads through all the world.

Love is like that. Not some rare gift sent, ready made, from distant Paradise . . . but built by tenderness and toil from simple things.

A peasant's fingers fumbling common clay.

A tired mother cooking in some hot, dark room, bending to kiss a baby playing on the floor.

A young girl saving pennies from her scanty check to buy a cushion for the home she'll have some day, her eyes like stars above her shabby clothes.

A weary man, who once longed to go to sea, spending his years upon a factory bench so that his boy may "graduate from Hi."

A frightened lad, choking back homesick tears, taking a CCC job to "help the folks back home."

A wife, her arm about her husband's desperate head, whispering, "Don't worry; nothing matters when we have each other, dear!"

A baby holding up a bunch of withered flowers, crying, "See, daddy, got you a surprise!"

Love is like that. Built from the simplest things. Some tears, some laughter, some bright flash of faith, softening and warming our poor human clay.

Yet from it comes a miracle that heals the world!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Man's Charmed Life!

The American man is a hardy perennial. Nothing can kill him—not even the things he does to himself. Like the good old honeysuckle vine, he comes up blooming every year.

* * *

He loads his insides down with beans, pie and pickles in New England and with hot breads and fried foods in the South. In New York, he lets the foreign chefs pour villainous hot melted butter over everything he eats, except his coffee and ice-cream; and he blithely consumes half a dozen rich hors d'oeuvres, before starting in on the lobster and terrapin.

But, what ho! Then he takes a soda-mint and awakes in the morning ready for his hot waffles.

* * *

For over a dozen years, he has been drinking everything poisonous, from denatured alcohol to artificial champagne, shellac and swamp whisky. Yet his beautiful castiron stomach still continues to act like a stomach.

* * *

He rushes around like a maniac in a high-powered car, cuts corners, slips past lights; and unless he gets into a flirtation with a truck or a steam engine, he lives to tell the judge "it wasn't so."

* * *

He walks around a golf course for hours bareheaded in the blazing sun of an August day and still manages to retain sufficient reason to brag about his stroke or invent a good alibi.

* * *

He knows that the stock market crash wrecked the lives, fortunes and nervous systems of half the world; yet he is still ready to hang up his shirt every time the ticker jiggles up a few points.

* * *

He knows that the World War killed off the flower of our youth and practically ruined the whole wide world; yet he goes right on listening to the talk about "war" and manufacturing munitions. The only trouble being that he can't think of anything to FIGHT about—YET.

* * *

He is aware that a mercenary, determined woman can haul him into court, sue him for heart-balm (and perhaps collect), wreck his reputation and make him look foolish. Yet he continues to write those "Baby-doll" letters, and is as careless about choosing the kind of women he plays around with as he is about what the barkeep puts in his cocktails.

* * *

He keeps on rushing into marriage as though it were a revolving door and sliding out of it again as easily as a snake sheds its skin. Yet nothing ever quenches his optimism and enthusiasm until he finds himself in the alimony jail.

In short, in spite of bullets, racketeers, kidnapers, rich food, bad drinks, fast cars, patent medicines, gold diggers and no judgment about love of women, he manages to survive, to thrive and to enjoy life.

No wonder so many wives shoot their husbands. Nothing else seems to KILL them!

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

Dark Flame

You are a dark flame,
Little of light;
Not meant for leaping,
Wild with delight.
You do not dazzle
Eyes that would rest,
Nor do you lure men
On a far quest.

You are a dark flame,
Flickering, warm,
Ready with succor
After the storm.
I from your circle
Will not depart;
You are a dark flame,
Cheering my heart!

Military Sub-Committee Blunders in Air Study

By James T. Williams, Jr.

IT is fortunate alike for American honor and American defense that the President of the United States is not dependent for his information regarding the military establishment or for his authority and responsibility as commander-in-chief of the Army upon the House Committee on Military Affairs.

Probably no committee in either House of any Congress since the great war has shown such failure to understand the legislative responsibility in regard to the national defense as has the House Committee on Military Affairs under the administrations of President Hoover and President Roosevelt.

The latest exhibition of the work of this committee appears in an extraordinary document prepared by one of its sub-committees and referred to House calendar in the closing days of Congress.

This document purports to be a partial report of an investigation of alleged profiteering in military aircraft which the House directed the Committee on Military Affairs to make.

This partial report closes with the following recommendation:

"We find it necessary to report that we are most firmly convinced from the evidence and records submitted that before any substantial progress in the upbuilding of the morale and material of the Army Air Corps can be attained, Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois must be relieved from his position as chief of the air corps. We unanimously recommend that the Secretary of War take such action without delay."

* * *

Committee Fails To Study Law

THE subcommittee which signed this recommendation did not report it for the approval of the full committee on military affairs but reported it directly to the House.

This sub-committee apparently labors under the hallucination that the Secretary of War can relieve a chief of branch of the Army before the expiration of the four-year term for which he was nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

Had the sub-committee taken the trouble to look up the record, it would have found:

That the national defense act of 1920, as it passed the Senate, gave to the Secretary of War the authority to remove any chief of branch when in his judgment the should be done.

That the House objected to the additional authority being given the Secretary of War and the Senate bill was thus amended to meet the objections of the House. At that time the House Committee on Military Affairs was attempting to compel the Secretary of War to retain as chief of branch an officer whom he wished to relieve.

If Secretary Dern should carry out the recommendation that he remove the chief of the Army Air Corps, "without delay," he would be guilty of a violation of the law and could be held in strict accountability by the courts.

The only way the Secretary of War can remove a chief of branch is by ordering him to be court-martialed. If the court finds the officer guilty of conduct that would warrant his removal, then the Secretary of War, by approving the findings, can remove him.

* * *

President Aware Of His Powers

EITHER the subcommittee guilty of making this lawless recommendation was ignorant of the fact that only the President can remove a chief of branch of the Army or this sub-committee was too timid to address its recommendation directly to the President and risk a reprimand at his hand for attempting to trespass upon the constitutional authority and responsibility of the commander-in-chief.

Fortunately there is a man in the White House who is completely informed concerning his constitutional authority and responsibility as commander-in-chief. Without regard to any dictation from a committee of the Congress, Mr. Roosevelt can remove any officer as chief of the Army Air Corps and appoint any officer whom the Senate will confirm to that position.

Some time ago President Roosevelt approved the setting up by the Secretary of War of a competent board headed by President Wilson's Secretary of War—Newton D. Baker—to investigate the condition of military aviation. This board, of which a majority of the members are civilians, will in due time report to the President its findings.

In the light of those findings the President will then be in a position to decide what ought to be done to better the administration of the Army Air Corps. If a new chief is required, the President has ample authority to appoint him without any dictation from a congressional sub-committee.

Human Side of the News

Dr. James H. Scarr, New York Weatherman, Has Picturesque Career—Helps Solve Court Cases

By Edwin C. Hill

IT was Weatherman James H. Scarr who told us away back last September that the winter of 1933-4 was going to be a swinger. But the good doctor, perched high aloft near the roof of the Whitehall Building at the tip end of Manhattan, won't take a chance on guessing about the summer. Not a word says he as to whether it will be an extremely hot summer or an unusually mild one.

He took a chance on last winter—oh, yes, weathermen, scientists though they be, have to take a chance now and then, and Dr. Scarr, knowing from the facts and figures that the six winters preceding 1933-4 had been rather mild, figured that the law of averages was about to get to work and that the oncoming winter would be a tough one. But he hasn't any such data to go on regarding predicting the character of the coming summer, and therefore leaves us up in the air. Dr. Scarr asks:

"But why fuss about it? If we can't have the weather we like, then we should like the weather we have."

He tells this writer also that long distance weather predictions are no good, that the science of meteorology hasn't yet got around to guessing ahead, with reasonable confidence, more than a very few days at a time. Some day, when we learn more about cosmic rays and sun spots and suchlike phenomena, maybe the weather sharks will be able to tell us what the weather will be three months ahead, and a mighty useful thing to know it would be for many trades.

This writer has known Dr. Scarr a good many years and written pages about him and his life, a most interesting life, it has been. He's a whacking big chap, standing 6 feet or a bit more and weighing 200 pounds on the hoof. He has gray, unruly hair which stands up all over his scientific dome, and his blue eyes twinkle with quiet humor when he talks to you. Dr. Scarr is 65, a Michigan and Kansas farm boy who earned a law degree and then turned his broad back on Blackstone to go into the weather business in a big way.

* * *

Called in Courts Nearly Every Day

A CURIOUS sidelight on Dr. Scarr's job is that he is called into the courts at least three hundred and fifty times a year to testify in civil and criminal cases. In criminal cases, the state of the weather at the time the crime was committed is tremendously important. Abraham Lincoln as a young lawyer out in Illinois, saved a client from the gallows by proving that a witness for the state lied when he said the moon was shining when he saw the client commit the crime.

In the same way, Dr. Jim Scarr has gone into court and saved men from death and others from prison—and also helped to send to their just dues some men who were trying to beat the law.

He is a romantic chap, Dr. Jim, with a rich vein of sentiment deep down in his cosmics. One day a shy feminine voice called him on the telephone and said:

"Dr. Scarr, will you please tell me what the weather will be on the 17th of June?"

He said:

"Is it a wedding?"

She replied:

"Yes. How did you know?"

He didn't know. She persisted:

"Well, what will it be, Dr. Scarr?"

He replied:

"My dear, if that is to be your wedding day it will be the brightest and most beautiful day in that wonderful month of roses, June."

And came back over the wire:

"Thank you so much, Dr. Scarr."

He counted the calendar days and found that it was 117 days to the 17th of June.

* * *

Sees 117 Bright Days Waiting

TELLING the story, Dr. Scarr declared:

"Whatever the weather would be on that day I was sure that the young lady had 117 bright days waiting. We should always live in tomorrow—we don't live in yestrday—we don't live in today, as we are too busy doing things, but we do live in tomorrow. I would suggest that you always enjoy tomorrow today, then you are sure to be happy—tomorrow may be too late."

The most celebrated piece of testimony Dr. Scarr ever gave in court might be the snapper of a cracking good detective story. A man was being tried for murder. His lawyer set up what seemed to be an impregnable alibi. He offered in evidence a photograph of the accused man which had been taken at the same hour the murder was committed, but hundreds of miles distant from the spot.

Then the state quietly put Dr. Scarr in the witness chair. He showed clearly and conclusively that a hard rain was falling when the murder was done, but that the picture had been made in clear sunlight, and that the shadows in the picture proved absolutely that it had been made hours after the killing.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

You'd like people to think you possess many virtues.

Often you allude to the transgressions of others and censure them for their lack of principle.

You emphasize your opinion of what you call meanness of certain individuals and seek to use them to further your arguments of how much better you are.

It is a safe bet that were you wealthy enough to be independent of public opinion and free from requirements upon others for patronage, you would give more leeway to certain desires you possess.

And where would this lead you?

Would it direct you in the course you are now following?

Very likely it would not.

You check or completely control impulses that you would not endeavor to overcome if you were more independently situated.

You are a good citizen—you dare not to be otherwise.

You are too dependent upon the good-will and good opinion of others to allow adverse reaction against you.

You are what you are because you have to be.
